

13 Cent Spread on Ulster Gas Pump Prices

KINGSTON — A check of pump prices for gasoline in the Kingston area has confirmed the results of a nationwide survey conducted by United Press International. Gasoline is plentiful, demand is strong, prices are creeping up and there is a wide disparity in prices, particularly for regular gas.

Lloyd's Red Barn at Morton Boulevard and Boice's Lane was the lowest-priced station of the 20 checked by the Freeman Thursday. The Lloyd station, a full-service installation, sells two grades, regular for 53.9 cents and premium for 55.9 cents. Prices were generally lower at independent stations, although there were exceptions.

The highest prices in the Kingston area are along Washington Avenue near the Thruway traffic circle. A Gulf station at the entrance to Holiday Inn had the highest prices found in the survey, charging 60.9 cents for regular, 66.9 for no-lead and 68.9 for premium.

The pricing at nine-tenths of a cent was the common denominator in the survey. Every pump price without exception was pegged at nine-tenths of a cent above an even penny.

One station attendant explained the pricing structure and the reason why independents are often able to undersell the major brands.

"It's the federal regulations," he said. "They (the oil companies) can't sell it to me any cheaper than they do, but if they've got a surplus they can sell it to an independent for as much as five cents a gallon cheaper."

Variations in prices among dealers selling the same brand were not uncommon, indicating that it pays to shop around, even if you are addicted to one particular brand. The Gulf station on Broadway near Cedar Street had prices of 59.9 for regular, 61.9 for no-lead and 64.9 for premium. At Dan Miller's Gulf station at Morton Boulevard and Boice's Lane the corresponding prices were 57.9, 59.9 and 63.9. At the Gulf station at Greenhill Avenue and Fair Street the prices were 58.9, 63.9 and 65.9.

The Mobil station on the Boulevard had self-service prices of 55.9 for regular and 57.9 for premium. The Mobil station on Route 9W just north of Shoprite Square had self-service prices of 56.9 for regular, 60.9 for unleaded and 63.9 for premium, with full-service prices of 63.9, 65.9 and 68.9. The latter was the highest price found anywhere in the survey.

The Mobil station on Washington Avenue charges 57.9, 59.9 and 62.9 for self-service, and five cents more in each case for full-service.

The Arco station on Ulster Avenue Mall had prices of 57.9, 60.9 and 62.9, while the Arco station on Broadway near East Chester had posted prices of 56.9, 60.9 and 62.9. The Hess station at East Chester and Flatbush Avenue charges 56.9 for regular and 57.9 for premium, while the Hess station on Ulster Avenue Mall was one cent cheaper on both grades.

CORNWALL — As a standup funnyman and front page headline monopolizer, Frederick G. Faerber III takes the cake, says State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-40th Dist., but as an entree planner and cook, he's a total travesty.

"No one, but no one, eats what he wants to serve," groused that Faerber was blithely ignoring the ground rules under which he had agreed to attend a fish fry at the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club to be prepared by Ulster County Federated Sportsmen president Faerber.

Schermerhorn still has no temerity whatsoever about eating Mid-Hudson River fish reported to contain hazardous polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs).

"Sure," says Schermerhorn, "I said I'd eat what commercial fishermen catch and sell from the Hudson—and what they catch and sell for a living is striped bass and shad. I'll eat as many bass and shad as I can handle. But I don't want his cream of eel soup, his uncooked greens salad or other garbage gook. I just want his fish."

Faerber wouldn't eat his own appetizers and entree either, suggested the senator. And if he can't catch bass and shad with the finesse of other Hudson fishermen, Schermerhorn offered to catch them himself with Faerber as a witness.

"I can put river mud in a salad, too," said Schermerhorn, "but if Faerber knows anything about bass and he should know you don't cook them in river water. You fry 'em."

The senator also decried Faerber's lack of attention to etiquette in extending his invitation to the fry without requesting the courtesy of RSVP. Previously committed to kicking off a Right to Life Walkathon in Chester on June 6, he said he can't make the date set by Faerber for the fish fry.

Indeed, the entire month of June is out because of Legislature sessions in Albany, he says, and he'd prefer to avoid Sundays — his church and spend it with the family day.

He hopes Faerber can see his way clear to rescheduling the fry on July 6, 7, 8 or 9 or on July 20, 22 or 23. And he hoped Faerber will get back in line and stuck to what he said were the ground rules — no eels, greens or river mud, just commercially sold fish. And properly cooked, please.

"He's going too far with his eel soups and salads and bullheads stuffing," says Schermerhorn. "He's got to be kidding, but I hope his ego is satisfied with all those front page articles."

If so, the senator struck low blow against any ego lodged in Faerber's reputation as a gourmet. Decided Schermerhorn, "I'll probably bring my own cook from the Lobster Shanty. I'll eat my way through a pile of whatever he fries up and I think even Faerber will enjoy a real fish fry with me."

Legal Runway Cleared for Concorde

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger cleared the way Saturday for a pair of Concorde jetliners to speed faster than rifle bullets across the Atlantic Ocean from London and Paris Monday, opening the age of supersonic travel to the United States.

Burger rejected an 11th-hour plea by county officials in Virginia and New York for the Supreme Court to stop the inaugural supersonic transport flights to Dulles International Airport outside Washington.

With that final legal barrier removed, British Airways and Air France pressed ahead with plans for their red, white and blue SSTs to touch down three minutes apart at Dulles just before noon EDT Monday in a ceremonial twin arrival.

The $60 million superjets will zip across the Atlantic in about 3 1/2 hours, half the time for subsonic flights, hitting cruising speeds of twice the speed of sound or about 1,360 miles per hour. A .22 rifle bullet goes 884 m.p.h.

Pennsylvania's Republicans Opt for Ford

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Pennsylvania's huge Republican convention delegation overwhelmingly approved President Ford's candidacy Saturday and, in effect, pushed him past Ronald Reagan in likely delegate support to date.

Ford, campaigning in Oregon along with Reagan and the major Democratic contenders, also won all 18 Republican delegates selected in Vermont in a one-day windfall that could help offset the bonanza Reagan expects from Tuesday's six primary contests.

In Harrisburg, 102 of the 103 members in Pennsylvania's uncommitted Republican delegation — third largest of all GOP national convention blocs — voted on a resolution expressing "support" for Ford's nomination.

President and Carter Diverge on Nukes

MEDFORD, Ore. — President Ford signed a $274 million funding bill for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and spoke out strongly Saturday in favor of expanding U.S. atomic power generation.

Ford's stand contrasted sharply with that expressed Saturday by Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, who told an Idaho audience he views nuclear power as a last resort.

Russia Says West Forces Her to Be Strong

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union said Saturday it remains committed to detente, but added it is forced to keep strong defenses because the West is pursuing an arms race.

It warned it will not give up its support of countries like Angola because relaxation of tensions—or detente—did not mean Communist countries should "disarm ideologically."

In a government statement reviewing relations with West Germany, the Soviets said world tension is caused by those in the West who cling to "cold war dogmas."

Nixon Unloads Home at Big Profit

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. — Former President Nixon has sold his three-bedroom vacation home on Key Biscayne at a $195,000 profit to a retired New York caterer who bought it because he liked the bay view and the swimming pool.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore O. Bittner, of Southold, N.Y., became the owners of the Nixon home Friday. They paid $320,000 for the house Nixon bought in 1969 for $125,000.

Bittner said he purchased the island home facing westward across Biscayne Bay for "the location. The view is just like the one at our Long Island home across the bay to the city. And I like the swimming pool. That fact that this was Mr. Nixon's former home did not enter the picture," he said.

DeSapio Said to Have Been Indicted

NEW YORK — Former T a m m a n y Hall Democratic boss Carmine DeSapio has been indicted by a grand jury empaneled by special state corruption prosecutor Maurice Nadjari, the New York Post said in its Saturday edition.

The newspaper said it was told by sources that DeSapio, 67, on vacation in Florida, arranged to surrender Monday at Nadjari's office.

The indictment against DeSapio resulted from earlier testimony before a grand jury investigating alleged corruption in the Manhattan Surrogate Court and an alleged plot to thwart the court's inquiry, the Post said.

Energy Options Many; Funds Few

STONE RIDGE—The ideas flowed thick and fast from more than a dozen "experts" in the energy field at Saturday's conference at Ulster Community College but, as one speaker noted, there is no lack of ideas to solve our energy problems.

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.), who organized the conference to explore the concept of energy sufficiency from many angles, traced the genesis of the energy bind to poor and inequitable government planning.

Two main speakers, Dan Haley, chairman of the State Assembly Energy Committee, and Jack Reynolds, Ulster County energy coordinator, viewed the high cost of energy from conceptual and pragmatic perspectives respectively.

And six panels composed of highly regarded area energy experts in their fields looked at the problem from these points of view: energy and the economy; conserving energy; new sources of energy; nuclear energy; the role of the consumer; and improving the utilities.

Hinchey led off by stating, "We are meeting here today to do something about one of the most critical problems of our time—the decreasing availability of low-cost energy."

The Saugerties assemblyman said the basic problem in our area is that the renewable sources such as sun, wind, water and organic matter have been left "totally undeveloped by those who determine the direction of energy research and application." He thought that "both government and industry have contributed to our present situation by choosing to ignore the many warning signs and by establishing policies for energy research and use that served narrow interests instead of the welfare of all people in all regions of the nation."

He asked that an Energy Development Council for Ulster County be established to prepare a list of feasible local projects to produce energy, to be presented at a public meeting at the college Aug. 1.

Haley said the nation is "hooked on a petroleum addiction," with New York State in a worse position than most because it has the highest power cost in the nation.

He stated his principles as: equal competition among energy sources (such as nuclear, solar, wind); recognition that energy affects everything in our lives and is an infrastructure, as are the highways, not just a commodity; husbanding our exhaustible resources and using renewable ones; conservation of energy as our "hidden solution," not necessarily lowering our standard of living; achieving maximum energy independence at the lowest consumer level, doing away with strongly centralized sources.

The bill in the Assembly he has sponsored includes five requirements he feels should be met before further construction of any nuclear generating plants is allowed: show the emergency core cooling system is effective; waive liability limitations for the industry; show how waste will be stored; with uranium due to run out shortly, show a steady fuel supply; and show the investment will be profitable.

Reynolds, who was appointed county energy coordinator in late 1973 when the oil shortage struck, detailed the effects on personal lives caused by the shortage and how his agency attempted to make sure people did not suffer unnecessarily, by coordinating available resources of fuel oil, propane, and gasoline. One of the concerns he expressed was that federal monies for energy seem to get as far as Albany and stop there, and he asked that legislators look into funneling some of that cash to the county level. His office runs on a budget of $200 a year.

Hinchey thought citizen activism in the interests of the people was necessary to solve the energy problems. "This conference is part of the long overdue process whereby the people of our community begin to play a role in determining energy policy in their own interest," he claimed.

Hinchey Explains Aye for Gay

ALBANY — "Yes," said Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st Dist., when the roll call vote came up last week on the sexual discrimination bill sponsored by Assemblyman William Passannante, D-Manhattan.

Hinchey was one of only 35 members of the Assembly to vote in favor of the bill, which at it. The measure would have barred employers or landlords from discriminating against homosexuals.

When so many Democrats had joined Republicans to so overwhelmingly defeat the bill, why had Hinchey sided with the minority?

"It's strictly a civil rights issue," said Hinchey, "and I believe in civil rights. I don't think people should be discriminated against on the basis of their life style and their beliefs."

The defeated measure should have been viewed only in the light of civil rights, he feels. "People are entitled to behave as they wish and to conduct their own lives the way they want," he said, "as long as it doesn't affect or bother anyone else."

"There was a time," said Hinchey, "when we discriminated against blacks and, perhaps, we still do. But, hopefully, that will be ended. And there was a time when my Irish grandfather was discriminated against. But, hopefully, there was a time when we discriminated against Catholics and, hopefully, that has ended."

"As our society becomes more enlightened, we will discriminate less. Passage of a sexual discrimination bill is just one way of doing it."

And what about the lengthy debate that the Passannante measure, since it would have prevented sexual discrimination by employers, would have placers in classrooms to, perhaps, influence the mores of students?

"I can't speak for the opinions of other Assemblymen in that regard," said Hinchey. "Some people create a bogeyman out of whole cloth. Had the bill passed, a person's activity in the schoolroom or in a similar place would still be controlled the way it is now by law."

Added Hinchey, "They could not engage in anything unlawful and that bill would not have affected that one iota."

In supporting the bill, he was simply supporting a civil rights measure, said Hinchey. "This is a free country," he added, "and, hopefully, we are going to keep it that way."

Six-Year-Old Still 'Serious'

STONE RIDGE—A six-year-old boy remained in serious condition at Albany Medical Center late Saturday after riding his bicycle into a moving auto trailer on Route 209 Friday afternoon. Shawn Ferro, son of John Ferro of Route 209, Stone Ridge, was reportedly bicycling in his driveway at about 3:45 p.m. when he rode out onto the highway as a car approached. State police said the car swerved to avoid impact but the bike made a wide turn and ran into the trailer being towed behind the car, knocking the boy to the pavement. A driver for Don's Ambulance brought the boy to Benedictine Hospital where he was examined, then got him to Albany Medical Center in a rush time of 36 minutes. Injuries were thought to include a fractured skull and fractured left arm. The driver of the car was William Perkowski, 31, of Athens. Police said there were no criminal charges filed.

Got It Back Sheriff's deputies Saturday morning made short work of recovering a 1973 Pontiac belonging to Doug Harvey of the Town of Ulster, and apprehending a suspect. Harvey called the department at 9:20 a.m. and said the car that had been stolen a week before had been seen on Hudson Street. A patrol set up an observation post and reportedly saw a 17-year-old New York City youth get in and drive the car away 40 minutes later. He was apprehended on West Pierpont Street and charged as a youthful offender with the theft.

Lot of Pot Trooper Tom Salmon stopped a Mt. Vernon man driving on Route 9, Town of Rhinebeck Saturday and arrested James H. Smith, 29, on a charge of criminal possession of a controlled substance fifth degree, felony, for a half-pound of marijuana allegedly discovered in his car. Arraigned before Rhinebeck Justice Joseph Waters, Smith was remanded to Dutchess County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bail with appearance in court scheduled for May 27.

Morals Charges Town police in Saugerties Friday night arrested John Walker, 23, of Saugerties on a charge of third degree rape, eight counts of endangering the welfare of a child, and eight counts of unlawfully dealing with a child in connection with activities involving an unidentified 14-year-old girl. Police said the arrest was the result of an investigation that also led to the issue and execution of search warrants at the West Saugerties Road residence of Jeffrey Nelson, 30, and Lucy Osborn, 22, where both were arrested Friday night. The two were charged with criminal possession seventh degree of marijuana and with endangering the welfare of a child and unlawfully dealing with a child.

Bomb Threat A New York City Water Department patrolman from the Ashokan Reservoir area received a bomb threat at his home Friday, but he is not quite sure why. Gregory DeSanna of the city force said he was told that if certain changes are not made there would be a bomb in his house or car. He notified other area police departments of the threat as well.

Crashes The Old Kings' Highway that runs through Mt. Marion to Saugerties was the scene for two separate auto accidents early Saturday. At 4 a.m., Jeffrey A. Weber of 5166 Kings Highway, Saugerties reportedly fell asleep at the wheel, ran his car off the right side of the road into a tree, but was not injured

Shoplifters The new Jamesway discount store in Napanoch, just opened Friday, has already been plagued with shoplifters, according to state police in Ellenville. They said six shoplifters had been arrested since the opening, and Jamesway has prosecuted all of them.

Burglary Two Kingston residents reportedly found inside Slicker's Delivery Service building at 62 O'Neil Street Friday night were remanded to Ulster County Jail Saturday morning in City Court in lieu of bail set at $2,500 each.

Moon Festival

BARRYTOWN—The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, leader of the Unification Church, is gearing up for a Bicentennial spectacular at the refurbished Yankee Stadium June 1 where he will launch his "God Bless America Festival." The controversial Rev. Moon pronounced that it is God's will that the festival be run by his committee to fulfill his purpose for America. He said that as a foreign born Korean he will play a role similar to that played by Marquis de Lafayette, Alexander Graham Bell and Albert Einstein in helping America. Stressing the immigrant theme, Moon said he was chosen to bring the East and West together and through the God Bless America Festival his "important message will be presented to the greatest number of Americans possible." In New York City, the Unification Church has been leaving nothing to chance with an acknowledged 1,500 full time volunteers in the streets to prepare for the June 1 rally. Moon said that there are more than 1,000 volunteers cleaning streets in Manhattan and the Bronx every morning in May as part of his "America the Beautiful" program.

Police Beat

Six-Year-Old Still 'Serious'

STONE RIDGE—A six-year-old boy remained in serious condition at Albany Medical Center late Saturday after riding his bicycle into a moving auto trailer on Route 209 Friday afternoon.

Shawn Ferro, son of John Ferro of Route 209, Stone Ridge, was reportedly bicycling in his driveway at about 3:45 p.m. when he rode out onto the highway as a car approached.

State police said the car swerved to avoid impact but the bike made a wide turn and ran into the trailer being towed behind the car, knocking the boy to the pavement.

A driver for Don's Ambulance brought the boy to Benedictine Hospital where he was examined, then got him to Albany Medical Center in a rush time of 36 minutes. Injuries were thought to include a fractured skull and fractured left arm.

The driver of the car was William Perkowski, 31, of Athens. Police said there were no criminal charges filed.

Morals Charges

Town police in Saugerties Friday night arrested John Walker, 23, of Saugerties on a charge of third degree rape, eight counts of endangering the welfare of a child, and eight counts of unlawfully dealing with a child in connection with activities involving an unidentified 14-year-old girl.

Police said the arrest was the result of an investigation that also led to the issue and execution of search warrants at the West Saugerties Road residence of Jeffrey Nelson, 30, and Lucy Osborn, 22, where both were arrested Friday night.

The two were charged with criminal possession seventh degree of marijuana and with endangering the welfare of a child and unlawfully dealing with a child.

Walker was arraigned before Saugerties Justice Tim Murphy and remanded to Ulster County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bail. Nelson and Ms. Osborn were released on $200 bail each by Saugerties Justice Robert Schirmer. All three are scheduled for reappearances in town justice court May 26.

Bomb Threat

A New York City Water Department patrolman from the Ashokan Reservoir area received a bomb threat at his home Friday, but he is not quite sure why.

Gregory DeSanna of the city force said he was told that if certain changes are not made there would be a bomb in his house or car. He notified other area police departments of the threat as well.

Crashes

The Old Kings' Highway that runs through Mt. Marion to Saugerties was the scene for two separate auto accidents early Saturday.

At 4 a.m., Jeffrey A. Weber of 5166 Kings Highway, Saugerties reportedly fell asleep at the wheel, ran his car off the right side of the road into a tree, but was not injured seriously. State police said he was issued a summons for failure to keep right.

And at 5:45 a.m., an Ulster County totally wrecked 1973 Oldsmobile on the highway in Mt. Marion that had struck a telephone pole.

He found the driver, Ralph J. DeMuccio Jr. of P.O. Box 9, Mt. Marion, who also reported falling asleep and running off the road. He was taken to Kingston Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance where he was treated for lacerations and contusions, and was reported in satisfactory condition late Saturday. There were no charges placed by police.

Got It Back

Sheriff's deputies Saturday morning made short work of recovering a 1973 Pontiac belonging to Doug Harvey of the Town of Ulster, and apprehending a suspect.

Harvey called the department at 9:20 a.m. and said the car that had been stolen a week before had been seen on Hudson Street. A patrol set up an observation post and reportedly saw a 17-year-old New York City youth get and in drive the car away 40 minutes later. He was apprehended on West Pierpont Street and charged as a youthful offender with the theft.

Lot of Pot

Trooper Tom Salmon stopped a Mt. Vernon man driving on Route 9, Town of Rhinebeck Saturday and arrested James H. Smith, 29, on a charge of criminal possession of a controlled substance fifth degree, felony, for a half-pound of marijuana allegedly discovered in his car. Arraigned before Rhinebeck Justice Joseph Waters, Smith was remanded to Dutchess County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bail with reappearances in court scheduled for May 27.

Shoplifters

The new Jamesway discount store in Napanoch, just opened Friday, has already been plagued with shoplifters, according to state police in Ellenville. They said six shoplifters had been arrested since the opening, and Jamesway has prosecuted all of them.

Burglary

Two Kingston residents reportedly found inside Sickler's Delivery Service building at 62 O'Neil Street Friday night were remanded to Ulster County Jail Saturday morning in City Court in lieu of bail set at $2,500 each.

Charged with burglary after an 11:30 p.m. arrest were Calvin Franklin, 17, and Wayne Menzel, 24, according to detectives of the Kingston Police Department.

New Restrictions Put on Dutchess Sanitation

Named to Hospital Board

Dr. Stanley K. Coffman Jr., president of the State University College at New Paltz, has been appointed to the board of trustees of Kingston Hospital, according to hospital administrator Anthony R. Triulzi. Receiving a bachelor's degree from Haverford College and advanced degrees from Ohio State University, it was felt that his appointment brings a broad range of academic and administrative experience to the board of trustees.

KINGSTON — Even a big, green bag full of greasy garbage brought into Ulster County Court House failed to convince Supreme Court Justice Edward S. Conway that Dutchess Sanitation Service Inc., should be held in contempt for violating a court order not to dump garbage at its landfill in Plattekill.

The judge on Friday did, however, impose further restrictions on the Poughkeepsie firm, amending his previous order limiting the type of materials dumped to include grease, oil, sludge and household garbage.

Justice Conway apparently sought that rather than what he called a more "drastic remedy" of holding the firm in contempt. Previously the judge allowed the firm to dump "dry" materials on a temporary basis only between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m., until the case can be heard during the June term of Supreme Court.

Eight witnesses, seven of whom testified as to what type materials they saw at the Plattekill landfill May 13 and 14, after Justice Conway imposed restrictions on dumping there, testified at the hearing. All but Joseph Fiorello, manager of the Dutchess Sanitation firm, told of observing yellow-stained gauze, household garbage, an oily, wet substance containing bearings, paper products, drums and sludge.

Rotten eggs would be a fair description of what Chief Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh said he smelled at the dump while Lawrence Morse of Clintondale called it "quite an odor." But Fiorello maintained that he did not smell anything offensive.

The question of the sighting of gauze at the landfill led to debate. Those who saw it, blue on one side, white on the other described it variously as looking like paper diapers (Kim-bies), as being all white or simply large piles of gauze. But it was Fiorello's lawyer, Harold Mangold, who suggested that the blue and white cloth was used to wrap electrical switches.

Plattekill Supervisor Dominick Ferrante testified that the blue and white cloth was not the gauze he saw at the dump.

While many witnesses, including Edith Auchmoody, Plattekill town clerk testified that the dump "stunk," that it was wet and littered with broken garbage bags, Mangold suggested that the garbage dumped there was placed at the site by "persons unknown" rather than Fiorello. He attacked one witness, Shirley Anson, cochairman of Concerned Citizens Committee as the "dump watcher of Plattekill" which brought strong objections from Plattekill's counsel, Michael Forrester who decried the characterization.

Mrs. Anson testified to seeing Dutchess Sanitation trucks at the site on many occasions between May 13 and 19 and took photos of materials she saw dumped there.

Mangold attempted to prove that the material at the dump was wet because of fire hoses used at the site to quell the tractor fire which occurred during the period in question.

Meanwhile Dutchess Sanitation's problems continued to mount this week with the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation ordering the firm to appear June 4 at a public hearing in the department's regional office in New Paltz.

Witnesses will testify as to the alleged violations including dumping of refuse not confined to an area effectively operated in accordance with the law; unsatisfactory compaction and covering of refuse, deposit of refuse in and discharge leachate to waters of the state and allowing salvage of refuse in a manner creating a nuisance affecting public health.

DEC officials determined last December that significant portions of the Plattekill site were occupied by freshwater wetlands and advised Dutchess Sanitation of that fact.

Dutchess Sanitation has neither applied for nor obtained a permit for its dumping, in accordance with DEC regulation. The firm is subject to civil penalties of up to $500 for each day during which they occur. Other violations are subject to a civil penalty of up to $3,000.

The hearing could also result in an order restraining Dutchess Sanitation from further use of the landfill until applying for and receiving DEC approval.

Dutchess Sanitation is now also subject to arrest by Ulster County Sheriff's Department if it fails to comply with Justice Conway's orders limiting its dumping to demolition materials.

Paltz Spokesman: 'Foot Dragging'

NEW PALTZ — Sheila Schwartz, president of the New Paltz chapter of United University Professions, charges the New York State Office of Employee Relations with "foot dragging and a lack of interest" in settling current contract negotiations. DER officials deny the charges and say that if anyone is foot dragging, it is UUP.

Pickets from UUP, which represents 15,000 teachers in the State University of New York educational system, demonstrated Wednesday on the Capitol steps in Albany, saying OER insists it will only begin to negotiate when UUP proposals meet their approval. Pickets from the New Paltz chapter did "symbolic" picketing there Thursday. Schwartz said the date was picked so that there would be no interference with graduation week at the New Paltz campus, and pledged that UUP would not interfere in any way with parents and students at graduation.

Norman Brand, executive assistant to the Director of Employee Relations, said of the Albany picketing, "If there has been any foot dragging, it has been on the part of UUP. We had to drag them to the bargaining table."

Brand said that the statutory impasse date was Dec. 2, 1975, and that in January OER had to threaten to file improper practice charges with PERB to get the faculty organization to the bargaining table. The first session was held Feb. 3.

"UUP is asking for a total of $64 million in direct compensation and work load changes," Brand said. "We have asked them to reconsider their demands in light of the state's fiscal condition and the sacrifices made by other state employees this year. We are talking about a unit where the average salary, including fringes, is $23,000 a year. In light of that, it is clear that their economic demands are totally unrealistic."

Schwartz said that more than money is involved at New Paltz. "Of all the state SUNY units, New Paltz has the one with the highest number of retrenched professors (eight)," she noted. "Some of them had been here 13 years. People with families, who played by the rules, worked hard, got doctorates, and suddenly found the rules had changed."

She said that Dr. Stanley K. Coffman Jr., SUNY New Paltz president, had ignored the recommendations made to him by a faculty committee in making the retrenchments, (discharges of tenured teachers.)

"They made recommendations and he ignored them and made his own cuts," she said. "It was just a charade—a game."

"The UUP executive board feels that Dr. Coffman has not sufficiently protected the tenured faculty. If he could reemploy the retrenched people as was done at the SUNY unit in Buffalo, UUP would be most grateful."

Schwartz said that she considered his actions "an attack on tenure."

The two sides are scheduled to resume bargaining next Tuesday in Albany.

Kaye Gets a Quick 'Absurd'

KINGSTON — The bazing of freshmen is a traditional sport indulged in annually on America's college campuses. Tom Phillips, county Civil Service Employees Association president, hasn't broken with tradition in his continuing verbal skirmish with County Legislator Kaye Quick, D-City.

Quick's contention that the work week for county employees should be increased, says Phillips, "shows her naivete as a freshman legislator regarding the negotiative process."

Furthermore, says Phillips, her remarks that the average taxpayer in this county must work 40 hours for his pay check ignores the fact that county employees—approximately 1,500 strong—make up a large segment of average taxpayers here. Perhaps more average or under-average than most, he says, since "we are one of the lowest paid county worker groups in the state."

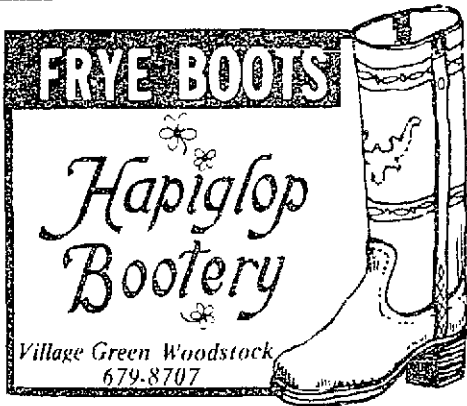

To follow Mrs. Quick's suggestion, he says, would be to put county workers "in a crunch on both ends that we cannot afford."

He labeled her call for CSEA members to work 40 hours a week for 35 hours pay an "absurd" suggestion.

Adds Phillips, "There are not many altruistic individuals in private industry who would add 14 per cent to their work week without just compensation. And whatever percentage of increase county workers receive in the upcoming contract, they will find the going tough enough in applying it to the spiraling costs of living."

The CSEA president had a final suggestion. "Let's keep this matter in the negotiating room at the bargaining table and not use it to stir up emotions and feelings in places where it does not belong. This is strictly a negotiating issue and Mrs. Quick should contain herself to the caucus room and let the negotiating committee handle this contract area."

'Typical' Family Has Two Breadwinners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The typical American family no longer has a breadwinner husband and a homemaker wife, the Labor Department said Saturday.

Nowadays, both marriage partners in the "typical" family have jobs. The erosion of family income is partly responsible for sending more wives to work, says a study in the current issue of the department's "Monthly Labor Review."

"The family model of husband-breadwinner and wife-homemaker is valid for only 34 out of 100 husband-wife families, compared with 56 out of 100 a quarter century ago," it said.

The number of employed wives has increased from 36 out of 100 in 1950 to 49 out of 100 in 1975—a rise that has been more rapid among whites than blacks over the past 10 years.

'Typical' Family Has Two Breadwinners

The major reason compelling wives to work, the study found, is money.

In 1974, the median income was $16,928 in families with working wives, compared to $12,082 in those with nonworking wives.

'Typical' Family Has Two Breadwinners

Erosion of family income also sent wives to work. The decline in the purchasing power of multiworker families between 1973 and 1974 was 1.3 per cent, compared to 3.1 per cent in families depending on a husband as sole breadwinner.

Salary differences are explained in part because the bulk of working wives have gone into low-paying, traditional female jobs in service industries. Female employment has more than doubled in these industries since 1950, while it has risen only about one-fifth in goods-producing industries.

But the attachment of working wives to their jobs was "neither temporary nor capricious," the study said. It found 72 per cent of working wives hold fulltime positions.

The report concluded rapid growth among working wives over the past quarter century began with middle-aged women whose children were grown, and has shifted to younger women still of child-bearing age.

'Typical' Family Has Two Breadwinners

The study said a lag in pay scales for women meant they still contribute only about 26 per cent of family income, unchanged from the 1920s.

Seeking Clue to Bus Crash

MARTINEZ, Calif. (UPI) — Four teams of experts sought an answer Saturday to the mystery of why a school bus crashed through a bridge of framp guardrail and dropped 22.5 feet to the ground, killing 28 persons.

The bus driver, Evan Prothero, 50, was in critical condition and unable to talk.

An annual safety inspection of the bus, which was 26 years old, was scheduled last week but skipped because its owner, Student Transportation, Inc., of Sacramento, planned to sell it almost immediately.

The off-ramp swung in a tight curve with a 20 mph speed limit, and an attorney familiar with the bridge said the structure's design easily could be an important factor.

Prothero, known to his friends as "Junior," paid a $302 fine in 1970 for drunk driving in a private car. He was involved in an accident last July but was not cited, and last November he was fined $25 for speeding.

Capt. Bruce Emery of the California Highway Patrol said no skid marks on the pavement have been linked to the bus. Another official said, "There's so many black marks on that curve it would be difficult to connect them with any vehicle."

Dean Estabrook, 35, director of the Yuba City High School chorus aboard the bus, saw the accident Friday in the rearview mirror of a car he was driving just ahead. But Estabrook's wife was among the dead and he remained Saturday in shock.

Twenty four persons survived the crash, and nine were in critical condition. Because the bus overturned and pancaked upside down, many of the victims, spread among six hospitals, suffered severe head injuries

Ulster County Cooperative Extension

Yearbook Shows Farm Successes

The 1975 Yearbook of Agriculture, "That We May Eat," marks the centennial of the state agricultural experiment stations that have brought us a better life. It is an excellent reference book for anyone wanting to know more about research in areas affecting our everyday life and in areas that can well shape our food supply for the future.

William H. Palmer of the Ulster County Cooperative Extension calls attention to a few excerpts of reports in the yearbook.

"A billion dollar saving through just one piece of agricultural research is the estimate of the worldwide economic value of a vaccine to protect poultry against Newcastle Disease. The vaccine was developed at the Virginia Agricultural Station."

"Potatoes are a productive miracle. Connecticut, where the first agricultural experimental station started 100 years ago, grows as many bushels of potatoes now as in 1875, but it takes only a fourth as much land."

"Today's dairy cow is a fantastic producer as a result of breeding and feeding research. Like all mammals, a cow gives milk because she has offspring and must feed them. Since milk is a nutritious food, she has been developed as a milk producer."

"Today, the average cow not only feeds her calf but also provides milk and dairy products for 19 people. Our nation's 11 million milk cows produce over 115 billion pounds of milk annually, providing 253 quarts for every person in the United States."

"Apples came to America during the earliest colonial days and already were the national fruit when the American colonies became a nation. Today we enjoy high quality apples 365 days a year, due in part to the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station research on controlled atmosphere storage techniques. The U. S. now has 30 million bushels of apples stored by this method for benefit of the consumer."

Palmer noted that one of the chapters in the yearbook sums up other things the experimental stations have done. They created hybrid corn which increased yields tremendously. They controlled hog cholera which used to destroy millions of pounds of pork each year. They curbed the wheat rust epidemics that threatened to wipe out wheat and bread. They devised new ways to irrigate dry parts of the country so we could have larger, more economical supplies of food and fiber.

Agricultural scientists also discovered dicumaryl to control blood clot in humans, streptomycin to treat tuberculosis and other diseases, and they also discovered the significance of amino acids in our diets.

Early chapters of the yearbook tell about research from Jamestown, Virginia, in the early 17th century to work by Thomas Jefferson, which shaped our present experimental stations. Cooperative state and federal research in agriculture and forestry have constantly discovered new knowledge enabling agriculture and the nation to move forward.

Copies of the 1975 yearbook, "That We May Eat," may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402. The price is $7.30.

U-Pick the Best

The popularity of home gardening, roadside stands, and U-Pick farms and orchards has rekindled interest in home freezing to preserve food.

Among the many benefits cited:

- Fruits and vegetables can be kept near peak quality and nutritive value.

- Seasonal foods can be bought in quantity at a savings.

- Cooking time can be saved throughout the year by doubling recipes and freezing a portion.

Unfortunately, some householders have experienced freezer "burns" on meats, snap beans of an unappetizing olive color, and other disappointments. Worse are the instances where a household has lost all of its frozen food because of an unplugged electric cord.

To avoid such disasters and to give the home cook confidence in freezing, the N.Y. State College of Human Ecology, Cornell University, has reprinted its popular "Handbook for Freezing Foods," by Mabel Doremus, professor emerita, and Ruth Klippstein, professor of nutritional sciences. For information contact the Ulster County Cooperative Extension, 74 John Street, Kingston.

State Sewing Finalist Has Varied Interests

STONE RIDGE — Eight years of 4-H sewing instruction have paid off for Linda Crisman. The 18-year-old Rondout Valley High School senior has been chosen as one of 15 state finalists for the 4-H National Clothing Review.

Slender, blonde Linda has already cleared two hurdles along the way to an $800 scholarship that goes to the national winner. In April she submitted three ensembles she made to a panel of 4-H judges and was selected from 425 participants as the Ulster County representative. Then a panel of judges at Cornell University selected her as one of the 15 finalists who will compete there in late June for the New York State crown.

The winner, who will be announced at the New York State Fair in September, goes to the National 4-H Club congress in Chicago later that month, where the winner of the scholarship will be chosen.

Clearing hurdles is nothing new for Linda, an avid horsewoman who has won numerous prizes for her equestrian feats.

Horsemanship is only one of theivacious Linda excels. Her selection as the Ulster County representative was not based on her clothing work alone, but included an evaluation of her overall 4-H record. Linda, in addition to her clothing work, has participated in 4-H programs in horsemanship, gardening, crafts, foods, handyman, junior leadership and veterinary science.

She began sewing eight years ago with the Lomontville Lamplighters 4-H Club under the direction of Mrs. James Dunbar, beginning with simple projects such as aprons, progressing through more complicated projects as her abilities increased, and culminating in her thoroughly professional entry in the national competition.

Her three ensembles consist of a smoke blue quana evening dress with a capelet, a three-piece riding habit with a top-stitched, lined navy blue coat and jodhpurs and a divestive, and a pure wool tailored Bill Blass-designed coat over a go-everywhere blue print quana dress which is her oring the New York State 4-H Club Congress at Cornell University in late June Linda and the other contestants will model their outfits for a final evaluation by a panel of 4-H judges. Announcement of the winner of the trip to Chicago will be made at the State Fair National Clothing Revue

in September.

Linda is the first Ulster County representative to reach the state final level in 12 years, when Mrs. Dunbar's daughter Genevieve won the trip to Chicago.

Horsemanship and clothing are only two of the interests in Linda's young life. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Crisman has taken a varied part in school affairs too, appearing in the senior play and participating in girls' track and field for two years. In addition, she has played flute with the Rondout Valley Senior Band for three years and is a member of the Select Ensemble, a group-within-a-group of student musicians who do special performances.

Her interest in horses began after an older brother, Mark, left for college. Her parents own two purebred Arabian mares which they keep on their 10-acre place just south of Schoonmaker Lane on Route 209.

"The horses were there so I just started riding them," Linda explains.

Her introduction to the sport may have been that casual, but she has gone far beyond the "just riding" stage. Her training with the Valley Ridge Riders 4-H Club has enabled her to represent Ulster County at the state fair in 1974 and 1975, winning a first place rosette for equitation in 1974 and a second place in dressage riding the following year.

During the warm weather months Linda keeps busy competing in local horse shows. She recently competed at the Lowlands Ranch Club and brought home an impressive list of trophies, including a third place in fitting and showmanship, a second place in bareback and in English equitation, and first place trophies in English pleasure and versatility (combined English and western) categories.

Does dressmaking or horsemanship or music figure in her future? As evocations, perhaps, but she plans to enter Ulster County Community College in the fall to train as a dental hygienist.

Linda has interests other than clothing and horsemanship. She has played flute for three years with the Rondout Valley High School Band and is a member of the Select Ensemble, a group-within-a-group that does concert performances.

Our Bodies Get Second Chance

Yes, there can be a second chance for you to control your figure, have good health, a longer life and more fun.

The Home Economics Division of Ulster County Cooperative Extension will hold Second Chance classes on Nutrition (Beauty Inside Out), the Importance of Proper Exercise, Good Grooming Aids, and Low Calorie Cooking in Kingston and New Paltz. The Kingston classes are scheduled for June 3-10-17-24, with New Paltz classes scheduled for June 1-8-15-22.

Registration for the four two-hour classes is only $2, and both men and women are welcome in the classes. Registration deadline is May 25.

The problem facing millions of Americans is that they carry around anywhere from five to 100 pounds of excess fat. This is not a problem for just a few, for just women, or just the poor. It affects us all—if not each individual, someone in his family of circle of friends.

Phyllis W. Barlow, head of the Home Economics Division, notes that Americans spend millions each year trying to get thin in an easy way.

"They buy books, special formulas, special vitamins, minerals, or eat special combinations of foods or take drugs," she said.

"It's all in vain, because once they stop the special treatment they gain back what fat they have lost, if any. Most of these special treatments are health hazards."

"The body is a magnificent machine and should be cared for in a proper way every day. Therefore, learn to set up a way of living for the rest of your life that will work for you. There will be no magic in this new pattern for life, but it will make a new you."

Stanley Bike Is Talking Safety

KINGSTON—A novel talking bicycle that can move its rear wheel, light its stop, directional and front lights, and toot its horn is making bike safety an attractive measure for thousands of elementary school pupils in Ulster County.

Stanley, the Talking Bike, is the heart of the interesting, educational and unique program that draws so much interest from elementary school administrators, youth advisors and the youngsters themselves.

It takes a lot of work to put Stanley on stage for his usual 45-minute show. First, there's Officer Richard Scherer of the Kingston Police Department, an excellent public relations type who has appeared in front of the public in such unlikely places as Shea Stadium, where he sang between games of a New York Met doubleheader.

Then there's the cooperation of the Kingston Lions Club, which helped pay for building Stanley, and the Ulster County 4-H, which supplies the handout materials for follow-up bike safety programs and does the scheduling and transporting of the bike.

And last but not least there's Tom Atkins, the Ulster County 4-H division leader who is the voice and control of Stanley the Talking Bike. Atkins, who is also used to appearing in front of groups, remains hidden at all times for his Stanley performances.

Officer Richard Scherer of the Kingston Police Department introduces Stanley, the Talking Bike, to (L to R) George Schryver, Paula Mangiagli and Albertha Lewis of the Immaculate Conception School in Kingston. The police department, Lions Clubs and the Ulster County 4-H cooperate in bringing this unique and amusing bike safety program to Ulster County schools.

Other service groups such as the Rondout Valley Lions Club and the New Paltz Lions Club have cooperated by making sure the 4-H handout educational materials are used in the schools, and by conducting bike inspections and bike rodeos.

The program has provided leader training for another county, won a first prize for a local Boy Scout troop, made a successful presentation a few years ago at a conference of the Driver and Safety Educators Association of New York, resulted in a record number of phone calls to a local TV show and has been requested by groups in Albany, Long Island and Connecticut.

In a unique blend of education, humor and audience participation, Scherer is on stage with Stanley for about 45 minutes discussing bicycle safety rules. There's much verbal exchange between Scherer, Stanley and the audience, resulting in a feeling of togetherness.

A set of lessons, quizzes, rules and regulations and bike inspection sheets is then given to the school principal with the notation that these materials are available in quantity from the 4-H Department. Each school or youth group is encouraged to carry on the program to its ultimate conclusion which consists of a bike safety inspection and bike rodeo.

Thanks to the Kingston Lions Club, the Ulster County 4-H can now make a 16-mm film and set of slides available for loan to any school requesting it.

Correct Canning Needs Fast Start

For best results with home freezing or canning, harvest the vegetables at prime eating stages, sort out defective or inferior products, and process as soon as possible, says P. A. Minges of Cornell University.

Sometimes the variety can make a difference, though usually the better ones for eating fresh are also the most suitable for processing. A few suggestions follow.

Tendercrop and closely related varieties like Early Gallatin and the Blue Lake group, either bush or pole, are preferred snap bean varieties. White-seeded varieties within these groups may be better for canning. Fordhook 242 and Thorogreen lima beans are excellent for freezing.

Nantes and Spartan Bonus likely will be quite satisfactory carrot varieties. Self Blanché cauliflower is one of the more tender varieties. White-spined cucumber varieties like Premier hold their green color better than black-spined ones.

Frosty and Perfected Freezer 60 are good freezing varieties though most of the wrinkle-seeded pea varieties are good. Dwarf Grey sugar is a suitable edible podded pea. Savoyed varieties of spinach may be preferred for freezing.

Many round tomato varieties are quite satisfactory for canning if the fruits are relatively free of blotchy ripening. A couple of exceptions may be the Heinz 1350 and Campbell 1327 varieties which often are flavorless when canned as whole or stewed tomatoes.

The pear-shaped types like Roma VF or Chico III are very good for making products like chili sauce or paste but are rather flavorless when canned whole. The pH (acid) readings of tomato varieties seem to vary so much that it is difficult to identify any of the newer ones that are consistently low. In limited observations, the yellow varieties appear to be in the same pH range as the currently popular reds.

Tent Bugs

The eggs of the eastern tent caterpillar are hatching out and the young larvae (immature insects) are beginning to build conspicuous silken tents in branch crotches.

Black cherry, chokecherry and apple trees are favored food plants, but they can attack several other ornamentals.

The tents are quite small at first, but in six to seven weeks they will be greatly enlarged and hard to miss. The caterpillars are aggressive and can cause severe defoliation.

Each day the caterpillars return to the silken nest to await the cooler periods of evening to wander out in search of food. If only one or two trees are infested, hand removing and destroying the nests and larvae while they are still small may be effective in controlling them. In severe infestations, either the insecticide carbaryl (Sevin), malathion or methoxychlor may be used. If using carbaryl (Sevin) do not apply to fruit trees during bloom.

Tips Offered for Home Gardeners

People become gardeners for many reasons. For some, gardening is simply a recreational (and re-creational) hobby with no particular aim. For others it may be the desire to grow a plant to its greatest ornamental beauty. Still others find maximum pleasure in raising and savoring garden-fresh tomatoes or sweet corn and crisp, juicy carrots. For you there may be other personal reasons.

There are also many kinds of gardens and they can be in the city, suburbs or country. If you live in a condominium or an apartment the gardenic site must be a patio, a balcony or a window ledge, or perhaps a shelf under artificial light, and confined to flower pots, boxes or other types of containers which can give a surprisingly bountiful crop of a favorite flower or vegetable.

If you are fortunate enough to have space outdoors, more enjoyment will be realized by placing the garden close to the house—even adjacent to the patio or terrace. This makes it more convenient to give the garden some care each day and to watch it grow, admiring the wonders of nature as the first tomato blossom gradually becomes the first garden-ripened tomato.

However, the location for the garden depends most of all on exposure. Select a place that provides all the sunshine possible. This is particularly important for vegetables. Don't plan a garden near large trees or in continuous shade, and try to avoid areas that are flooded during rain storms. If gardening is a new undertaking, for the first year think KISS — Keep it Small and Simple.

The role of organic matter in the soil has received much attention lately, and it is time to set the record straight on what it can and cannot do. Organic matter derived from leaves, grass clippings, sawdust or similar once-living material, after being composted and incorporated in the soil, becomes humus. The proper amount of humus in the soil helps provide a desirable environment for seed germination and root growth.

But organic materials alone may neither contain nor provide the essential plant nutrients, such as nitrogen or phosphoric acid, in the amounts necessary for good growth and the crop of vegetables that will reward your efforts.

Similarly, the various plants in the vegetable garden will remain healthy and vigorous only when protected from insects, diseases and weeds. Weeds compete with the garden plants for moisture, sunlight and nutrients in the home garden and can be satisfactorily controlled by hoeing and mulching.

Growing House Plants

Phyllis W. Barlow, home economist, and Daryl David, horticultural agent, recently combined forces to present three demonstrations on the how to of house plant propagation. David (L) is shown explaining a fine point to (L to R) Garry Poone, Mildred Stickles and Judy Owens. Classes were held in Kingston and New Paltz for the convenience of Ulster County residents.

Chipmunks Pitch In

The Cherry Hill Chipmunks 4-H Club of Sawkill recently presented Cooperative Extension Agent Paul Strombeck with a contribution for the Ulster County 4-H Camp Cabin Building Fund. Pictured (L to R) with Strombeck are Sherry Port, Lisa Brink, Judy Kuhns, Karen Wolff, and Sandy Kuhns. The chipmunks are among the several 4-H clubs and friends of 4-H who have contributed to the fund, making possible the start of construction on a cabin for overnight campers. The 4-H camp is owned by Cooperative Extension Association of Ulster County and operated by the 4-H division.

Yearbook Shows Farm Successes

The 1975 Yearbook of Agriculture, "That We May Eat," marks the centennial of the state agricultural experiment stations by reporting successes that have brought us a better life. It is an excellent reference book for anyone wanting to know more about research in areas affecting our everyday life and in areas that can well shape our food supply for the future.

William H. Palmer of the Ulster County Cooperative Extension calls attention to a few excerpts of reports in the yearbook.

"A billion dollar saving through just one piece of agricultural research is the estimate of the worldwide economic value of a vaccine to protect poultry against Newcastle Disease. The vaccine was developed at the Virginia Agricultural Station."

"Potatoes are a productive miracle. Connecticut, where the first agricultural experimental station started 100 years ago, grows as many bushels of potatoes now as in 1875, but it takes only a fourth as much land."

"Today's dairy cow is a fantastic producer as a result of breeding and feeding research. Like all mammals, a cow gives milk because she has offspring and must feed them. Since milk is a nutritious food, she has been developed as a milk producer."

"Today, the average cow not only feeds her calf but also provides milk and dairy products for 19 people. Our nation's 11 million milk cows produce over 115 billion pounds of milk annually, providing 253 quarts for every person in the United States."

"Apples came to America during the earliest colonial days and already were the national fruit when the American colonies became a nation. Today we enjoy high quality apples 365 days a year, due in part to the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station research on controlled atmosphere storage techniques. The U. S. now has 30 million bushels of apples stored by this method for benefit of the consumer."

Palmer noted that one of the chapters in the yearbook sums up other things the experimental stations have done. They created hybrid corn which increased yields tremendously. They controlled hog cholera which used to destroy millions of pounds of pork each year. They curbed the wheat rust epidemics that threatened to wipe out wheat and bread. They devised new ways to irrigate dry parts of the country so we could have larger, more economical supplies of food and fiber.

Agricultural scientists also discovered dicumal to control blood clot in humans, streptomycin to treat tuberculosis and other diseases, and they also discovered the significance of amino acids in our diets.

Early chapters of the yearbook tell about research from Jamestown, Virginia, in the early 17th century to work by Thomas Jefferson, which shaped our present experiment stations. Cooperative state and federal research in agriculture and forestry have constantly discovered new knowledge enabling agriculture and the nation to move forward.

Copies of the 1975 yearbook, "That We May Eat," may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402. The price is $7.30.

U-Pick the Best

The popularity of home gardening, roadside stands, and U-Pick farms and orchards has rekindled interest in home freezing to preserve food.

Among the many benefits cited:

- Fruits and vegetables can be kept near peak quality and nutritive value.
- Seasonal foods can be bought in quantity at a savings.
- Cooking time can be saved throughout the year by doubling recipes and freezing a portion.

Unfortunately, some household freezer "burns" on meats, snap beans of an unappetizing olive color, and other disappointments. Worse are the instances where a household has lost all of its frozen food because of an unplugged electric cord.

To avoid such disasters and to give the home cook confidence in freezing, the N.Y. State College of Human Ecology, Cornell University, has reprinted its popular "Handbook for Freezing Foods," by Mabel Doremus, professor emerita, and Ruth Klippstein, professor of nutritional sciences. For information contact the Ulster County Cooperative Extension, 74 John Street, Kingston.

State Sewing Finalist Has Varied Interests

STONE RIDGE — Eight years of 4-H sewing instruction have paid off for Linda Crisman. The 18-year-old Rondout Valley High School senior has been chosen as one of 15 state finalists for the 4-H National Clothing Review.

Slender, blonde Linda has already cleared two hurdles along the way to an $800 scholarship that goes to the national winner. In April she submitted three ensembles she made to a panel of 4-H judges and was selected from 425 participants as the Ulster County representative. Then a panel of judges at Cornell University selected her as one of the 15 finalists who will compete there in late June for the New York State crown.

The winner, who will be announced at the New York State Fair in September, goes to the National 4-H Club congress in Chicago later that month, where the winner of the scholarship will be chosen.

Clearing hurdles is nothing new for Linda, an avid horsewoman who has won numerous prizes for her equestrian feats.

Horsemanship is only one of theivacious Linda excels. Her selection as the Ulster County representative was not based on her clothing work alone, but included an evaluation of her overall 4-H record. Linda, in addition to her clothing work, has participated in 4-H programs in horsemanship, gardening, crafts, foods, handyman, junior leadership and veterinary science.

She began sewing eight years ago with the Lomontville Lamplighters 4-H Club under the direction of Mrs. James Dunbar, beginning with simple projects such as aprons, progressing through more complicated projects as her abilities increased, and culminating in her thoroughly professional entry in the national competition.

Her three ensembles consist of a smoke blue quiana evening dress with a capelet, a three-piece riding habit with a top-stitched, lined navy blue coat and jodhpurs and a distivist, and a pure wool tailored Bill Blass-designed coat over a go-everywhere blue print quiana dress which is her oring the New York State 4-H Club Congress at Cornell University in late June Linda and the other contestants will model their outfits for a final evaluation by a panel of 4-H judges. Announcement of the winner of the trip to Chicago will be made at the State Fair National Clothing Review in September.

Linda is the first Ulster County representative to reach the state final level in 12 years, when Mrs. Dunbar's daughter Genevieve won the trip to Chicago.

Horsemanship and clothing are only two of the interests in Linda's young life. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Crisman has taken a varied part in school affairs too, appearing in the senior play and participating in girls' track and field for two years. In addition, she has played flute with the Rondout Valley Senior Band for three years and is a member of the Select Ensemble, a group-within-a-group of student musicians who do special performances.

Her interest in horses began after an older brother, Mark, left for college. Her parents own two purebred Arabian mares which they keep on their 10-acre place just south of Schoonmaker Lane on Route 209.

"The horses were there so I just started riding them," Linda explains.

Her introduction to the sport may have been that casual, but she has gone far beyond the "just riding" stage. Her training with the Valley Ridge Riders 4-H Club has enabled her to represent Ulster County at the state fair in 1974 and 1975, winning a first place rosette for equitation in 1974 and a second place in dressage riding the following year.

During the warm weather months Linda keeps busy competing in local horse shows. She recently competed at the Lowlands Ranch Club and brought home an impressive list of trophies, including a third place in fitting and showmanship, a second place in bareback and in English equitation, and first place trophies in English pleasure and versatility (combined English and western) categories.

Does dressmaking or horsemanship or music figure in her future? As avocations, perhaps, but she plans to enter Ulster County Community College in the fall to train as a dental hygienist.

Linda, shown riding one of the thoroughbred Arabian mares on which she has won numerous prizes for horsemanship, is wearing a three-piece riding habit she designed as part of her entry in the National Clothing Review. A navy blue top-stitched coat and jodhpurs are set off by a distinctive red vest.

Linda has interests other than clothing and horsemanship. She has played flute for three years with the Rondout Valley High School Band and is a member of the Select Ensemble, a group-within-a-group that does concert performances.

Our Bodies Get Second Chance

Yes, there can be a second chance for you to control your figure, have good health, a longer life and more fun.

The Home Economics Division of Ulster County Cooperative Extension will hold Second Chance classes on Nutrition (Beauty Inside Out), the Importance of Proper Exercise, Good Grooming Aids, and Low Calorie Cooking in Kingston and New Paltz. The Kingston classes are scheduled for June 3-10-17-24, with New Paltz classes scheduled for June 1-8-15-22.

Registration for the four two-hour classes is only $2, and both men and women are welcome in the classes. Registration deadline is May 25.

The problem facing millions of Americans is that they carry around anywhere from five to 100 pounds of excess fat. This is not a problem for just a few, for just women, or just the poor. It affects us all—if not each individual, someone in his family of circle of friends.

Phyllis W. Barlow, head of the Home Economics Division, notes that Americans spend millions each year trying to get thin in an easy way.

"They buy books, special formulas, special vitamins, minerals, or eat special combinations of foods or take drugs," she said.

"It's all in vain, because once they stop the special treatment they gain back what fat they have lost, if any. Most of these special treatments are health hazards."

"The body is a magnificent machine and should be cared for in a proper way every day. Therefore, learn to set up a way of living for the rest of your life that will work for you. There will be no magic in this new pattern for life, but it will make a new you."

Stanley Bike Is Talking Safety

KINGSTON—A novel talking bicycle that can move its rear wheel, light its stop, directional and front lights, and toot its horn is making bike safety an attractive measure for thousands of elementary school pupils in Ulster County.

Stanley, the Talking Bike, is the heart of the interesting, educational and unique program that draws so much interest from elementary school administrators, youth advisors and the youngsters themselves.

It takes a lot of work to put Stanley on stage for his usual 45-minute show. First, there's Officer Richard Scherer of the Kingston Police Department, an excellent public relations type who has appeared in front of the public in such unlikely places as Shea Stadium, where he sang between games of a New York Met doubleheader.

Then there's the cooperation of the Kingston Lions Club, which helped pay for building Stanley, and the Ulster County 4-H, which supplies the handout materials for follow-up bike safety programs and does the scheduling and transporting of the bike.

And last but not least there's Tom Atkins, the Ulster County 4-H division leader who is the voice and control of Stanley the Talking Bike. Atkins, who is also used to appearing in front of groups, remains hidden at all times for his Stanley performances.

Other service groups such as the Rondout Valley Lions Club and the New Paltz Lions Club have cooperated by making sure the 4-H handout educational materials are used in the schools, and by conducting bike inspections and bike rodeos.

The program has provided leader training for another county, won a first prize for a local Boy Scout troop, made a successful presentation a few years ago at a conference of the Driver and Safety Educators Association of New York, resulted in a record number of phone calls to a local TV show and has been requested by groups in Albany, Long Island and Connecticut.

In a unique blend of education, humor and audience participation, Scherer is on stage with Stanley for about 45 minutes discussing bicycle safety rules. There is much verbal exchange between Scherer, Stanley and the audience, resulting in a feeling of togetherness.

A set of lessons, quizzes, rules and regulations and bike inspection sheets is then given to the school principal with the notation that these materials are available in quantity from the 4-H Department. Each school or youth group is encouraged to carry on the program to its ultimate conclusion which consists of a bike safety inspection and bike rodeo.

Thanks to the Kingston Lions Club, the Ulster County 4-H can now make a 16-mm film and set of slides available for loan to any school requesting it.

Correct Canning Needs Fast Start

For best results with home freezing or canning, harvest the vegetables at prime eating stages, sort out defective or inferior products, and process as soon as possible, says P. A. Minges of Cornell University.

Sometimes the variety can make a difference, though usually the better ones for eating fresh are also the most suitable for processing. A few suggestions follow.

Tendercrop and closely related varieties like Early Gallatin and the Blue Lake group, either bush or pole, are preferred snap bean varieties. White-seeded varieties within these groups may be better for canning. Fordhook 242 and Thorogreen lima beans are excellent for freezing.

Nantes and Spartan Bonus likely will be quite satisfactory carrot varieties. Self Blanch cauliflower is one of the more tender varieties. White-spined cucumber varieties like Premier hold their green color better than black-spined ones.

Frosty and Perfected Freezer 60 are good freezing varieties though most of the wrinkle-seeded pea varieties are good. Dwarf Grey sugar is a suitable edible podded pea. Savoyed varieties of spinach may be preferred for freezing.

Many round tomato varieties are quite satisfactory for canning if the fruits are relatively free of blotchy ripening. A couple of exceptions may be the Heinz 1350 and Campbell 1327 varieties which often are flavorless when canned as whole or stewed tomatoes.

The pear-shaped types like Roma VF or Chico III are very good for making products like chili sauce or paste but are rather flavorless when canned whole. The pH (acid) readings of tomato varieties seem to vary so much that it is difficult to identify any of the newer ones that are consistently low. In limited observations, the yellow varieties appear to be in the same pH range as the currently popular reds.

Our Good Will Ambassadors

The Harlem Globetrotters are known throughout the world as Good Will Ambassadors for this country. The Kingston Indians are known throughout the eastern sector mainly and other parts of the United States as Kingston's Good Will Ambassadors.

The Indians, resplendent in their modern uniforms and with a reputation that few corps can achieve, will host their eighth annual PowWow Review on Sunday, May 30 at Deitz Stadium.

Those who like good marching music will see the best as top corps from the East compete in this extravaganza. For the hosts, it means a chance to earn some expense money to help carry them through another year of competition. It will give them a chance to make people aware that Kingston, New York, is not just a city that was the first capital of New York State but is a city with great pride because it has one the finest marching bands around.

In this Bicentennial year, the Kingston Indians are better than ever. They are a showcase for us and as our good will ambassadors, they cannot be equaled.

We salute this wonderful organization and hope that the Dietz Stadium grandstand will be filled for the annual Pow Wow Review.

Freeman Readers Write

Concerned Parent

The following letter was sent to Ewald B. Nyquist, Commissioner of Education, Albany, and a copy submitted to The Freeman.

As a concerned parent and member of the Onteora School District community, I urge you to make every effort to arrive at a decision concerning the board's recommendation with regard to Superintendent Marlow. The dissensions presently being created by this situation are proving most destructive of the healthy educational environment that should exist in this otherwise pleasant district.

Marlow's recent public declaration that he will not seek another term as Superintendent might cause you or any other concerned person to relax their sense of urgency under the false assumption that no further harm can occur. For what it is worth I offer this advice: my own association with Marlow was relatively brief but very personal and I found him to be a most complete and utter hypocrite; a politician in the worst sense of that Watergate tarnished word. It is noteworthy that he did not say that he would refuse a new offer by the board if the coming election resulted in a majority favoring him. Machiavelli might admire his subtlety.

I have tried very hard to understand this person and the actions of the board both pro and con and after many questions and much reflection have concluded that the many Board Workshop meetings were the strongest influencing factor to be considered. First his supporters: three ladies who have led a very sheltered and conservative life, are appalled at any criticism of highest authority and are so innocent of any knowledge of evil that they would likely vote for Nixon today. They have been known to wax nostalgic about the days when the board always voted 9 to 0 in favor of any suggestion made by the Superintendent. These ladies are all concerned with the honor of being a member of the Board of Education and of the obvious public spirit they display. To a great extent, however, they are usually conspicuous by their absence from any but public meetings and dinner functions and rarely concern themselves with the day to day work of the board. The one exception to this is a lady whose ability to ignore factual contradictions nothing short of phenomenal.

As to his opponents, it is interesting to note that Marlow not too long ago enjoyed the support of the majority of the board. John Mower and Sam Mercer, for example, both supported and defended Marlow early in their acquaintance.

Unfortunately for Marlow, most of the board members to spend many hours at the workshop sessions. Slowly there appeared an image of Marlow hidden from the public; attempt to rule by threat and coercion, directed at both staff members and the board which was once warned not to interview teachers or any staff members. The attempts of many months by Sam Mercer to institute and implement gravely needed and State mandated Remedial Reading and Speech Therapy classes were strongly opposed and obstructed by Marlow. Despite this he tried to take public credit for them when they were finally forced upon him.

One of the most revelatory series of events concerns the standard staff grievance hearings. For some time, grievances against the school or the superintendent were heard by the board which then asked Marlow for his comments after which the complainant was asked to leave the room while the board discussed the case and made its decision as to the validity of the board discovered on most occasions that Marlow reserved the most derogatory, sometimes even slanderous remark for after the departure of the complainant, no refutation being then possible. After a number of warnings by concerned board members and in the simplest interests of justice, the board was finally forced to take the unprecedented stand that Marlow had to be removed from the grievance hearings at the same time as the complainants.

After many, many such episodes, Marlow's talent for destruction finally succeeded in turning the board very determinedly against him and forced them to take, with great reluctance, this drastic step. The list of offenses Marlow committed against many parents is far greater than the charges brought by the board would indicate. They were too considerate of the embarrassment they might cause and refrained from asking them to make the public appearance that Marlow would have demanded.

As an indication of how strongly I feel about this, I intend to send copies of this letter to the local papers, hoping to encourage other parents to add their support to this grave issue. This, despite the fact I recognize I may be subjecting my children to the same anonymous threatening phone calls made to the children of Donald Lawson. I trust I can depend on the rational expectation that Marlow's anonymous supporters are as cowardly as their act indicates.

As summation, I think that the area of my greatest resentment in this entire affair concerns Marlow's ability to reveal how thin is the veneer of civilization and Christian charity covering our own raw feelings. I feel some small relief that far worthier persons (the board members devoted so many unpaid hours of public service, for example) are inevitably dragged down by Marlow to the vituperative and vengeful level of his existence. I am greatly saddened that the kindest thing I can find to say of Marlow is that I consider him to be too ill to be responsible for his actions and his statements.

Sir, it is within your power and it is your duty to excise this cancer before the infection spreads further. I urge you to do so with as little delay as possible.

A Raise in Question

Dear Editor: An Open Letter to Mr. Donald M. Lawson, President, Onteora Board of Education Dear Mr. Lawson:

The Onteora School budget comes up for a vote on May 26th, along with the election of candidates to fill three Board seats. We realize that due to space limitations within the budget document, many specifics are not listed separately but are lumped together as a total amount. One of the specifics which is not listed concerns Business Manager Dr. John Keough who, we understand, given himself (with Board approval) a 10 per cent salary raise. We also understand that this raise is larger than any raise given to any other member of the Onteora professional staff and will give Dr. Keough a of close to $33,000 for the 1976-77 school year. This amount of money has been allocated even though Dr. Keough's contract was not renewed and we were led to believe that he could not be employed by the district after next month unless, of course, this Board knows something or plans something we don't know about. Also, this nice, hefty 10 per cent raise Dr. Keough has given himself makes no sense in light of the fact that Mr. Howard's position as

The obvious political overtones which have become part of the Board's activities make us wonder about the morality and integrity of our esteemed community representatives. As taxpayers, we believe that the present Onteora Board of Education leaves much to be desired. We do not believe that the Conservation of Resources statement made in the budget document by you in your message to Onteora taxpayers validates a 10 per cent salary raise for one specific employee. As a matter of fact, this obvious total disregard for the taxpayers' money only goes to show that the Board's actions speak louder than their words. How can you honestly believe, Mr. Lawson, that this Board is thinking about keeping costs down, or even (in your own words) "trying to maintain and protect the resources of the District?" With your kind of protection, we can go broke.

Sincerely yours,

DONALD AND SHARON
GROENEWOLD

Stalemate Develops

Concerning Mr. Ford's victory in Michigan, a few observations:

1. The victory by Mr. Ford, although anticipated, was on a grand scale. At 65 per cent, it is second only to Vermont, whose 84 per cent for Ford suggests reciprocal vibrations between Ford and Vermont better left to romancers, than to analysts, to describe. It was a smashing victory, the more so since although Ford was expected to win, there lurked the possibility of another upset, which would have been the terminal upset for Mr. Ford.

2. What did it? Going in favor of Ford was of course the fact of his incumbency and, more important, his droit de seigneur as a home-town boy. One can never know how great that drag is, mostly because people tend to refuse to confess to a pollster that it has any significance at all—it is assumed to be parochial to vote for the local boy, unlike for the local sports team. Goldwater carried Arizona, and a very few other states. But when the fever is really running, you can lose even your own home state, as George McGovern discovered. And some thought that such a fever was running for Reagan.

And, of course, Ford had the disadvantage that Michigan in 1972 had come out for Wallace. A state that heavily exercised, that recently, over fundamental matters would in the normal course have been attracted to Reagan, whose objections to the drift of U.S. policy are more fundamentally stated than Ford's. Under the circumstances, the victory of Ford was particularly striking.

3. Both Ford and Reagan tried out new techniques. Ford guessed right, Reagan wrong. Ford put it on the line: if you turn me down in Michigan, you are throwing me out of the White House. He did this without, however, disparaging Reagan. And his well publicized train-trip was a return to the kind of frontier politics Ford is best at. When you make whistle-stop appearances, perforce you give short speeches. The shorter Mr. Ford's speeches, the more alluring. Reagan, by contrast, stayed away and hoped his momentum would carry him in. His leisurely weekend schedule was designed on the one hand to permit him to give away the state of Michigan as naturally belonging to Ford if he lost; while also allowing him, if by chance he won, to suggest how easy it has now become for him to win.

4. How does it now stand? It would appear obvious that Reagan will win the balance of the rim states, plus the all-important vote in California. While Ford will win in New Jersey, and Ohio.

Now it is not yet established which of the two men is the most popular candidate. The point was nervously, and ineffectively, made by the backers of Senator Hubert Humphrey in 1972 that although Senator McGovern had got away with the majority of the delegates, Humphrey had actually beaten McGovern in terms of total votes cast for him.

The state of California threw this into dramatic focus, the rule there being (it has since been changed) that the winner of the primary contest takes 100 of the delegates.

As things now stand, in the primaries in which voters declare their preferences for an individual candidate Reagan has won 2,118,179 votes, and Ford 2,686,354 votes. Ford is ahead by a ratio of 55.9 against Reagan's 44.1 per cent. But Reagan has 514 pledged delegates, Ford only 432. Although this would appear to be democratic profanation, it can't be readily established that it is any such thing. Because in several states in which Reagan won big blocs of delegates, the votes for Reagan delegates as opposed to votes for Ford delegates were not tabulated. It isn't at this point clear whether it is possible to know what the net count is.

That being the case, it is premature to say—anything. Probably we shall have to wait until there is a crystallization of Republican opinion. The establishmentarians will urge not so much the powers of Ford, as the security of Ford. The conservatives will continue to urge the proposition that anyone who can challenge a sitting president as effectively as Reagan has done, could, released from the shadow of the incumbent, make huge inroads into popular sentiment. The latter argument is, if not conclusive, at least appealing.

WASHINGTON—Spiro Agnew, the fiction writer, is now flacking his book around the country. Mr. Agnew refuses to talk about his criminal activities as Vice President because, he says, "I'm saving those for my memoirs."

It is a very clever ploy, but law enforcement officials all over the country are very concerned that, because of Mr. Agnew's policy, it is going to be harder than ever to get confessions out of people arrested for committing crimes.

They are predicting that many suspects will follow the Agnew line.

Louie the Lug has just been brought in for questioning after six members of the Cincittia mob were mowed down in a garage on Mother's Day. Louie was arrested as he was trying to pay his parking ticket in the garage with a smoking machine gun.

"Okay, Louie," the detective says. "You might as well make it easy on yourself and tell us what happened."

"I'm sorry, but I'm saving all that for my memoirs."

"Look, Louie, we have an open-and-shut case. You better talk or we're going to throw the book at you."

"Speaking of books, I've just completed a novel that I think you might be interested in. It's about a hit man for a mob who gets caught up in a Zionist conspiracy and falls in love with his secretary."

"We're not interested in your novel, Louie. We want to know about the Mother's Day Massacre in the Deep Throat Garage. The hit man hates the liberal press that is always writing nasty stories about him so he decides to steal an atomic bomb and blow up the Washington Post. The novel has a lot of sex in it. ## A Gummed-Up Probe

WASHINGTON — In scathing language that has been carefully classified, the General Accounting Office has blasted the Navy for hampering its investigation of the $16 billion Trident submarine program.

The GAO's broadside was accompanied by a separate, blistering letter to Navy Secretary J. William Middendorf II, complaining about the attempt to scuttle the investigation.

The nuclear-powered, missile-carrying Trident submarines are intended to supplement and eventually replace the Polaris and Poseidon subs, which now comprise our strategic underwater fleet.

As Congress' chief investigative arm, the GAO is supposed to make sure that the taxpayers are getting their money's worth from government programs. Members of Congress depend heavily on GAO reports to guide them in voting for appropriations.

But in the case of the Trident submarines, the GAO auditors charge that they have been obstructed by the Navy from getting all the facts. "We could not satisfy ourselves," declares the classified report, "that the information contained in this report concerning the TRIDENT missile system is a current, complete assessment of the missile program's status."

More specifically, the GAO alleged: "Under the restrictions placed on us, we were not permitted to discuss details with persons who, in our opinion, were more knowledgeable of the matters under discussion."

"Therefore, we had no assurance that the questions we asked were accurately related to those persons or whether the answers we received were complete. In addition, we encountered unreasonable delays in receiving documents we requested for our independent review."

The report, nevertheless, identified some technical problems within the Trident program and questioned whether the program could meet its schedule. The auditors also claimed a whopping $44.5 million had been misplaced and should have been charged to the Trident program.

In a confidential response, the Navy pleaded that "extenuating circumstances" had justified the restrictions and delays. It was also the Navy's policy, stated the reply, "that only those managers with extensive knowledge of the (Trident) program could speak for that office."

"This policy ... is not limited to GAO .... There is no indication that the policy was applied in a manner designed to withhold information to which GAO was otherwise entitled."

A Navy spokesman, responding to questions from our associate Jim Grady, reiterated that the Navy had not sought to hamstring the auditors or to cover up anything. As for the Trident program, the spokesman said "several problems have been identified and are being investigated." The Trident subs, he added, probably will come off the production line on schedule.

FOLEY'S FOLLY: It takes months for a government agency to squeeze the most modest appropriation out of Congress. But the process speeds up considerably when a powerful committee chairman wants to improve the decor at his lunch table.

On April 9, House Agriculture Chairman Thomas Foley, D-Wash., requested $1,798.60 to purchase 24 place settings and accessories. Of course, he wanted the finest Lenox china, suitable for serving the distinguished guests who drop by the committee offices for lunch.

A few days later, Foley remembered with horror that he had forgotten to order cups and saucers. He corrected this oversight on April 27, with a request for 24 tea cups and saucers at an additional cost of $496.80.

It took three more days for the expenditure to get approval. House Administration Chairman Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, wrote back on April 30: "The House Administration Committee is pleased to grant your request ..."

Foley and his guests are now eating in style.

WHERE'S EVERYONE: The Bicentennial tourists have been flocking into the Senate and House galleries to watch their elected representatives in action. The folks from back home often find no one paying attention to the droning, out-of-context oratory.

Throughout the proceedings, congressmen suddenly appear on the floor, conduct their business and just as suddenly disappear.

A few days ago, House Speaker Carl Albert finally asked the question the tourists have been wondering about. He looked up after the opening prayer and found the House floor virtually empty.

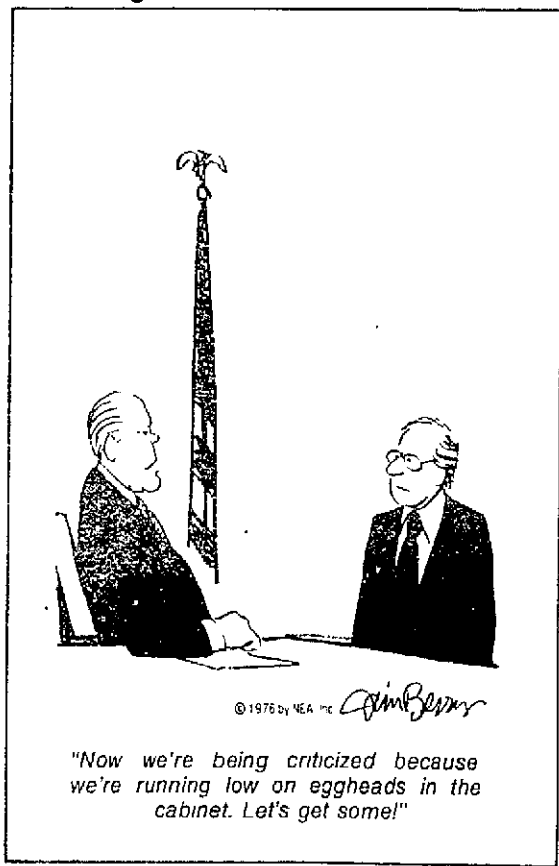

Frowning, he turned to an aide and whispered, quite audibly: "Where the hell is everyone?"

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration has spent almost $4.4 billion to fight crime, with no significant results. Our reports about LEAA's impotence have now been confirmed by independent studies, which recommend a major restructuring of the agency.

— It is illegal for candidates to solicit campaign contributions from corporations. However, we have obtained a copy of a letter, dated April 23, 1976, which President Ford sent to IBM asking the corporation to send "your maximum contribution in the enclosed envelope." A spokesman said the Congressional Campaign Committee had mailed the letter to IBM evidently by mistake.

— Congress is now using a computer to handle the tax withholdings of its employees. Since the task was turned over to the electronic marvel, dozens of checks have wound up at the wrong banks and mailboxes.

Our Good Will Ambassadors

The Harlem Globetrotters are known throughout the world as Good Will Ambassadors for this country. The Kingston Indians are known throughout the eastern sector mainly and other parts of the United States as Kingston's Good Will Ambassadors.

The Indians, resplendent in their modern uniforms and with a reputation that few corps can achieve, will host their eighth annual PowWow Review on Sunday, May 30 at Deitz Stadium.

Those who like good marching music will see the best as top corps from the East compete in this extravaganza. For the hosts, it means a chance to earn some expense money to help carry them through another year of competition. It will give them a chance to make people aware that Kingston, New York, is not just a city that was the first capital of New York State but is a city with great pride because it has one the finest marching bands around.

In this Bicentennial year, the Kingston Indians are better than ever. They are a showcase for us and as our good will ambassadors, they cannot be equaled.

We salute this wonderful organization and hope that the Dietz Stadium grandstand will be filled for the annual Pow Wow Review.

Concerned Parent

The following letter was sent to Ewald B. Nyquist, Commissioner of Education, Albany, and a copy submitted to The Freeman.

As a concerned parent and member of the Onteora School District community, I urge you to make every effort to arrive at a decision concerning the board's recommendation with regard to Superintendent Marlow. The dissensions presently being created by this situation are proving most destructive of the healthy educational environment that should exist in this otherwise pleasant district.

Marlow's recent public declaration that he will not seek another term as Superintendent might cause you or any other concerned person to relax their sense of urgency under the false assumption that no further harm can occur. For what it is worth I offer this advice; my own association with Marlow was relatively brief but very personal and I found him to be a most complete and utter hypocrite; a politician in the worst sense of that Watergate tarnished word. It is noteworthy that he did not say that he would refuse a new offer by the board if the coming election resulted in a majority favoring him. Machiavelli might admire his subtlety.

I have tried very hard to understand this person and the actions of the board both pro and con and after many questions and much reflection have concluded that the many Board Workshop meetings were the strongest influencing factor to be considered. First his supporters: three ladies who have led a very sheltered and conservative life, are appalled at any criticism of highest authority and are so innocent of any knowledge of evil that they would likely vote for Nixon today. They have been known to wax nostalgic about the days when the board always voted 9 to 0 in favor of any suggestion made by the Superintendent. These ladies are all concerned with the honor of being a member of the Board of Education and of the obvious public spirit they display. To a great extent, however, they are usually conspicuous by their absence from any but public meetings and dinner functions and rarely concern themselves with the day to day work of the board. The one exception to this is a lady whose ability to ignore factual contradictions nothing short of phenomenal.

As to his opponents, it is interesting to note that Marlow not too long ago enjoyed the support of the majority of the board. John Mower and Sam Mercer, for example, both supported and defended Marlow early in their acquaintance.

Unfortunately for Marlow, most of the board members to spend many hours at the workshop sessions. Slowly there appeared an image of Marlow hidden from the public; attempt to rule by threat and coercion, directed at both staff members and the board which was once warned not to interview teachers or any staff members. The attempts of many months by Sam Mercer to institute and implement gravely needed and State mandated Remedial Reading and Speech Therapy classes were strongly opposed and obstructed by Marlow. Despite this he tried to take public credit for them when they were finally forced upon him.

One of the most revelatory series of events concerns the standard staff grievance hearings. For some time, grievances against the school or the superintendent were heard by the board which then asked Marlow for his comments after which the complainant was asked to leave the room while the board discussed the case and made its decision as to the validity of the board discovered on most occasions that Marlow reserved the most derogatory, sometimes even slanderous remark for after the departure of the complainant, no refutation being then possible. After a number of warnings by concerned board members and in the simplest interests of justice, the board was finally forced to take the unprecedented stand that Marlow had to be removed from the grievance hearings at the same time as the complainants.

After many, many such episodes, Marlow's talent for destruction finally succeeded in turning the board very determinedly against him and forced them to take, with great reluctance, this drastic step. The list of offenses Marlow committed against many parents is far greater than the charges brought by the board would indicate. They were too considerate of the embarrassment they might cause and refrained from asking them to make the public appearance that Marlow would have demanded.

As an indication of how strongly I feel about this, I intend to send copies of this letter to the local papers, hoping to encourage other parents to add their support to this grave issue. This, despite the fact I recognize I may be subjecting my children to the same anonymous threatening phone calls made to the children of Donald Lawson. I trust I can depend on the rational expectation that Marlow's anonymous supporters are as cowardly as their act indicates.

As summation, I think that the area of my greatest resentment in this entire affair concerns Marlow's ability to reveal how thin is the veneer of civilization and Christian charity covering our own raw feelings. I feel some small relief that far worthier persons (the board members devoted so many unpaid hours of public service, for example) are inevitably dragged down by Marlow to the vituperative and vengeful level of his existence. I am greatly saddened that the kindest thing I can find to say of Marlow is that I consider him to be too ill to be responsible for his actions and his statements.

Sir, it is within your power and it is your duty to excise this cancer before the infection spreads further. I urge you to do so with as little delay as possible.

A Raise in Question

Dear Editor: An Open Letter to Mr. Donald M. Lawson, President, Onteora Board of Education Dear Mr. Lawson:

The Onteora School budget comes up for a vote on May 26th, along with the election of candidates to fill three Board seats. We realize that due to space limitations within the budget document, many specifics are not listed separately but are lumped together as a total amount. One of the specifics which is not listed concerns Business Manager Dr. John Keough who, we understand, given himself (with Board approval) a 10 per cent salary raise. We also understand that this raise is larger than any raise given to any other member of the Onteora professional staff and will give Dr. Keough a year of close to $33,000 for the 1976-77 school year. This amount of money has been allocated even though Dr. Keough's contract was not renewed and we were led to believe that he could not be employed by the district after next month, of course, this Board knows something or plans something we don't know about. Also, this nice, hefty 10 per cent raise Dr. Keough has given himself makes no sense in light of the fact that Mr. Howard's position as

The obvious political overtones which have become part of the Board's activities make us wonder about the morality and integrity of our esteemed community representatives. As taxpayers, we believe that the present Onteora Board of Education leaves much to be desired. We do not believe that the Conservation of Resources statement made in the budget document by you in your message to Onteora taxpayers validates a 10 per cent salary raise for one specific employee. As a matter of fact, this obvious total disregard for the taxpayers' money only goes to show that the Board's actions speak louder than their words. How can you honestly believe, Mr. Lawson, that this Board is thinking about keeping costs down, or even (in your own words) "trying to maintain and protect the resources of the District?" With your kind of protection, we can go broke.

Sincerely yours,
GROENEWOLD

Stalemate Develops

Concerning Mr. Ford's victory in Michigan, a few observations:

1. The victory by Mr. Ford, although anticipated, was on a grand scale. At 65 per cent, it is second only to Vermont, whose 84 per cent for Ford suggests reciprocal vibrations between Ford and Vermont better left to romancers, than to analysts, to describe. It was a smashing victory, the more so since although Ford was expected to win, there lurked the possibility of another upset, which would have been the terminal upset for Mr. Ford.

2. What did it do? Going in favor of Ford was of course the fact of his incumbency and, more important, his droit de seigneur as a home-town boy. One can never know how great that drag is, mostly because people tend to refuse to confess to a pollster that it has any significance at all—it is assumed to be parochial to vote for the local boy, unlike for the local sports team. Goldwater carried Arizona, and a very few other states. But when the fever is really running, you can lose even your own home state, as George McGovern discovered. And some thought that such a fever was running for Reagan.

And, of course, Ford had the disadvantage that Michigan in 1972 had come out for Wallace. A state that heavily exercised, that recently, over fundamental matters would in the normal course have been attracted to Reagan, whose objections to the drift of U.S. policy are more fundamentally stated than Ford's. Under the circumstances, the victory of Ford was particularly striking.

3. Both Ford and Reagan tried out new techniques. Ford guessed right, Reagan wrong. Ford put it on the line: if you turn me down in Michigan, you are throwing me out of the White House. He did this without, however, disparaging Reagan. And his well publicized train-trip was a return to the kind of frontier politics Ford is best at. When you make whistle-stop appearances, perforce you give short speeches. The shorter Mr. Ford's speeches, the more alluring. Reagan, by contrast, stayed away and hoped his momentum would carry him in. His leisurely weekend schedule was designed on the one hand to permit him to give away the state of Michigan as naturally belonging to Ford if he lost; while also allowing him, if by chance he won, to suggest how easy it has now become for him to win.

4. How does it now stand? It would appear obvious that Reagan will win the balance of the rim states, plus the all-important vote in California. While Ford will win in New Jersey, and Ohio.

Now it is not yet established which of the two men is the most popular candidate. The point was nervously, and ineffectively, made by the backers of Senator Hubert Humphrey in 1972 that although Senator McGovern had got away with the majority of the delegates, Humphrey had actually beaten McGovern in terms of total votes cast for him.

The state of California threw this into dramatic focus, the rule there being (it has since been changed) that the winner of the primary contest takes 100 of the delegates.

As things now stand, in the primaries in which voters declare their preferences for an individual candidate Reagan has won 2,118,179 votes, and Ford 2,686,354 votes. Ford is ahead by a ratio of 55.9 against Reagan's 44.1 per cent. But Reagan has 514 pledged delegates, Ford only 432. Although this would appear to be democratic profanation, it can't be readily established that it is any such thing. Because in several states in which Reagan won big blocs of delegates, the votes for Reagan delegates as opposed to votes for Ford delegates were not tabulated. It isn't at this point clear whether it is possible to know what the net count is.

That being the case, it is premature to say—anything. Probably we shall have to wait until there is a crystallization of Republican opinion. The establishmentarians will urge not so much the powers of Ford, as the security of Ford. The conservatives will continue to urge the proposition that anyone who can challenge a sitting president as effectively as Reagan has done, could, released from the shadow of the incumbent, make huge inroads into popular sentiment. The latter argument is, if not conclusive, at least appealing.

A Gummed-Up Probe

WASHINGTON — In scathing language that has been carefully classified, the General Accounting Office has blasted the Navy for hampering its investigation of the $16 billion Trident submarine program.

The GAO's broadside was accompanied by a separate, blistering letter to Navy Secretary J. William Middendorf II, complaining about the attempt to scuttle the investigation.

The nuclear-powered, missile-carrying Trident submarines are intended to supplement and eventually replace the Polaris and Poseidon subs, which now comprise our strategic underwater fleet.

As Congress' chief investigative arm, the GAO is supposed to make sure that the taxpayers are getting their money's worth from government programs. Members of Congress depend heavily on GAO reports to guide them in voting for appropriations.

But in the case of the Trident submarines, the GAO auditors charge that they have been obstructed by the Navy from getting all the facts. "We could not satisfy ourselves," declares the classified report, "that the information contained in this report concerning the TRIDENT missile system is a current, complete assessment of the missile program's status."

More specifically, the GAO alleged: "Under the restrictions placed on us, we were not permitted to discuss details with persons who, in our opinion, were more knowledgeable of the matters under discussion."

"Therefore, we had no assurance that the questions we asked were accurately related to those persons or whether the answers we received were complete. In addition, we encountered unreasonable delays in receiving documents we requested for our independent review."

The report, nevertheless, identified some technical problems within the Trident program and questioned whether the program could meet its schedule. The auditors also claimed a whopping $44.5 million had been misplaced and should have been charged to the Trident program.

"This policy ... is not limited to GAO ... There is no indication that the policy was applied in a manner designed to withhold information to which GAO was otherwise entitled."

A Navy spokesman, responding to questions from our associate Jim Grady, reiterated that the Navy had not sought to hamstring the auditors or to cover up anything. As for the Trident program, the spokesman said "several problems have been identified and are being investigated." The Trident subs, he added, probably will come off the production line on schedule.

See Dangerous Vulnerabilities in Carter

WASHINGTON — The mere fact that Joe Crangle, canny New York political pro, quietly took up residence in the Hay-Adams Hotel here on Monday — before Carter's very bad day Tuesday — reveals much about the aspirations he and other anti-Carterites still have for heading Carter off with Hubert H. Humphrey.

Carter's near-disaster in Tuesday's Michigan primary thus came as an unexpected lift for Crangle. He arrived here from Buffalo, where he is Democratic chairman of Erie County, armed with a plan to form an "independent committee" to promote Sen. Humphrey for the presidential nomination.

On the heels of Carter's razor-edge win over Rep. Morris Udall in Michigan, the state where Carter had everything on paper going his way, plus his smashing 12-point loss to Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. in Maryland, Joe Crangle's mission suddenly looked slightly less than impossible. Indeed, Carter's tumbles and near-tumbles in New York, Wisconsin, Connecticut, Nebraska, Michigan and Maryland have led some Democratic politicians to find incongruous — but dangerous — vulnerabilities in the former governor of Georgia.

On paper, Carter still seems all but unstoppable with at least 1,000 delegates before he even arrives at the Madison Square Garden convention. But on paper, backed by the powerful United Auto Workers, by the popular black Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit and by the party's most recent gubernatorial nominee, Carter seemed assured of a big win over Udall in Michigan. Politics is psychology as well as numbers, and Carter's poor showings Tuesday seem to prove, as one party official told us, "that a helluva lot of Democrats just don't want to vote for Jimmy Carter."

Crangle's "independent committee" will probably be headed by Illinois Rep. Paul Simon, a long-time Humphrey booster. It will differ radically from an earlier version which Humphrey himself aborted on April 29, following Carter's impressive victory in Pennsylvania.

The new committee, which will permit legal fund-raising and formation of a Humphrey-for-President organization, will shun visible connection with the Senator's political base in Minnesota. It was that connection, Crangle and Simon believe, which enabled Humphrey to veto the post-Pennsylvania effort.

Indeed, Crangle, Simon and other stop-Carter Democratic leaders were livid over Humphrey's damaging decision to hold a massive press conference on April 29 to announce his refusal "to authorize any committee" to promote his candidacy. The statement along with its dramatic setting was such overkill that a pro-Humphrey letter to 17,000 party officeholders signed by Simon never even got mailed. Now a similar letter is in the works.

There is not a particle of doubt that Humphrey, who turns 65 next week, covets the nomination. Humphrey is bitter that Robert Strauss, Democratic national chairman, and other party big wheels, made clear after Pennsylvania that they felt Carter had the nomination locked up. Moreover, Humphrey flatly disregarded Strauss's private advice that Humphrey not accept an invitation to breakfast with Democratic state chairmen at a May 7 meeting in Manhattan. As of today, his speaking schedule is full.

On Wednesday, for example, he flew to St. Clairsville, Ohio, to speak for Rep. Wayne Hays — who is running against Carter in six congressional districts in the June 8 presidential primary.

All this may be fruitless, but that does not make it pointless. Humphrey backers figure that if Brown can beat Carter in Nevada and Sen.

Frank Church can take him in Idaho and Oregon next Tuesday, coupled with a good Brown showing June 8 in New Jersey (backed by the organization's uncommitted slates) and a smashing Brown win in California the same day, Carter could never regain his momentum for the shoot-out at Madison Square Garden.

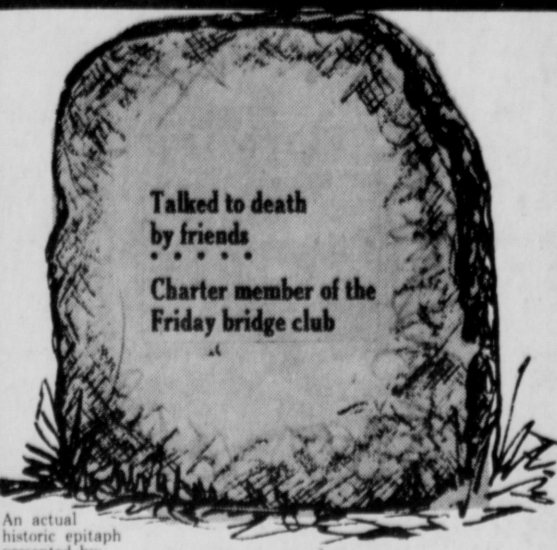

They reason that Humphrey would then be indispensable as the anti-Carter rally point. So Crangle and Simon will now establish a national organization — hoping that when the time comes it will in fact be needed.

Whether it will or not may now depend on whether Jimmy Carter can diagnose his curious ailment. Some intimates say his problem is that voters, suddenly perceiving him as a potential President, are scrutinizing him far more closely — and critically — than any other candidate. Anti-Carterites are not so kind. His poor showing results not from voter scrutiny, they believe, but from suspicion that what his opponents have been saying — that he is too evasive and self-righteous — may be close to the mark.

LWV Reports Findings On Revenue-Sharing

Editor's Note: Members of the League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster have made a detailed study of General Revenue Sharing. The following article summarizes the results of their findings.

General Revenue Sharing (GRS), the cornerstone of what has been called the "New Federalism," has become the largest U.S. domestic program. Known officially as the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act, $30.2 billion in general revenue sharing will have been distributed from Jan. 1972 to Dec. 1976 to nearly 39,000 jurisdictions. States receive one-third and local governments two-thirds of the funds the federal government provides with few strings or federal requirements.

GRS authorization expires at the end of 1976 and Congress has been under mounting pressure by the Administration, state and local officials to renew the program. The House Government Operations Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations and Human Resources is nearing completion of its markup of renewal legislation. Now is the time to begin a major effort towards gaining needed reforms to the program.

The League has consistently supported federal categorical aid programs aimed at poverty and discrimination and obtaining equal access to housing, employment and quality education. That was not support for the concept of categorical grants, the method of distribution, but for the substantive aid which the grants financed. In the same way, the League does not support or oppose revenue sharing per se.

However, the financing of those programs which the League supports depends on what happens to revenue sharing funds at the state and local levels. We are faced with the realities of the reduction and termination of many categorical programs. Therefore, working to secure an equitable amount of general revenue sharing for social services, minorities and the poor is an appropriate course of action.

Extension of general revenue sharing is fast becoming the political football of the 94th Congress and final passage may not come until well into the football and fall election season. Most observers agree that some kind of extension will take place this year, but how long and what form are the real issues. The Administration is taking a hard line on GRS, insisting on an almost exact replica of the previous program. Several influential members of Congress, including Committee Chairman Jack Brooks D. of the House Government Operations Committee, where the legislation originates in the House, and the chairmen of the House Appropriations and Budget Committees, George Mahon D. Tx. and Brock Adams, oppose the concept of GRS and will probably put hurdles in its path. On the other side of the Hill, Senator Russell Long D. La. will undoubtedly have his own line of questions and proposals to pursue.

The Senate, however, will not consider the legislation until it passes the House. The House Government Operations Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations and Human Resources has about completed markup of GRS legislation. The subcommittee bill is a compromise of three bills — the Administration bill, and reform bills introduced by Reps. Robert Drinan and Dante Fascell. The League of Women Voters favors the Fascell bill, and believes Congress should consider the following points in connection with General Revenue Sharing funds:

(1) The need to strengthen public participation procedures in the general revenue sharing program in order to assure adequate public hearings prior to budgetary decisionmaking by the local and state governments.

(2) Civil rights provisions should be strengthened so that GRS funds do not support discriminatory practices in public employment, private contractor employment and public services and facilities. The best handle to assure compliance with civil rights provisions is the cutoff of federal funds when violations are demonstrated. It is important that jurisdictions not be allowed to prevent cutoffs through prolonging administrative or judicial proceedings or other loopholes. Likewise, when discrimination is alleged, there should be a process for speedy resolution of the issue.

(3) The allocation formula should be changed to direct adequate funds to states and localities with the greatest need. While the League prefers the Fascell formula to accomplish this goal, we realize that it is politically difficult to redistribute revenue sharing funds — shifting funds from one jurisdiction or state to another. Therefore, the League and other groups have advanced a compromise proposal which provides that states and localities would receive their full entitlements under the existing formula. However, if Congress decides this year or in future years to increase the total funds for revenue sharing, the additional funds would be distributed proportionately using the Fascell formula. Jurisdictions not gaining under the Fascell formula would be "held harmless."

The Fascell formula changes the existing formula by substitution percentage of people below the poverty level for the per capita income factor. The Fascell formula compromise would conform more closely to what Congress intended four years ago in enacting revenue sharing to put "the money where the needs are." The effect of this compromise would be to provide more funds to inner city and poor rural areas, if Congress decides to increase GRS funds beyond present levels.

(4) Greater accountability should be structured into the GRS program through expanded reporting requirements by states and localities, and by the Director of the Office of Revenue Sharing to Congress. While forward appropriations should be provided in order to permit states and localities to anticipate the use of GRS funds in their budgets, Congress should conduct annual reviews of the appropriation levels in order to make adjustments based on changes in the economy.

How Our Legislators Voted

WASHINGTON, D.C. —

A measure to scale down a proposed experiment with flexible work hours in executive branch agencies received the approval last week of Ulster County Republican Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., R-25th Dist. and Benjamin A. Gilman, R-26th Dist. Rep. Matthew McHugh D-27th Dist., did not vote.

The vote, which passed 240 for and 112 against, adopted amendments which have the impact to make the experiment voluntary rather than mandatory for about 240 federal departments and agencies.

The amendments were attached to a bill later passed and sent to the Senate, which authorizes a three-year trial with work schedules other than the unvarying eight-hour-day and 40-hour-week. The innovation is intended to improve employee morale and productivity and ease commuter snarls.

Congressmen generally agreed that the flexible program deserves a trial. At issue is whether it should be mandatory or voluntary for all agencies not exempted from it by the Civil Service Commission.

On another major roll call vote, Fish and McHugh voted for a bill making organizational changes in the Federal Reserve System. The bill, for which 279 to 85, was sent to the Senate.

One provision would make the term of the Federal Reserve Board Chairman coincide with that of U. S. Presidents who appoint him or her, thus achieving better coordination of fiscal policy (set largely by the President and Congress) with monetary policy (determined by the federal government).

Fish and McHugh voted against and Gilman did not vote on an amendment to exempt professional fraternities and sororities from regulations requiring colleges to either cease supporting organizations which discriminate by sex or lose federal aid.

The amendment, which was rejected 121 for and 272 against, sought to protect sororities and fraternities organized by professional interests such as law or medicine from a 1972 federal law aimed at ending sex discrimination in education.

Its rejection leaves in tact Department of Health, Education and Welfare regulations including campus professional societies in the discrimination ban.

In the U. S. Senate, an amendment squeaked by, 46 to 45 to increase by $2 million, from $3 to $5 million, the appropriation for the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year.

U. S. Sen. Jacob Javits voted for it and Sen. James L. Buckley voted against it.

Paltz Oasis Flourishes

NEW PALTZ—Unlike the plethora of drug-related crisis centers that flourished for a time in the late 1960s and died a natural death, Oasis at the State University College at New Paltz has flourished and continues to grow in scope.

And its influence is bound to extend even further into the community, as a group of private citizens in New Paltz is working on the organization of a crisis intervention center in the village, with help from some people at Woodstock's answer to the people problem—Family. People interested in the project are asked to contact Nancy Kafka at 338-2370.

Oasis began in 1970 as a hotline to respond to drug problems. Funded by an annual $10,100 grant from Ulster County, plus funds from the State University, the center has expanded its services from about 100 calls in 1973-74 to about 1,000 calls the first semester of this school year alone.

Outside of Zach Rosen, the director, all of the 40 or so workers at Oasis are volunteers. Training is coordinated by Rosen and supervised by on-campus professionals. People are sought out who can empathize with others, are motivated, and are capable of helping others in a non-judgmental way, according to long time counselors Joe Batista and Peggy Smith.

Katherine Henry, a supervisor, felt that working at Oasis has made her more aware of the problems of a community. She believes hot lines are needed to help combat the problem of alienation that many people face today.

The sympathetic listeners are available 24 hours a day weekdays and from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. weekends on the ground floor of Deyo Hall. The problem is up to the individual—depression, a bad drug trip, busted for shoplifting or drugs, or just somebody to talk to. Occasionally a threatened suicide will phone. Usually serious problems require referral to a professional. Zach Rosen explained that Oasis' aim as a crisis intervention is to provide students with an alternative short term peer counseling service.

Some examples: if a person is arrested, a member of the "flying squad" will offer to accompany him to the police station. Some local lawyers will help on a barter basis, in exchange for services. When concerts are held on campus, Oasis has a team of eight there to watch for people who may "freak out" or who appear ill or disoriented.

Local Pupils Score Well In PEP Tests

KINGSTON — Pupils in local schools exceeded statewide norms in tests administered last fall, according to results announced by the State Education Department.

The fall, 1975, Pupil Evaluation Program (PEP) Tests showed that pupils of the Kingston City Schools Consolidated performed above the state as a whole in all six tests, and in five instances when compared to the county or to similar sized cities.

"All together, the record indicates that Kingston City Schools Consolidated has a strong achievement record in the basic skills," said Superintendent Louis A. Salzmann.

The PEP tests are mandated for all public and non-public third, sixth and ninth graders. Approximately one million students are tested yearly in reading and mathematics.

Local tests showed third graders scoring 85 in reading and 93 in mathematics; sixth graders scored 80 on both tests; and ninth graders scored 71 on reading and 76 on mathematics.

State reference points for the tests were established by the State Education Department in 1966 so that 77 per cent of the student population in the third, sixth and ninth grades would be above the reference point and 23 per cent below.

The statewide reference point now serves as a guideline against which the results of subsequent years are viewed. It is also possible in the state report to compare local results with current statewide performance, as well as with comparison groups including the county and other similar-sized cities.

"The results for grade three are favorable," Salzmann said. "Performance in reading and math has been above the state reference point for at least the last four years. In addition, recent results show slight gains over previous years. Kingston surpasses all comparison groups in both subjects at this level."

Salzmann said that sixth grade results also appear positive. "Both subjects are above the state reference point," he noted. "Reading is maintained at the 1974 level, while math shows a slight gain. These results are noteworthy because New York State as a whole has been showing a progressive decline over the past five to seven years. Kingston's performance in grade six also exceeds the county and cities of similar size."

Speaking of grade nine results, Salzmann noted that there had been a slight drop this year in reading and math. "The 1975 results also show skill proficiency slightly below the state reference points in math and five per cent below in reading."

Salzmann noted that ninth grade Kingston students performed better than the state as a whole in both subjects, while math exceeded comparison group scores.

"On the state level the ninth grade, like the sixth, has shown a progressive drop," he noted. "This decline is similar to trends occurring throughout the country."

The State Education Department cautions that while the test results are viewed by school administrators as important indicators of performance of the basic skills, they cannot be used to evaluate the total educational program.

Onteora Board Elections

Vanacore: Someone Who Cares

SHOKAN — "Our school district needs someone who cares what happens, wholly, throughout the district," says Rita E. Vanacore, a candidate for the Onteora Board of Education in the May 26 election.

"It needs someone who will listen and present facts from all areas, someone whose main concern is the welfare of all our children and their educational wellbeing. I feel I am that person."

Mrs. Vanacore feels that the area one resides in should not be a political issue. "People feel a need to vote one onto the school board who lives in the same area as they do. The false sense of security one gets by feeling their township is equally represented must be eradicated."

She also feels that the district must remove the schools from a "statistical status" and put them on a more personal basis.

"The comments from present board members that each school should be treated equally, that equal funding in order to be fair to each school is a misconception," she said.

"The similarity between raising a family and upgrading a school district are more than coincidental. We all know that each child as a family member cannot be treated equally. Equality and fairness are not synonymous in this situation. Each child has their own unique needs and weaknesses that must be catered to and strengthened in order to produce a well rounded and productive adult."

gram. I was chairman of last year's Budget Review Committee."

Basic Skills—"I've strongly supported the board's current efforts to give its highest priority to providing a level of reading, writing and math that will enable a student to succeed in the adult world."

Responsiveness—"I've always been available to meet with community groups and individuals to get comments and suggestions about the schools. I take my title of 'trustee' very seriously and firmly believe my job is to represent the public to the schools."

WOODSTOCK — John Mower, a candidate for reelection to the Onteora Board of Education in the May 26 election, has called on the district's voters to support the proposed school budget for 1976-77.

"The 7.5 per cent increase is in line with current economic conditions," said. "It respects the needs of both the taxpayer and the student."

"As a board member, I have endorsed such prudent measures as cutting one major administrative post, holding staff positions to last year's levels, and directing money into preserving Onteora's physical assets. This is a responsible budget."

As a candidate for reelection, Mower feels the public can support him because

"I want to prepare students for success in adult life by providing strong programs in the three R's and vocational skills."

"I listen. Before taking a position, I consult a wide variety of people. I actively solicit comments and suggestions. I respect opposing points of view."

"My experience as a board member and knowledge of the district can continue to be an asset to the community."

Mower listed his beliefs and achievements since his election four years ago.

John Spratt: 'Cooperation'

WEST HURLEY — "As a member of the board I will work toward restoring a spirit of cooperation and enhancing public confidence in our school board and our administration," says John Spratt, a candidate for the Onteora Board of Education in the May 26 election.

"Onteora school district residents have enthusiastically supported our school system over the years," he said. "They have provided the resources to enable a fine staff to attain the quality of education for which Onteora is known."

"The conflict in the school district over the past year has been a distraction from constructive efforts on behalf of our children. My long term interest and familiarity with the school district, my leadership experience in various community activities and my management experience in private industry will assist me in this endeavor."

Outlining his position relative to Dr. Frank M. Marlow's employment with the school district, Spratt said: "The superintendent's status in the school district is presently in the hands of the State Commissioner of Education. If the superintendent is reinstated the school district should allow him to work out his contract until it expires in June, 1977, but the contract should not be renewed."

Kasper: Positive Thinking

BOICEVILLE — Betty Kasper, a candidate for the Onteora Board of Education in the May 26 election, feels that more emphasis should be placed on the achievements of the district.

"There are a great deal of positive things going on at the Onteora schools," she said. "I believe we should be proud of these accomplishments."

"Our students are probably the best prepared of any school district in the area, both academically and in terms of extracurricular activities."

"Our staff is well trained and dedicated to quality education for the students. Many of our teachers continue to improve their skills by taking in-service courses. "Above all, Onteora students achieve at a high level and continually bring honor to the district," she said, stressing such examples as the Onteora marching band, softball and ski teams and student-won scholarships.

Mrs. Kasper also believes that Onteora students who continue their education are well prepared for colleges and technical schools.

"The Onteora High School has a variety of programs that help students get a head start on college studies or else gives them on-the-job training for more technical jobs."

"The Onteora school system must continue to provide quality education at a reasonable cost. I believe the residents should more the excellent programs available to the students, instead of criticizing the district continually," she concluded.

"The welfare of our whole school district and the final goal of an outstanding educational environment for each individual student is at stake."

Planning Winter Program

James Lunn and Marie Smith are shown planning the winter program of the Ulster County Chapter of the Association for Children With Learning Disabilities at YMCA Frost Valley. The program is made possible by an IBM community service contribution. Applications are now being taken by the chapter for the summer program.

Group Purchasing Aids Hospitals

KINGSTON —Group purchasing by 30 area hospitals has resulted in substantial savings and "an outstanding help in reducing hospital costs," according to Edwin Cahill, director of purchasing for Benedictine Hospital.

Benedictine has been involved in cooperative buying for many years through Institutional Commodity Services Corporation and Hospital Bureau and is an active member of the Cooperative Buying Association of Northern Metropolitan Hospitals.

The association keeps costs in line by grouping its volume buying and making price demands that a single institution cannot make by itself. Presently it is purchasing supplies valued at $7.5 to $8 million at a savings of $1.75 to $2 million annually.

Participation in CBA is voluntary with purchasing agents from the member institutions doing the bulk of the work, keeping overhead to a minimum.

Personnel from the hospitals agree on what products should be selected to bid and competitive bids are received on each product annually. Among the goods contracted are linens, paper products, oxygen, medical-surgical items, respiratory therapy equipment, laboratory supplies, dietary supplies and pharmaceuticals.

Cahill said that with the market changing so rapidly along with a corresponding increase in the accumulation of information necessary, "the group has been instrumental in helping us cope with these changes skillfully."

As a participating member, Benedictine is beginning to see that a member who lends a helping hand not only benefits his own facility, but helps the health field in general. The most important gain however is that the savings can be passed on to people using the health care facilities.

Use Of Steel Traps Condemned

KINGSTON —The Ulster County SPCA has issued a statement condemning the use of steel jaw traps as cruel and inhumane, stating it can see no justification for the continued use of this barbaric instrument in the 20th century.

The SPCA said that more than 11 million animals are reported trapped in the United States each year for fur, with some 90 per cent of this number taken in steel jaw traps, a vise-like spring-driven clamp arrangement that snaps shut on the paw or leg of the victim.

One objection raised, beyond the suffering of the animal that often drives it to capture, is that many states do not require trappers to check their sets at regular intervals. New York has such a law, but it is considered almost impossible to enforce.

The trap is non-selective. It may catch three or four other animals before the sought after fur bearing one is captured. Some are the family pets, three-legged dogs and cats. The SPCA suggests that the instant-kill Conibear trap be used instead to spare the animal suffering.

SPCA President Mary Russell urges those who wish to see steeljaw traps abolished write their congressmen asking them to support HR 66, a bill to restrict the use of some traps.

Red Tape and New U.S. Embassy in Moscow

More Than Detente Needed

MOSCOW (UPI) — U.S. diplomats recently handed over to Soviet officials three bulky brown paper rolls, each weighing more than 100 pounds, containing the final blueprints and technical drawings for a new American embassy in Moscow.

For both sides it was a significant step in an extraordinarily complicated, expensive and drawn-out undertaking. But the whole thing still is far from completion.

Negotiations on the building of a new U.S. Embassy here and a new Soviet diplomatic complex in Washington have been going on for more than a decade. Yet not a single brick has been laid on either site and neither embassy is likely to be completed before the 1980s.

"Rome wasn't built in a day either," one American diplomat said, "although I guess there was a bit more to it."

American officials describe the sprawling embassy compound planned for Moscow as the biggest and most expensive overseas construction operation ever launched by the U.S. State Department.

By current estimates, the total cost will be approximately $100 million.

The move was made necessary by a rapid expansion of manpower at the U.S. mission here — now totaling 145 diplomats and their families — that brought on severe overcrowding at the present embassy.

Officials also want to eliminate continual housing problems caused by a shortage of adequate apartments in Moscow by having living quarters for the bulk of the staff on the embassy grounds.

The final blueprints handed over on April 26 for Soviet approval show an almost self-sufficient community situated on a 10-acre site just behind the present embassy building.

Walled and liberally sprinkled with trees, the new compound will be horseshoe shaped and include a school, approximately 130 apartments, a seven-floor chancery building, plus movie theater, cafeteria, gymnasium, medical offices and underground parking for 125 vehicles.

The whole issue of building new embassies here and in Washington is governed by two basic agreements hammered out in talks that began in the mid 1960s. One, signed in 1969, settled on sites in the respective capitals, and the other, signed in 1972, included the conditions of construction.

They cover in excruciating detail such topics as preparation of the sites (done by the host country free of charge) to whether building materials can be imported duty free (they can) to the maximum height of each chancery —

577.28 feet in Moscow and 446.77 feet in Washington.

Each side agrees to provide the site for 85 years rent free, not to tax the property and not to "create or permit conditions that will interfere with full access to them and their proper use and enjoyment."

The agreements also call for each side to submit all its blueprints and plans for approval by local authorities — something that the Soviets completed in Washington last year.

But because of the complicated design of the U.S. Embassy here — and because by agreement work here and Washington must proceed simultaneously — construction is not expected to begin at least until next year.

Before that must come yet another round of highly-detailed negotiations on contracting out the building. That involves the delicate question of how much work each country will insist on doing itself and how much it will permit workers from the other side to do.

Preliminary American plans call for the Soviet side to carry out all excavation, landscaping and much of the basic structural work, with Americans or West Europeans brought in to handle the finishing.

Here, too, lie potential problems. For example, warehousing of materials. U.S. officials say they must negotiate with the Soviets on where and how the materials can be stored while construction is underway, and what sort of security will be arranged.

A bigger problem that may ultimately be most responsible for delays are the 1980 summer Olympic games, to be held in Moscow. The Soviet Union already has a persistent shortage of skilled construction workers, but U.S. officials fear the situation could become worse as manpower is diverted to massive preOlympic building programs planned for the Soviet capital.

It's Raining...

You've heard the expression "it's raining cats and dogs," well, Waterville, Maine, as well as other New England areas recently had four days of rain and showers, and the weatherman wasn't too optimistic that it would end soon. This small black and white feline, a resident of an animal shelter in Waterville, is looking for a way in out of the rain in this driver's eye view. (UPI)

Horrendous Times For Rio Traffic

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — A New Yorker who lives here says he gets his kicks hanging around a corner drugstore watching Brazilian drivers turn left from the right-hand lane. Although Brazil's traffic problem has some amusing aspects, it is also tragic.

A recent traffic engineering study said accident indices in Brazil are 15 times higher than in the United States, and the road deaths per 100,000 inhabitants is more than three times higher — 12 in the United States as compared to 41 in Brazil.

Rio traffic experts blame part of the problem on Brazil's relatively recent entry into the automotive world.

Fifteen years ago almost all cars on the road were imported by wealthy persons at great expense.

But now Brazil is the eighth largest producer of cars and trucks in the world and the greatest part of its almost one-million-unit annual production goes to the rapidly expanding domestic market.

As a result a lot of relatively inexperienced drivers are on the roads.

Other officials are on record as blaming the problem on poor roads and corruption in driver instruction and testing.

Whatever the cause, the result is horrendous traffic problems. Some examples: Rio has several semipermanent, mini-traffic jams at popular intersections. Blame the large numbers of people turning left from the middle or right-hand lanes, and vice versa.

Nature and the Rio motorist abhor a vacuum. Leave a reasonably safe distance between you and the car in front of you, and a Rio driver will come fill it up — even if the lane he's leaving was moving faster.

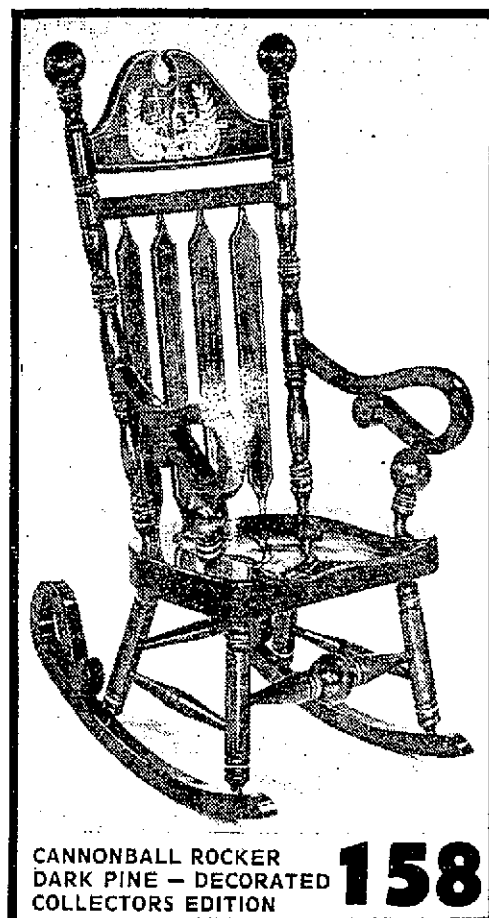

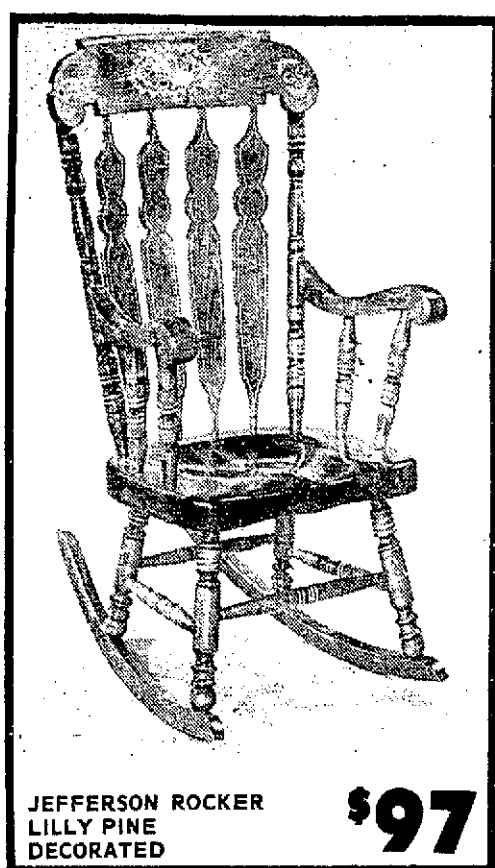

Street backed up? Try the sidewalk. you can honk the pedestrians out of the way, and someone will surely let you back into traffic — if you force them to.

Take a bus if you can swim. Rio's speedy bus drivers tumble their loaded vehicles into the city's open canal system with unnerving regularity.

The War Against Poverty Still Being Waged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Remember the war on poverty? A lot of people thought it got misplaced on the battlefields of Vietnam. Some believe it was laid waste in the urban riots of 1968. Others think it was dismantled by President Nixon and filed away with other rhetoric from Lyndon Johnson's "Great Society."

Samuel Martinez, a 43-year-old Coloradan who is the new director of the government's antipoverty program, says it might not be a "war" any more, but that the effort to eliminate poverty from American society is still flourishing — even if less ambitious and controversial than in its heyday in the 1960s.

Martinez is director of the Community Services Administration, the agency created to replace the Johnson era's Office of Economic Opportunity.

President Ford appointed Martinez to take over the demoralized and embattled antipoverty agency in March. He formerly was regional director for both OEO and the Colorado state labor department.

Martinez, of Lakewood, Colo., already has set out to reorganize the agency and generate new enthusiasm among CSA employees. At the same time, he is more modest about the agency's goals than his early predecessors.

"The war on poverty was mislabeled," he said in an interview. "Conceptually, it promised more than it could deliver."

"We find that a lot of people, from John Q. Public to Congress to private enterprise, still believe the war on poverty is the Community Services Administration. They couldn't be further from the truth."

The OEO began as an umbrella agency for all government antipoverty activities. When he took office in 1969, Nixon began transferring many of its functions — manpower training and legal services — to older, politically safe federal departments. OEO was left as a skeletal administrative office in the White House.

The new CSA, however, retains community action, one of the most controversial antipoverty efforts of a decade ago. Community action agencies once angered local governments by using federal funds to support homegrown activists using street demonstrations and sit-ins to demand improved public services for the poor.

"When they were first set up," Martinez said, "they attracted some very volatile people who saw them as a tremendous opportunity to turn the problem around overnight. They tended to alienate city hall, mayors and the government."

"The system needed to be refined, to find a way to link community action with municipal government. As there began to develop a little sophistication, there was a realization that they had to make a contribution, too."

Martinez said 875 local community action agencies remain, and they receive the bulk of his office's $500 million annual budget.

"The mayors now see the action agencies as a good thing," he said. "They provide a forum where frustrations can be vented, ideas exchanged and resources identified."

Locally, community action agencies operate a wide range of programs, including comprehensive neighborhood service centers, Head Start programs for needy preschool children, job training, food assistance and health care.

On the federal level, he said, the CSA's most ambitious project has involved "winterizing" the homes of poor people.

Growing out of the Arab embargo fuel shortages of 1973, the program has resulted in fuel-saving insulation of 40,000 homes out of an estimated eight million needing it, a pilot fuel subsidy for the poor, and creation of emergency fuel depots.

Real Bargain in Fun City

NEW YORK (UPI) — Across the street from the famous Waldorf-Astoria, a frail little woman wearing a kerchief makes her way to the lonely lobby of an almost-empty hotel.

"I thought I'd stay a year or two at the longest," she says. "But life has a way of holding you."

For 15 years the woman has lived at the Shelton Hotel, a once-grand building with 1,100 rooms at a prestigious address between Lexington Avenue and 48th Street.

Today it has only eight residents, with a staff of 13, and the owners would like to move them out. But they can't.

The little woman in the kerchief and her fellow tenants are protected from eviction by rent control laws. They couldn't get a better deal anywhere in the city.

Their average rent is $3 a day, including maid service, maintenance and an elevator operator.

The former leaseholders of the hotel had wanted to convert the 32-story structure to an office building. But some of the tenants balked at moving out, despite some attractive money offers.

Last December, after lengthy litigation, efforts at conversion ended. There was a default in mortgage payments.

The Dollar Savings Bank was left stuck with the deed — and saddled with staff salaries and a $225,000 to $250,000 a year tax bill.

Payments to tenants in return for their moving — which reached at least $15,000 apiece at one point — have ceased. The outlook is now for transforming the hotel into an apartment building instead of a commercial property.

"The city lost thousands of jobs plus a couple of million a year in real estate taxes they would have had from a new office building," said Stanley Stahl, one of the former leaseholders, in commenting on how the tenants were able to prolong litigation and stay put, thwarting plans for the office structure.

Stahl said the last holdouts "wanted huge, huge money ... there wasn't enough money in circulation to buy them out to avoid having this long, protracted hunt."

Thomas Hunt, a vice president in the Dollar Savings Bank's mortgage department, said the thinking of some tenants apparently was "somebody wants to get possession. Why give up an apartment if you can possibly pick up 40 or 50 or $60,000?"

The tenants most amenable to moving out were the ones paying higher rents. Because of provisions of the rent laws enacted many years ago and designed to cope with a housing shortage, a tenant who has lived in a particular building for a long period may pay an extremely low rental and therefore be reluctant to move.

Those still at the Shelton, for the most part, are elderly and living alone.

Police say they are unaware of any vandalism problems at the hotel, despite its wide open spaces.

In the red-carpeted lobby, a "closed" sign hangs at the registration desk.

Off the lobby are the shuttered doors of what were once a coffee shop and a newsstand.

Gerhorn Expands Its Line

KINGSTON — Gerhorn Auto Parts, doing business as L & M Auto Parts, 114-222 and 213-215 East Strant, has announced the opening of its new foreign car yard and auto repair shop. The firm, Kingston's largest auto wreckers, now has an acre for foreign cars, for hard-to-find parts. The new repair shop features expert and experienced workmen prepared to do complete, major auto repair, with the latest equipment including a frame-straightening machine and all necessary welding apparatus. In addition to the firm's full inventory of new, used, and factory rebuilt parts, Gerhorn has many questions pertaining to automobiles, and is linked by teletype with many other auto wreckers throughout the Eastern seaboard.

Gas Is Not Fleet Cost Culprit

NEW YORK (UPI) — The cost of operating company automobiles has skyrocketed in recent years but the rise in the price of gasoline has little to do with it.

In fact, the country's leading expert in the field says gasoline has gone up least of any of the costs of operating business cars — only 205.6 per cent since 1940, much less than the inflation of money since then.

Rufus E. Runzheimer, Jr., of Rochester, Wis., runs a firm that provides a cost statistical base for the American Automobile Association, the Canadian Automobile Association and many business firms.

More than 150,000 drivers of business cars are governed by rules formulated for their companies by Runzheimer. The operating cost of these cars runs to about $450 million a year and it is going up much too fast, Runzheimer said, so something has to give.

What is the big cost in operating business cars, if fuel isn't?

It's insurance, which cost an average of $427 last year against only $53 in 1940, a jump of 705 per cent!

The other costs that have gone up most, Runzheimer said, also are fixed, having little relation to mileage: Blue-book depreciation, taxes including registration fees, and interest on financing the purchase of the car. Together with insurance, these fixed charges have jumped from an average of $328 in 1940 to an estimated $1,990 for 1976.

But Runzheimer said extravagant and luxurious habits also have run the cost up. He said the general switch to eight-cylinder motors from six cylinders in 1960 and the use of air conditioning were unnecessary expenses.

About the only area in which the rise in gasoline prices hurt, he said, was where companies are careless about letting employees use business cars for personal trips. He said a more careful drawing and enforcement of rules about that could save many companies up to 10 per cent on their car bills. He also said many employees are allowed company cars who have no legitimate reason to get such a perquisite.

But, Runzheimer said, by far the most logical and imperative move would be to buy smaller cars. "Some firms already have begun to do this, but not nearly enough," he said. "Too many firms still waste money by being too prestige-conscious."

The other costs that have gone up most, Runzheimer said, also are fixed, having little relation to mileage: Blue-book depreciation, taxes including registration fees, and interest on financing the purchase of the car. Together with insurance, these fixed charges have jumped from an average of $328 in 1940 to an estimated $1,990 for 1976.

But Runzheimer said extravagant and luxurious habits also have run the cost up. He said the general switch to eight-cylinder motors from six cylinders in 1960 and the use of air conditioning were unnecessary expenses.

About the only area in which the rise in gasoline prices hurt, he said, was where companies are careless about letting employees use business cars for personal trips. He said a more careful drawing and enforcement of rules about that could save many companies up to 10 per cent on their car bills. He also said many employees are allowed company cars who have no legitimate reason to get such a perquisite.

But, Runzheimer said, by far the most logical and imperative move would be to buy smaller cars. "Some firms already have begun to do this, but not nearly enough," he

BROOKLYN

Brooklyn has long played the role of the nation's jester. Those who would own up to hailing from Brooklyn were greeted with hoots and cat-calls. 'Them Bums' earned a unique place in the Baseball Hall of Fame. A young man living in Brooklyn today has compiled a volume of pride-inducing facts about the mighty borough through the years: a Bicentennial bouquet to Brooklyn.

"Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore...
I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

George Washington, Rudolph Valentino, and Emma Lazarus — who penned these famous lines — had two things in common. All three influenced today's America — and all three made a part of their contribution in Brooklyn.

For 350 years Brooklyn has played a key role in American history. Today it is our fourth largest urban community, still filling its traditional role as welcoming home of immigrants to America. The new Brooklyn is undergoing a dramatic fact-lift and resurgence after a period of undeserved neglect. A neglect that began, ironically, when the opening of the Brooklyn Bridge (long the world's largest) in 1883 transformed Brooklyn into the "bedroom borough" of Greater New York.

Brooklyn poet Emma Lazarus, herself from an immigrant family, wrote the Statue of Liberty inscription welcoming newcomers to New York. The thousands of Italians, Irish, Germans, and Eastern Jews who flocked to the factories of her day have given way to new waves of Haitians, Middle Easterners, and Puerto Ricans. Brooklyn has absorbed them ation stems from the Dutch, who provided refuge for an English religious dissenter, Lady Deborah Moody, and her little band of followers. George Washington worshipped here (later, he was driven out by the British in the 1776 Battle of Brooklyn). And long before the abolition of slavery, a community of free blacks was thriving in Weeksville, now Crown Heights.

In the nineteenth century, downtown Brooklyn grew into a major cultural center with numerous theaters and the renowned Brooklyn Academy of Music, where Caruso died singing. The city's fine homes graced elegant, tree-lined boulevards. Brooklyn's own daily paper, The Eagle, claimed Walt Whitman as an editor.

At the other end of the city Coney Island and other gingerbread seaside resorts played host to Edgar Allan Poe and P. T. Barnum. In the early 1900's, rural Brooklyn was the first home of the silent film industry — Valentino rode the dunes of Coney Island as "The Sheik."

Brooklyn Firsts Then and Now

From the pioneering "please touch" approach of the Brooklyn Children's Museum to Margaret Sanger's World War I crusade for family planning, Brooklyn has contributed many notable firsts to America. Brooklyn shipyards outfitted the ironclad Monitor for its Civil War victory over the Confederate Merrimack. The urban electric trolley was developed in Brooklyn, street railways became so widespread that the local baseball team started out as the Brooklyn "Trolley-Dodgers."

Today this venerable city is in the forefront of imaginative urban revitalization. Brooklyn's downtown is the birthplace of the brownstone movement in the 1960's, that demonstrated the dramatic possibilities for restoring historic urban neighborhoods. Similarly, rehabilitation is currently upgrading the Brooklyn waterfront, largest on the east coast — notably at the historic Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Brooklyn's resurgence is due to the flexibility and hard work of its "urban pioneers." The city's immigrant families once helped build America's largest industrial center while they carved out new lives for themselves and their children. Today's residents are just as strongly involved in the preservation and rehabilitation of this proud heritage.

An antique map of the Battle of Brooklyn, showing the actions of General Washington and the Prospect Park battle site is offered, free, from the publishers of The New Brooklyn '76. ## Four New Yorkers Singed the Declaration of Independence...

Philip Livingston

Before New York was a state, it was a province. And, as a province, sent four of its own as representatives to Philadelphia to sign the Declaration of Independence. Looking back in retrospect, the four had much in common.

Two were from Long Island and the family of one of them owned a manor of some 160,000 acres encompassing large portions of present day Dutchess and Greene Counties. Rhinebeck and the city of Hudson had their beginnings on this land. Another signer was from Brooklyn Heights and one hailed from what is now the Bronx.

There was much at stake for all four when they signed on the proverbial dotted lines. All four—Philip Livingston, Francis Lewis, William Floyd and Lewis Morris — had estates that were ultimately lost when the British took over New York City and the surrounding area.

They had a common denominator, too, in the fact that two of the signers were Yale graduates, and all four were ambitious politicians who were well-versed in the management of their country estates.

The best known of the New York signers was Philip Livingston, whose family's 160,000 acres spread out across the Hudson River from Kingston and northward.

Born in 1716 into one of the two great families of the province of New York, he was the son of Philip and Catherine Van Brugh Livingston and was descended from a line of Scottish earls. As manor proprietors, the Livingstons had known for two centuries what it was like to have financial and political power. It had been Philip's grandfather Robert who had come to the colonies to seek his fortune and, by the time Robert died in 1728, he had acquired the 160,000 acres here in the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Born into such prominence, Livingston was given the opportunity of an advanced education. When he received a degree from Yale College, he joined a small handful of his generation in all of New York to receive such an education.

Leaving Yale in 1737, Philip became a merchant in New York City and, in 1740, married Colonel Dirck Ten Broeck's daughter, Christina. They first took up residence in a fine town house on Duke Street in New York City. That house was later used as a barracks by the British.

The couple also commuted, during the early years of their marriage, to the estate they also maintained at Brooklyn Heights. It overlooked New York Harbor into which Livingston's ships brought his increasing wealth. Through lucrative privateering during the French and Indian War, he added to his fortune.

Like his Duke Street house, the Brooklyn Heights mansion was also later taken over by the British, who turned it into a Royal naval hospital. Long neglected after the Revolution, it was eventually destroyed by fire.

As a middle-aged, prosperous merchant with a powerful family political tradition, Livingston became active in New York City politics. He was elected to the General Assembly in 1759. Four years later when Parliament began to tighten Colonial regulations and impose taxation, Philip was one of the first to speak out against their actions.

When the English Parliament closed the port of Boston in 1774 in retaliation for the "Boston Tea Party," New York's Sons of Liberty worked to drum up support for a "General Congress." Livingston was one of the wealthy merchants instrumental in calling together a meeting that resulted in the election of a committee of Fifty-One to keep in touch with other colonies.

Livingston was also on hand at the First and the Second Continental Congress and was the presiding officer at the Provincial Convention in April, 1775. As a member of both the Second Continental Congress and New York's Provincial Congress, he maintained a heady schedule, racing back and forth by horse or carriage since he was forced to divide his time between the two political happenings.

During the debate over the Declaration of Independence, he was a working member of the Provincial Congress and was in New York when the vote was taken in Philadelphia. But he arrived in the City of Brotherly Love in time to sign the engraved version of the Declaration.

In 1777 Livingston became a senator in New York's new State Legislature. After attending opening sessions he had to return to meetings being conducted in conjunction with the Second Continental Congress. But due to ill health, it became obvious he could not keep the pace he had set for himself. The big, blustering, opinionated man, who remained a political moderate all his life, died in June, 1778. Only one of his sons, Henry, was at his bedside when the end came.

It is both sad and ironic that the aging merchant was forced to sell property before his death to preserve his own credit, but if he could not leave his sons the wealth that had been left to him, he could leave instead an admirable legacy of public service and his own "John Hancock" on the Declaration of Independence.

Slow Cooking for Quick-Witted

KINGSTON — At 7 a.m., on almost any given morning, you'll find me peeling, slicing, cutting, and scraping, preparing dinner for that evening. All these ingredients pop into my crock-pot and spend day the simmering ever so gently while I am at the office.

At the end of the day dinner is waiting. I pretend that the cook has just left. There are stews, goulashes, ragouts and spaghetti sauces, all prepared for pennies a day (the energy consumed is on a par with a 75 watt bulb). These are the obvious applications. But I grow more adventurous with my crock-pot. I've prepared Paella, Jambalaya, and roast chicken in this handy appliance.

In addition to being a boon to a working woman and impose taxation, Philip was one of the first to speak out against their actions. When the English Parliament closed the port of Boston in 1774 in retaliation for the "Boston Tea Party," New York's Sons of Liberty worked to drum up support for a "General Congress." ### Cheese Curried Entree

2 10 ounce packaged frozen chopped broccoli, partially thawed
3 cups (¾ pound) diced cooked ham or turkey
1 11 ounce can condensed Cheddar cheese soup
1 cup water
½ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon curry powder
½ cup slivered almonds, if desired.
1. Place broccoli into a 4 to 6 quart crock-pot. Add ham or turkey.
2. Combine soup, water, mayonnaise, onion, lemon juice and curry powder in small mixing bowl; stir to blend. Pour soup mixture into pot.

3. Place pot on electric base, cover and simmer at setting no. 3 for 2 ½ hours ("HIGH" for slow cookers with only 2 heat settings), or setting no. 2 ("LOW" for slow cookers with only 2 heat settings) for 6 to 8 hours until broccoli is fork tender. If desired, add almonds just before serving. Keep warm for serving at setting no. 2. Makes 8 to 10 servings. Serve over toast, hot biscuits, or noodles. Accept compliments gracefully.

As manor proprietors, the Livingstons had known for two centuries what it was like to have financial and political power. It had been Philip's grandfather Robert who had come to the colonies to seek his fortune and, by the time Robert died in 1728, he had acquired the 160,000 acres here in the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Born into such prominence, Livingston was given the opportunity of an advanced education. When he received a degree from Yale College, he joined a small handful of his generation in all of New York to receive such an education.

Leaving Yale in 1737, Philip became a merchant in New York City and, in 1740, married Colonel Dirck Ten Broeck's daughter, Christina. They first took up residence in a fine town house on Duke Street in New York City. That house was later used as a barracks by the British.

The couple also commuted, during the early years of their marriage, to the estate they also maintained at Brooklyn Heights. It overlooked New York Harbor into which Livingston's ships brought his increasing wealth. Through lucrative privateering during the French and Indian War, he added to his fortune.

Like his Duke Street house, the Brooklyn Heights mansion was also later taken over by the British, who turned it into a Royal naval hospital. Long neglected after the Revolution, it was eventually destroyed by fire.

As a middle-aged, prosperous merchant with a powerful family political tradition, Livingston became active in New York City politics. He was elected to the General Assembly in 1759. Four years later when Parliament began to tighten Colonial regulations and impose taxation, Philip was one of the first to speak out against their actions.

When the English Parliament closed the port of Boston in 1774 in retaliation for the "Boston Tea Party," New York's Sons of Liberty worked to drum up support for a "General Congress." Livingston was one of the wealthy merchants instrumental in calling together a meeting that resulted in the election of a committee of Fifty-One to keep in touch with other colonies.

Livingston was also on hand at the First and the Second Continental Congress and was the presiding officer at the Provincial Convention in April, 1775. As a member of both the Second Continental Congress and New York's Provincial Congress, he maintained a heady schedule, racing back and forth by horse or carriage since he was forced to divide his time between the two political happenings.

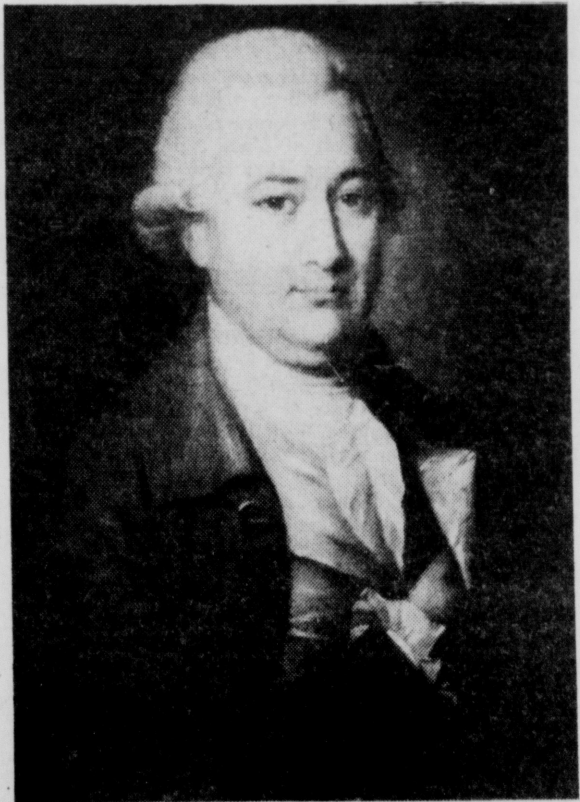

During the debate over the Declaration of Independence, he was a working member of the Provincial Congress and was in New York when the vote was taken in Philadelphia. But he arrived in the City of Brotherly Love in time to sign the engraved version of the Declaration.

In 1777 Livingston became a senator in New York's new State Legislature. After attending opening sessions he had to return to meetings being conducted in conjunction with the Second Continental Congress. But due to ill health, it became obvious he could not keep the pace he had set for himself. The big, blustering, opinionated man, who remained a political moderate all his life, died in June, 1778. Only one of his sons, Henry, was at his bedside when the end came.

It is both sad and ironic that the aging merchant was forced to sell property before his death to preserve his own credit, but if he could not leave his sons the wealth that had been left to him, he could leave instead an admirable legacy of public service and his own "John Hancock" on the Declaration of Independence.

Slow Cooking for Quick-Witted

KINGSTON — At 7 a.m., on almost any given morning, you'll find me peeling, slicing, cutting, and scraping, preparing dinner for that evening. All these ingredients pop into my crock-pot and spend the day simmering ever so gently while I am at the office.

At the end of the day dinner is waiting. I pretend that the cook has just left. There are stews, goulashes, ragouts and spaghetti sauces, all prepared for pennies a day (the energy consumed is on a par with a 75 watt bulb). These are the obvious applications. But I grow more adventurous with my crock-pot. I've prepared Paella, Jambalaya, and roast chicken in this handy appliance.

In addition to being a boon to a working woman

In addition to its winning ways during the work-a-day week, my slow cooker is pressed into service on week-ends, as well. Hearty corn chowder, cheese soup, or a stew greets my hungry young skiers the moment they arrive home from the snowy slopes. On a day I plan to make a leisurely round of garage sales, lunch or dinner stands waiting for any family member wandering in hungry.

Actually, slow cooking isn't a new idea at all. Our foremothers did it on the back of the wood stove. Slow cooking retains nutrients destroyed by higher temperatures and gently mingles flavors.

There is a soft cover book available locally that not only contains skads of slow-cook recipes, but evaluates the various cookers on the market. After you really get into it, you'll be able to convert many of your favorite recipes. Vegetables go in first, and the meat on top. You'll use less liquid since little is lost in the lidded appliance.

The versatile pot shows up on buffets, keeping hot foods hot. Beans and slow cookers were meant for each other.

A small cookbook will come with your new cooker to assure that your initiation is harmless. One or two successes will have the family eating out of your hand...or the crock-pot, to be precise. Once confident, you'll find you can do anything in it. Here's a new recipe for the quick witted who cook slowly:

Cheese Curried Entree

2 10 ounce packaged frozen chopped broccoli, partially thawed
3 cups (¾ pound) diced cooked ham or turkey
1 11 ounce can condensed Cheddar cheese soup
1 cup water
½ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon curry powder
½ cup slivered almonds, if desired.

1. Place broccoli into a 4 to 6 quart crock-pot. Add ham or turkey.

2. Combine soup, water, mayonnaise, onion, lemon juice and curry powder in small mixing bowl; stir to blend. Pour soup mixture into pot.

3. Place pot on electric base, cover and simmer at setting no. 3 for 2 ½ hours ("HIGH" for slow cookers with only 2 heat settings), or setting no. 2 ("LOW" for slow cookers with only 2 heat settings) for 6 to 8 hours until broccoli is fork tender. If desired, add almonds just before serving. Keep warm for serving at setting no. 2.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Serve over toast, hot biscuits, or noodles.

Accept compliments gracefully.

A reception was given at the Tri-Po-Bed Grotto in Poughkeepsie. After a Florida wedding trip, the couple will reside at 7 Norah Lane in Hyde Park.

Whittaker-Whiteford Nuptials

Bobbi Lynn Whittaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Whittaker Sr. of Mt. Airy Road, Saugerties, exchanged nuptial vows with James Paul Whiteford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Whiteford of Blue Hills Drive, Saugerties.

The Rev. Kureckline and long, tapered sleeves. Hand-clipped and pearl applied Venice floral motif lace braid trimmed the neckline in scalloped effect, accented the bodice and cuffed the sleeves. Similar lace encircled the hem of the A-line skirt which swept back to form an attached cathedral length train.

Miss Julie Harder of Albany was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Cathy Schaffer of Albany and Miss Angela Gaffney of Saugerties. Miss Christina Philson of Springfield, Mass., was flower girl.

Joseph Hellenschmidt of Saugerties was best man. Ushers were Lynn Whiteford and Albert Whittaker Jr. of Saugerties. Robert Tompkins Jr. of Salt Point was ringbearer.

A reception was given at Sawyerkill in Saugerties.

The bride, a 1973 graduate of Saugerties High School, attended Ulster County Community College, and is employed by Colonial Cooperative Insurance of Kingston.

The bridegroom, a 1973 graduate of SHS, attended Hudson Valley Community College and UCCC. He is employed by Weis Markets in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Whiteford will reside in Kingston.

In China, It Takes Only Three Minutes to Wed...

HONGKONG (UPI)—The nervous groom in his tuxedo and his bride in her flowing dress sat awkwardly on the crowded bench, waiting for the moment scheduled three months earlier.

The clatter of typewriters instead of the wedding march accompanied the couple from the busy outer office of the City Hall Marriage Registry to a quiet room. No bridemaids led the way or distinguished judge or minister awaited them.

While several relatives and friends took seats in the back, the bride, groom and two witnesses sat at a table up front. The deputy marriage registrar, a woman dressed in a simple skirt and sweater, performed the ritual that goes on 30 to 40 times daily at City Hall.

In three minutes, Miss Amy Lau became Mrs. W.H. Wong. The traditional Chinese saying that a young man embarking on marriage spends half his life repaying the debts he ran up by giving a lavish wedding party has become an anachronism.

Long gone are the days when Chinese marriages were arranged through a broker, followed by rounds of bargaining between the two families concerning gifts and dowries. Even the most nostalgic grand-parents admit that not meeting their husband-to-be until the wedding day, when a red sedan chair brought the bride to his village, was not the way to assure a happy match.

The $20 civil ceremony has become the modern way to marry in this British Crown Colony, with nothing religious about the event and words kept to the minimum.

The deputy registrar tells the couple, "It is my duty to remind you of the solemn and binding character of a marriage in this registry which is in law the voluntary union for life of one man and one woman."

The bride and groom exchange change rings if they desire, sign two marriage certificates with the witnesses and registrar, and end the ceremony with each saying to the other, "I call upon all persons here present to witness that I do take thee to be my lawful wedded wife" (or husband).

During 1975, 33,650 marriages took place at the registries which have expanded to Kowloon across the harbor and into the New Territories below China along with the increasing demand, compared with only 2,413 church ceremonies.

The relatively-even flow of marriages over the months indicates that more young people are discarding the traditional beliefs that it is unpropitious to marry in the odd numbered months of the lunar calendar, and decreasing numbers are marking the day by the traditional Chinese feast for hundreds of friends and relatives.

Unhappy wedding caterers have watched helplessly. Wong, a salesman, said he opted for the registry for the same reason almost all cite — "the money."

Most use the funds saved for a honeymoon or to help set up an apartment. "We're taking a week-long trip to the Philippines," Wong said proudly. "This is a much better way to marry," the new Mrs. Wong added, standing in her Western-style gown in the plain corridor after the ceremony, proudly extending her hand to show her new gold band. Mrs. Wong, a bank secretary, said she would return to her job "as soon as the honeymoon is over."

S.S. Tan, the senior assistant registrar who performed hundreds of these marriages before his promotion, views the registries as a realistic way to start off married life.

"Few young people here are interested in expensive church weddings which, with all the trimmings, run into thousands of dollars," he said.

"The marriage registries are not only practical, but give the newlyweds a chance to travel, sometimes very inexpensively, with group honeymoon tours, or to buy furniture, or both, for the very fortunate."

Tan admitted that along with the rejection of the traditional has come a vast array of wedding attire, ranging from white Western gowns and tuxedos to Chinese wedding garments, working clothes and even jeans.

While each prospective bride and groom is told, "usual to be as well dressed as circumstances permit," added, "This is only a suggestion."

Mostly due to superstition, some superstitious still noticeable. Some considered a lucky day, is particularly popular for marriage and there are some who wed during the Chinese festivals of ghosts and ancestor worship.

With the lunar Year of the Dragon, considered highly favorable for marriage, Tan said he expected the registries to chalk up a new record.

Since City Hall in Hong Kong's central business district is not only convenient, but excellent for photographs with its surrounding gardens, the waiting list for a date runs three months. While the Wongs considered the wait worthwhile, other more anxious couples just head to Kowloon or the New Territories. A young journalist and his bride who "just wanted to get married with no fuss or pictures" donned jeans and found the no-wait speed of the Kowloon registry perfect for their needs.

How the Beautiful People Manage to Stay That Way

NEW YORK (UPI) — For more than an hour, pretty Korean-born Leslie Kim worked on the face of the Southern with scuffed shoes who wanted to find out how the Beautiful People stay pretty.

There he was, stretched on his back in a toga, his head wrapped in a towel, his lotioned hands stuffed in warmers like tiny electric blankets, a vaporizer blowing in his face with Mozart wafting softly through the little cubicle.

He was sweating. He was wondering how it would feel to have gooey egg embryo smeared on his face.

But that would come later. Right now Miss Kim had to clean up his mug, get rid of the pimples, blackheads, whiteheads and other trash down in the pores.

With the care of a teenager's mother, she scrubbed, probed, pinched and rubbed in her lotions, using gleaming electronic tools to vacuum the pores and massage the skin.

This is pampering, Fifth Avenue style.

Except for the humiliation of having a pretty girl pinch your blackheads, it's not bad. It makes your face tingly, if red for a while.

A client with $25 in his or her pocket is greeted with a demitasse of coffee Christine Valmy's newest salon (equipped and decorated for a cool $500,000) next door to Vidal Sassoon's in the plaza at the corner of Fifth Avenue and 59th Street.

It's the neighborhood of Tiffany, Gucci, Bergdorf Goodman, the Plaza Hotel and the Autopub, where full-sized racing cars hang from the ceiling.

The decor is dazzling, Shamrock green and white, with mirrors for walls and furniture of glass and shiny metal.

Christine Valmy's is one of many unisex facial salons springing up around Manhattan. Clean skin is in, for women and men.

Some offer a head-to-foot overhaul, such as one Fifth Avenue salon that charges $80 for a six-hours of exercises, steam baths and body massages, ending with a facial, makeup, hair style and pedicure.

Another has a special section for teenagers with acne. At least one caters to clients with black skin.

And several, including Ms. Valmy, have developed their own techniques, equipment and skin care products, which may be purchased, of course.

Ms. Valmy is in the skin game in a big way.

The striking Roumanian-born wife of a West German industrialist, who arrived in this country 14 years ago with $15 in her pocket, owns several such salons up East and has sold franchises for some 700 others around the country.

She has plants in Pinehurst, N.J. manufacturing products and equipment for the salons, an enterprise that recently won her the title of the Garden State's "Small Businessperson of the Year."

(According Ms. Valmy, a small business is anything under $10 million a year in volume.)

Over a lunch of smoked brook trout and salmon at Manhattan's ornate Metropolitan Club (she prefers American beer to champagne), Ms. Valmy talked of the problems of commuting each month to Frankfurt, Germany, where she owns one home, keeping up her house in New Jersey, and furnishing a 23-room castle overlooking Long Island Sound at Amonck, N.Y., which she just purchased.

"I decorated my bedroom in each house identically so I would always feel at home," she says.

Tall, brunette and groomed like a mannequin, Ms. Valmy is a non-stop talker with a musical accent. The subject, usually, is skin.

"People don't understand skin," she says. "There is no education about what skin really is. You know what your heart does, what your liver does, but you don't know what skin does. The skin's role is to protect the body from the environment."

"Most women treat it like a painting. They just cover it with paint."

"When a woman looks in the mirror she sees only her hair, eye makeup and lipstick, in that order. Her next concern is her figure and diet."

"But everyone else sees your whole face, and especially your skin."

Getting her first big break in America with a salon in the Waldorf-Astoria, Ms. Valmy developed her own "hyogenic skin care technique" for revitalizing the skin, including the egg embryo live cell face mask.

Visitors to her newest salon may be shown a small laboratory with jars of herbs lining the shelves and an incubator full of fertile eggs growing embryos. There are private makeup rooms with bulbs simulating daylight and a classroom where corrective makeup techniques are taught. She also has a program for persons undergoing plastic surgery, before and after. In one of the 12 private rooms, the client reclines in subdued light, either red, blue or green, depending on the client's mood.

"The red light is to cheer you up," explains Ms. Valmy's daughter, Marina Limb, who manages the salon. "The blue one will put you to sleep. The green one calms you."

It takes one hour and 10 minutes for Ms. Kim to rid the client's face of its debris. Like the others, Ms. Kim, 29, was trained at Christine Valmy's International School for Estheticians and Makeup Specialists.

"When do I get the egg?" asks the man getting his tingling face sprayed with a soothing, scented mist. "That comes later, your next appointment," she says.

Planned Parenthood Fund Drive Drawing to Close

KINGSTON—Final days for the 1976 fund drive of Planned Parenthood of Dutchess-Ulster, Inc., are approaching as the two county group strives for a goal of $50,000, before May 31.

Under the direction of Co-Chairmen Barbara Van Italie of Dutchess County and Judith-Wilkie of Ulster County, Planned Parenthood is appealing to private citizens and industries. According to Elizabeth Lumb, Poughkeepsie, campaign coordinator, "Because the private dollar is the life-blood of the family planning movement, the private contributor is necessary for the survival of the agency."

Operating in Dutchess County since 1934 Planned Parenthood has recently expanded to become Planned Parenthood of Dutchess-Ulster Inc. To facilitate its goals of wanted children, of responsible parenthood and of improved maternal and child health, the two county agency provides subsidized physician directed medical services at clinic centers in Poughkeepsie, Beacon, Rhinebeck, Amenia, Kingston and New Paltz. Clinic services include cancer and venereal disease testing, pelvic and breast exams, pregnancy testing and counseling and prescription. Referrals are made for venereal disease treatment, voluntary sterilization, prenatal and obstetric care, infertility care, abortion and Lamaze courses for prepared childbirth.

Under the direction of Judith Henkel, education coordinator, the agency provides educational services to the community by offering qualified instructors to schools, state mental institutions, churches, nursing classes, migrant groups, correctional facilities, drug treatment centers and community groups. Emphasis is now being directed toward educational programs for parents in order to prepare them to be the sex educators of their own children.

Planned Parenthood estimates that its services can save the taxpayers of Dutchess and Ulster Counties two million dollars as a result of need averted for publicly supported maternal and child care in 1976. Planned Parenthood is partially funded by the Bureau of Family Planning, New York State Department of Health.

Contributions may be sent to the Planned Parenthood Office, 276 Fair Street, Kingston, or 85 Market Street, Poughkeepsie, zip code 12601.

In China, It Takes Only Three Minutes to Wed...

HONG KONG (UPI)—The nervous groom in his tuxedo and his bride in her flowing dress, sat awkwardly on the crowded bench, waiting for the moment scheduled three months earlier.

The clatter of typewriters instead of the wedding march accompanied the couple from the busy outer office of the City Hall Marriage Registry to a quiet room. No bridesmaids led the way or distinguished judge or minister awaited them.

While several relatives and friends took seats in the back, the bride, groom and their two witnesses sat at a table up front. The deputy marriage registrar, a woman dressed in a simple skirt and sweater, performed the ritual that goes on 30 to 40 times daily at City Hall.

In three minutes, Miss Amy Lau became Mrs. W.H. Wong. The traditional Chinese saying that a young man embarking on marriage spends half his life repaying the debts he ran up by giving a lavish wedding party has become an anachronism.

Long gone are the days when Chinese marriages were arranged through a broker, followed by rounds of bargaining between the two families concerning gifts and dowries. Even the most nostalgic grand-parents admit that not meeting their husband-to-be until the wedding day, when a red sedan chair brought the bride to his village, was not the way to assure a happy match.

The $20 civil ceremony has become the modern way to marry in this British Crown Colony, with nothing religious about the event and words kept to the minimum.

The deputy registrar tells the couple, "It is my duty to remind you of the solemn and binding character of a marriage in this registry which is in law the voluntary union for life of one man and one woman."

The bride and groom exchange rings if they desire, sign two marriage certificates with the witnesses and registrar, and end the ceremony with each saying to the other, "I call upon all persons here present to witness that I do take thee to be my lawful wedded wife" (or husband).

During 1975, 33,550 marriages took place at the registries which have expanded to Kowloon across the harbor and into the New Territories below China along with the increasing demand, compared with only 2,413 church ceremonies.

The relatively-even flow of marriages over the months indicates that more young people are discarding the traditional beliefs that it is unpropitious to marry in the odd numbered months of the lunar calendar, and decreasing numbers are marking the day by the traditional Chinese feast for hundreds of friends and relatives.

Unhappy wedding caterers have watched helplessly. Wong, a salesman, said he opted for the registry for the same reason almost all cite — "the money."

Most use the funds saved for a honeymoon or to help set up an apartment. "We're taking a week-long trip to the Philippines," Wong said proudly.

"This is a much better way to marry," the new Mrs. Wong added, standing in her Western-style gown in the plain corridor after the ceremony, proudly extending her hand to show her new gold band. Mrs. Wong, a bank secretary, said she would return to her job "as soon as the honeymoon is over."

S.S. Tan, the senior assistant registrar who performed hundreds of these marriages before his promotion, views the registries as a realistic way to start off married life.

"Few young people here are interested in expensive church weddings which, with all the trimmings, run into thousands of dollars," he said.

"The marriage registries are not only practical, but give the newlyweds a chance to travel, sometimes very inexpensively, with group honeymoon tours, or to buy furniture, or both, for the very fortunate."

Tan admitted that along with the rejection of the traditional has come a vast array of wedding attire, ranging from white Western gowns and tuxedos to Chinese wedding garments, working clothes and even jeans.

While each prospective bride and groom is told, "It is usual to be as well dressed as circumstances permit," Tan added, "This is only a suggestion."

Mostly due to parental pressure, some superstitions are still noticeable. Sunday, considered a lucky day, is particularly popular for marriages, and there are some who won't wed during the Chinese festivals of ghosts and ancestor worship.

With the lunar Year of the Dragon, considered highly favorable for marriage, Tan said he expected the registries to chalk up a new record.

Since City Hall in Hong Kong's central business district is not only convenient, but excellent, for photographs with its surrounding gardens, the waiting list for a date runs three months. While the Wongs considered the wait worthwhile, other more anxious couples just head to Kowloon or the New Territories. A young journalist and his bride who "just wanted to get married with no fuss or pictures" donned jeans and found the no-wait speed of the Kowloon registry perfect for their needs.

How the Beautiful People Manage to Stay That Way

NEW YORK (UPI)—For more than an hour, pretty Korean-born Leslie Kim worked on the face of the Southerner with scuffed shoes who wanted to find out how the Beautiful People stay pretty.

There he was, stretched on his back in a toga, his head wrapped in a towel, his lotioned hands stuffed in warmers like tiny electric blankets, a vaporizer blowing in his face with Mozart whistling softly through the little cubicle.

He was sweating. He was wondering how it would feel to have gooey egg embryo smeared on his face.

But that would come later. Right now Miss Kim had to clean up his mug, get rid of the pimples, blackheads, whiteheads and other trash down in the pores.

BOOKS:

Spiro & Geraldo Pen
Fine Summer Reading

The Canfield Decision, by Spiro T. Agnew. (Playboy Press, $8.95)

"The author, Spiro T. Agnew, lives in Arnold, Maryland, not far in miles from Washington, D.C. He travels the world. He was formerly Vice President of the United States."

That is the author's biography, in its entirety, as it appears on the dust jacket of The Canfield Decision, and it sums up succinctly the interest in Agnew's book.

The plot has been discussed before — a vice president, Porter Canfield, with presidential ambitions, gets mixed up in a Middle East plot that could have dire consequences for the United States.

Agnew gives the reader his money's worth in having produced 344 pages in very small type. This is no novelette.

The former vice president also is no novelist — his characters are wooden, the vice president's affair with the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare falls well below the flash point, and his plot trips along without raising the reader's tension past tedium.

That is not to say the book is without interest — but what makes it interesting are the sidelights of life along Pennsylvania Avenue, the wheeling and dealing of politics, and the lack of admiration in which Agnew's vice president holds his president.

It's also fascinating to see the way in which Agnew views certain aspects of American life, which likely reflect the way many of those who admired him before his fall look at things. It doesn't mean the view is correct — but it isn't often the reader gets such a good inside view from the top.

Take Agnew's view of the press and reporters as reflected in the way he draws the characters of several reporters. His dislike is obvious and it transcends politics or political devices.

Then there's the ever-present game when a celebrity writes a work of fiction that must at least in part be autobiographical — if only in the background it establishes for its plot.

The name of the game is, "I wonder who he meant by that?" or "Did so-and-so really do THAT?"

One columnist has questioned whether Agnew wrote this book himself. From a literary standpoint, there's little reason to think he didn't. And the opinions expressed undoubtedly belong to Spiro Agnew, whose name was not a household word eight years ago

Joan Hanauer (UPI)

A Special Kind of Courage, by Geraldo Rivera.

(Simon and Schuster, $8.95) Award-winning television journalist Geraldo Rivera has written a deeply moving account of 11 young people in difficult, sometimes horrifying, situations.

The physical pain and mental anguish these youngsters endure, always with quiet dignity, is almost inconceivable

Bernard Carabello, a cerebral palsy victim, spent 18 years confined to Willowbrook State School after wrongly being diagnosed as retarded.

Steve Beltz lived through a catastrophic airplane crash, only to die later from his severe burns. Enduring terrible agony, Steve never once complained or asked for special treatment.

Teddy Kennedy Jr., who lost his leg to cancer, has gone on to live as normally as possible, with a rugged determination.

The first black child to integrate the New Orleans public school system, Gail Etienne, endured bitter racial hatred so that she might attend the school of her choice and receive a better education than she had been getting.

All these children have one trait in common — an ability to cope in the worst of times. These stories illuminate the strength that can lie behind a will to survive.

This is a very special book about some very special children whose courage in moments — sometimes years — of crisis must benefit all.

Lillian O'Connell (UPI)

I Never Wanted To Be Vice-President Of Anything, by Michael Kramer and Sam Roberts. (Basic Books, $12.50) Subtitled "an investigative biography of Nelson Rockefeller," this is a well researched, if pedantically written, study of the nation's vice president. The Rockefeller family did not assist, which limits some of the background, but the authors' hard digging is evident in the anecdotal material and abundance of detail. Rockefeller is a worthy candidate for an investigative book, "a seasoned, savvy, and able, although not perfect public servant," as Shirley Chisholm called him.

New Burlington, by John Baskin. (Norton, $9.95) New Burlington was an old, old farming village in southwestern Ohio until the Corps of Engineers decided to build a dam and cover the town with a lake. Its inhabitants had lived a relatively remote existence with remarkably little intrusion from the modern world. Through a year of interviews, the author lets the townspeople — a telephone operator, a blacksmith, a farmer — tell of their lives, and they evoke a lovely, rural America that is vanishing.

High Stakes, by Dick Francis. (Harper and Row, $7.95) Dick Francis probably could write about a croquet match and fill his story with chilling suspense and likeable, interesting characters. His milieu happens to be horseracing, which he makes every reader's meat. His latest novel is one of his best. A wealthy inventor and horse fancier fights to retrieve his prize horse that he believes was stolen by its trainer. Along the way, he meets enough violence and puzzling turns of event to delight the most demanding reader.

The West End Horror, a memoir edited by Nicholas Meyer. (Dutton, $7.95) The theatrical district of London in the 1890s is terrorized by a series of murders and inexplicable events that disturb the busy existence of such denizens as Ellen Terry and a young, as yet unsuccessful, playwright named Bernard Shaw. Luckily, Sherlock Holmes is at hand to rescue Scotland Yard. Dr. Thomas Watson is at his elbow taking notes. The author of The Ten Per Cent Solution again revives the famous duo with marvelous results. The reader just doesn't want the book to end.

Offguard, by Ron Galella. (McGraw-Hill, $6.95) America's most persistent "paparazzo" (ask Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis) presents a gallery of candid photographs of the famous and the notorious with occasionally amusing captions. Big Ron is no Weegee, but at his best he's very, very good. What he needs to develop is a sense of social commentary.

Considering the bleak outlook for the American cause in 1776, the 56 Signers of the Declaration of Independence were exceptionally courageous men when considering they would have been persecuted if the war had been lost. Danger to the signers was so great that their names were held secret until Jan. 18, 1777, when the victories of Trenton and Princeton prompted Congress to take the bold step of releasing to each state a copy of the Declaration of Independence and the names of the signers, The World Almanac reports.

BOOKS:

Spiro & Geraldo Pen Fine Summer Reading

The Canfield Decision, by Spiro T. Agnew. (Playboy Press, $8.95) "The author, Spiro T. Agnew, lives in Arnold, Maryland, not far in miles from Washington, D.C. He travels the world. He was formerly Vice President of the United States."

That is the author's biography, in its entirety, as it appears on the dust jacket of The Canfield Decision, and it sums up succinctly the interest in Agnew's book.

The plot has been discussed before — a vice president, Porter Canfield, with presidential ambitions, gets mixed up in a Middle East plot that could have dire consequences for the United States.

Agnew gives the reader his money's worth in having produced 344 pages in very small type. This is no novelette.

The former vice president also is no novelist — his characters are wooden, the vice president's affair with the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare falls well below the flash point, and his plot trips along without raising the reader's tension past tedium.

That is not to say the book is without interest — but what makes it interesting are the sidelights of life along Pennsylvania Avenue, the wheeling and dealing of politics, and the lack of admiration in which Agnew's vice president holds his president.

It's also fascinating to see the way in which Agnew views certain aspects of American life, which likely reflect the way many of those who admired him before his fall look at things. It doesn't mean the view is correct — but it isn't often the reader gets such a good inside view from the top.

Take Agnew's view of the press and reporters as reflected in the way he draws the characters of several reporters. His dislike is obvious and it transcends politics or political devices.

Then there's the ever-present game when a celebrity writes a work of fiction that must at least in part be autobiographical — if only in the background it establishes for its plot.

The name of the game is, "I wonder who he meant by that?" or "Did so-and-so really do THAT?"

One columnist has questioned whether Agnew wrote this book himself. From a literary standpoint, there's little reason to think he didn't. And the opinions expressed undoubtedly belong to Spiro Agnew, whose name was not a household word eight years ago.

Joan Hanauer (UPI)

A Special Kind of Courage, by Geraldo Rivera.

(Simon and Schuster, $8.95) Award-winning television journalist Geraldo Rivera has written a deeply moving account of 11 young people in difficult, sometimes horrifying, situations.

The physical pain and mental anguish these youngsters endure, always with quiet dignity, is almost inconceivable.

Bernard Carabello, a cerebral palsy victim, spent 18 years confined to Willowbrook State School after wrongly being diagnosed as retarded.

Stevie Baltz lived through a catastrophic airplane crash, only to die later from his severe burns. Enduring terrible agony, Stevie never once complained or asked for special treatment.

Teddy Kennedy Jr., who lost his leg to cancer, has gone on to live as normally as possible, with a rugged determination.

The first black child to integrate the New Orleans public school system, Gail Etienne, endured bitter racial hatred so that she might attend the school of her choice and receive a better education than she had been getting.

All these children have one trait in common — an ability to cope in the worst of times. These stories illuminate the strength that can lie behind a will to survive.

This is a very special book about some very special children whose courage in moments — sometimes years — of crisis must benefit all.

Lillian O'Connell (UPI)

I Never Wanted To Be Vice-President Of Anything, by Michael Kramer and Sam Roberts. (Basic Books, $12.50) Subtitled "an investigative biography of Nelson Rockefeller," this is a well researched, if pedantic, study of the nation's vice president. The Rockefeller family did not assist, which limits some of the background, but the authors' hard digging is evident in the anecdotal material and abundance of detail. Rockefeller is a worthy candidate for an investigative book, "a seasoned, savvy, and able, although not perfect public servant," as Shirley Chisholm called him.

New Burlington, by John Baskin. (Norton, $9.95) New Burlington was an old, old farming village in southwestern Ohio until the Corps of Engineers decided to build a dam and cover the town with a lake. Its inhabitants had lived a relatively remote existence with remarkably little intrusion from the modern world. Through a year of interviews, the author lets the townspeople — a telephone operator, a blacksmith, a farmer — tell of their lives, and they evoke a lovely, rural America that is vanishing.

High Stakes, by Dick Francis. (Harper and Row, $7.95) Dick Francis probably could write about a croquet match and fill his story with chilling suspense and likeable, interesting characters. His milieu happens to be horseracing, which he makes every reader's meat. His latest novel is one of his best. A wealthy inventor and horse fancier fights to retrieve his prize horse that he believes was stolen by its trainer. Along the way, he meets enough violence and puzzling turns of event to delight the most demanding reader.

The West End Horror, a memoir edited by Nicholas Meyer. (Dutton, $7.95) The theatrical district of London in the 1890s is terrorized by a series of murders and inexplicable events that disturb the busy existence of such denizens as Ellen Terry and a young, as yet unsuccessful, playwright named Bernard Shaw. Luckily, Sherlock Holmes is at hand to rescue Scotland Yard. Dr. Thomas Watson is at his elbow taking notes. The author of The Ten Per Cent Solution again revives the famous duo with marvelous results. The reader just doesn't want the book to end.

Offguard, by Ron Galella. (McGraw-Hill, $6.95) America's most persistent "paparazzo" (ask Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis) presents a gallery of candid photographs of the famous and the notorious with occasionally amusing captions. Big Ron is no Weegee, but at his best he's very, very good. What he needs to develop is a sense of social commentary.

Considering the bleak outlook for the American cause in 1776, the 56 Signers of the Declaration of Independence were exceptionally courageous men when considering they would have been persecuted if the war had been lost. Danger to the signers was so great that their names were held secret until Jan. 18, 1777, when the victories of Trenton and Princeton prompted Congress to take the bold step of releasing to each state a copy of the Declaration of Independence and the names of the signers. The World Almanac reports.

THE BROTHERS OF YE BRUSHE Committee, Raymond LeFever and Norman Tierney, have been stumping for stubble before an assortment of male organizations, encouraging all men of the Town of Rosendale to join the town's Bicentennial celebration sporting a full beard, mustach, mutton chops, or any shape facial foliage they prefer. Each organization that participates will receive a charter designed and drawn up by Robert Hicks of Blooming. Prizes will be awarded for the funniest, ugliest and handsomest. Badges with Brothers of Ye Brushe upon them will be sold for 25 cents; shaving permits will cost one dollar. The festivities started on May 1 and will continue till June 12 and 13, when Rosendale will celebrate in earnest. The Committee requests that the ladies wear long colonial dresses or skirts now through June 13. Proceeds from the celebration will go to the Town of Rosendale Library Building Fund. Above, Norman Tierney, Ass't Chairman, BOYB, looks on as Chairman Raymond LeFever presents the first chapter of BOYB to Bicentennial Committee Chairman James J. # Too Old for Toys; Too Young for Boys

This is a week in the life of a child who wonders how old she is.

MONDAY: "Do you know what you are? You're a baby! When you are 35, I'll be filling your milk glass half full, and your husband will be following you around with paper towels. When are you going to eat like a big girl?"

TUESDAY: "You want me to say yes to your staying out until midnight and then going to someone's house whose mother and father aren't going to be home? You've got plenty of time for that, Missy. Next thing, you'll think you're old enough to pierce your ears. You're just a little girl yet."

WEDNESDAY: "You're too big to sit there with your knees apart. It's time you realized you're a young lady now, and proper ladies do not sit in a chair on their tailbones in an unladylike position. Have you looked in the mirror lately? You're a young lady now."

THURSDAY: "You're reading what? Who told you you were old enough to read trash like that? I know I told you I wanted you to grow up, but not in one afternoon. Until you're old enough I'll take responsibility for what you read. You're a child!"

FRIDAY: "Who took this phone message? There's a digit missing, that's why. When are you going to learn responsibility and take some initiative? If you're matmre enough to answer the phone, you should be mature enough to write down a simple message. Get with it. You're practically an adult."

SATURDAY: "A learner's permit to drive? No way. Some children are ready to drive at 16. Some aren't. I've seen the way you keep time to the music in a car by rattling a paper cup filled with ice on the dashboard. No siree. You're not ready yet to chase people all over the road in a car. You're too immature."

SUNDAY: "A lot of people get jobs. You're old enough. There are loads of part-time things you ra. Frank wants a babysitter for a week while they go on vacation. You could handle that. After all, in a few years you'll be juggling children of your own. You're mature."

MONDAY: "I've contacted a babysitter to sit with you for a week while Daddy and I make a short trip. Leave you alone? Are you crazy? You're a baby yet. Why is it you never act your age?"

Maybe she doesn't know what it is.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SUNDAY, MAY 23
Your birthday today: From early episodes of fundamental change, redirection, the rest of the year is a response to challenge, a steady application of growing skills. Relationships multiply, making difficult choices inevitable. Today's natives are versatile in philosophy and the arts. Their perspective is based on pattern-sensing ability, cause-and-effect connections strung out over a period of time.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Discount emotional expressions from those trying to influence you. Keep moderate habits. Avoid any exposure to contagion, overdoing physical exercise.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You notice something that has escaped attention up till now. Discretion saves interruption of group effort. Avoid using heavy mechanical equipment. Gemini (May 21-June 20): You respond to everything you hear. You also go much too far in remarking on other people's behavior. Focus on thrifty self-control.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Money spent on trivia adds up rapidly. Draw the line early. Your intended helpful criticism is classified as nagging. Let people learn for themselves.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It's better to be a stay-at-home, do little type than to rush about seeking recognition. Unexpected happenings require thought, analysis before you react.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Realize that you're doing as well as is reasonable, that your perspective is probably distorted. Forgive yourself and others. Make no drastic moves.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): With everybody's patience coming to an end, you have to exercise diplomacy and accept people as they are. Budgets are upset. Ride out conflict.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Moderation in all areas is essential. Self-discipline is rewarding as you guard against criticism. Leave repairs to experts during workweek hours.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Impatience is the general mood, some of it from annoyance, some from anticipation of a delayed experience. Give each person full recognition.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You please very few people, so you may as well do as you wish. Check where your money is going, and be sure you get what you pay for.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Discuss only present topics, let the past rest. Keep your composure during newcomers' intense scrutiny. Don't be upset by it.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Hold on to your wallet and all that's in it; you're surrounded by both temptation and greedy fingers. Make your community appearance, then settle back.

MONDAY, MAY 24
Your birthday today: Opens a brisk year of increasingly effective selfassertion and a stronger tendency to go it alone. The main problem is to recognize and control wishful thinking. Material welfare varies wand your persuasive powers at a high pitch, you can use a soft-sell approach. Unload obsolete items; send surplus to a pet charity.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take advantage of a chance to complete unfinished business or reevaluate old projects. Review plans once more before enacting new programs. Romance thrives.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your mind is clearer; it's easier to put matters in order. Minor nuisances become serious if you neglect corrections. Keep a sense of humor!

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Tidy up after the weekend; pull together loose ends. Meditation brings inspiration. Education and self-improvement study is favored.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's more important to find your own way than follow another. Creative ideas pop up; jot them down. Cope with impatience by moving ahead of the crowds.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take the initiative in bringing people together. Use their energy to foster growth in group projects, but be sure you have a say in management. Offer practical proposals.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your imagination is alive, and you possess foresight. Write it all down so you'll be established in your position and will receive deserved recognition in time.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Be reasonably content with things as they are. Don't dwell on past difficulties; think about major current changes. Praise those who've earned it.

Accounting Courses At UCCC

STONE RIDGE — Principles of Accounting I and II will be offered this summer by Ulster County Community College at the Stone Ridge campus.

Principles of Accounting I, taught by Paul Donadio, will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights from 6:30 to 10:10 p.m., while Principles of Accounting II, taught by Daniel Acton, will meet the same hours on Monday and Wednesday nights. Classes start the week of June 28.

Accounting I is a basic study of the principles of accounting theory and practice, nature of assets and equity, income measurement and statement preparation. It should be of interest to students seeking a business degree, persons anticipating, or currently involved in, the operation of a business of their own, and persons engaged in, or seeking, book-keeping employment.

Accounting II is a continuation of Accounting I and further develops the study of accounting principles as they apply to assets and quit equities. In addition, analytical use of accounting data will be stressed.

In-person registration for these and other Summer Session courses will be held Thursday, June 24, at the Stone Ridge campus.

KINGSTON — With all the attention devoted to preservatives in food these days, we asked our panel to produce a critique on two products that build their advertising campaigns on the fact that they don't use preservatives. Products pure as the driven snow are Breyer's Ice Cream and Nature Valley Granola.

Breyer's ... what can you say about Breyer's? said Gloria Casciaro. It's delicious and rich and creamy. I bought the Peach, and it was just like homemade."

Gloria said she'd buy it again...on occasion...probably when it's on sale. She purchased her Breyer's at the Governor Clinton Market at $1.99 for a half gallon.

The Granola has had shelf space at the Kasciaros for many years. The whole family loves it for cereal in the morning or a snack anytime.

"I use it in muffins, it's really fantastic. Gloria picked up her family's favorite, fruit and nut for $1.09 at the Governor Clinton Market.

Dorothy Lynch had already made up her mind about Breyer's Ice Cream; she's been eating it for 30 years, and her mother always used it. In fact, when she went to purchase it at Rosendale Food Market and found it priced at $1.29 for the half gallon, she bought ten in all for the freezer. The printed price on the carton was $1.99. Impressed with the savings of 70 cents per half gallon, Dorothy spoke to the manager asking how often she could hope to find Breyer's on sale.

"Eight times a year," came the instant reply. So ice cream lovers of the Hudson Valley can now time their Breyer purchases to coincide with the sales that occur approximately every six weeks. Just another service of the sharp shoppers of the consumer panel.

The Granola didn't fare as well in the Lynch household. They found it much too sweet. "We're used to the regular granola. It's a shame. They have a good product, otherwise, I wish they'd allow me to sweeten it to my taste." The granola was purchased at the Rosendale Food Center as well, fruit and nut, 99 cents for the pound.

Bernadette Morris picked up Breyer's Chocolate and Butter Almond at Shoprite in New Paltz for $1.86 for one half gallon. The Morris youngsters and Mr. Morris loved it, preferring the butter almond over the chocolate. Bernadette disliked the texture. She found it icy, not as smooth as she would have liked.

At that price, I'll stick to my usual brand" was the verdict in the Morris household.

The Nature Valley Granola she chose was Cinnamon and Raisin.

I liked the flavor, but after munching and crunching my way through a bowlful, I felt I could haat 85. The man of the house really enjoys this type cereal, but her son said, "It's like that dehydrated food — you add liquid and it puffs all up." He gave the same thumbs down to both flavors.

The Breyer's Ice Cream really put the Reynolds' household in a quandary. Ice Cream is their favorite food. How could they possibly say it didn't taste good? They felt, however, that it just isn't as creamy as other ice creams. It is lighter tasting, much more like ice cream made at home.

Although they know many folks who prefer this 'homemade' consistency, the Reynolds' didn't.

They sampled several flavors to give it a fair trial. The butter almond was salty; the chocolate almond8 so heavily chocolate that Wendy and her husband experienced a reaction to the caffeine; the mint chip (a favorite flavor) tasted like sweetened Milk of Magnesia!

On the other hand, the fruit flavors brought raves. The strawberry was full of chunks of real strawberries.

To Wendy's dismay, there were gaping air pockets in three of the four boxes she purchased. Since they are sold by volume, she felt short-changed. At $1.89 on sale at Grand Union and Weis, the Reynolds felt it was too expensive to buy regularly, and would only purchase the fruit flavors occasionally.

A divided panel again reminds us how tastes differ. A commentary on our times is the fact that these all natural products were, for the most part, familiar products in the homes of the panelists. As more and more aware shoppers support products that boast 'nothing but natural food', it would seem to follow that they will become the rule, not the exception.

The panel's new assignment is to try the Aqua-Filter, a disposablmuch of the harm out of smoking. The other product is touted as the food budget's friend: Hamburger Helper. Their findings on these products will appear two weeks from today. Join them, if you've a mind to, and see how our cagey, canny consumer critics' opinions compare with yours.

Though our present panel's tenure is assured, we are compiling the next panel for a few months from now. In response to a reader's suggestion, the next will include a male on our panel. If you know someone who would be interested, send his name to ON TRIAL, in care of the Daily Freeman.

SATURDAY: "A learner's permit to drive? No way. Some children are ready to drive at 16. Some aren't. I've seen the way you keep time to the music in a car by rattling a paper cup filled with ice on the dashboard. No siree. You're not ready yet to chase people all over the road in a car. You're too immature."

SUNDAY: "A lot of people get jobs. You're old enough. There are loads of part-time things you can do. Frank wants a babysitter for a week while they go on vacation. You could handle that. After all, in a few years you'll be juggling children of your own. You're mature."

MONDAY: "I've contacted a babysitter to sit with you for a week while Daddy and I make a short trip. Leave you alone? Are you crazy? You're a baby yet. Why is it you never act your age?" Maybe she doesn't know what it is.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SUNDAY, MAY 23 Your birthday today: From early episodes of fundamental change, redirection, the rest of the year is a response to challenge, a steady application of growing skills. Relationships multiply, making critical choices inevitable. Today's natives are versatile in philosophy and the arts. Their perspective is based on pattern-sensing ability, cause-and-effect connections strung out over a period of time.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Discount emotional expressions from those trying to influence you. Keep moderate habits. Avoid any exposure to contagion, overdoing physical exercise.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You notice something that has escaped attention up till now. Discretion saves interruption of group effort. Avoid using heavy mechanical equipment.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You respond to everything you hear. You also go much too far in remarking on other people's behavior. Focus on thrifty self-control.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Money spent on trivia adds up rapidly. Draw the line early. Your intended helpful criticism is classified as nagging. Let people learn for themselves.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It's better to be a stay-at-home, do-jittle type than to rush about seeking recognition. Unexpected happenings require thought, analysis before you react.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Realize that you're doing as well as is reasonable, that your perspective is probably distorted. Forgive yourself and others. Make no drastic moves.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): With everybody's patience coming to an end, you have to exercise diplomacy and accept people as they are. Budgets are upset. Ride out conflict.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Moderation in all areas is essential. Self-discipline is rewarding as you guard against criticism. Leave repairs to experts during workweek hours.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Impatience is the general mood, some of it from annoyance, some from anticipation of a delayed experience. Give each person full recognition.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You please very few people, so you may as well do as you wish. Check where your money is going, and be sure you get what you pay for.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Discuss only present topics, let the past rest. Keep your composure during newcomers' intense scrutiny. Don't be upset by it.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Hold on to your wallet and all that's in it: you're surrounded by both temptation and greedy fingers. Make your community appearance, then settle back.

MONDAY, MAY 24 Your birthday today: Opens a brisk year of increasingly effective selfassertion and a stronger tendency to go it alone. The main problem is to recognize and control wishful thinking. Material welfare varies wad your persuasive powers at a high pitch, you can use a soft-sell approach. Unload obsolete items; send surplus to a pet charity.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take advantage of a chance to complete unfinished business or reevaluate old projects. Review plans once more before enacting new programs. Romance thrives.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your mind is clearer; it's easier to put matters in order. Minor nuisances become serious if you neglect corrections. Keep a sense of humor!

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Tidy up after the weekend; pull together loose ends. Meditation brings inspiration. Education and self-improvement study is favored.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's more important to find your own way than follow another. Creative ideas pop up; jot them down. Cope with impatience by moving ahead of the crowds.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take the initiative in bringing people together. Use their energy to foster growth in group projects, but be sure you have a say in management. Offer practical proposals.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your imagination is alive, and you possess foresight. Write it all down so you'll be established in your position and will receive deserved recognition in time.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Be reasonably content with things as they are. Don't dwell on past difficulties; think about major current changes. Praise those who've earned it.

Accounting Courses At UCCC

STONE RIDGE — Principles of Accounting I and II will be offered this summer by Ulster County Community College at the Stone Ridge campus.

Principles of Accounting I, taught by Paul Donadio, will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights from 6:30 to 10:10 p.m., while Principles of Accounting II, taught by Daniel Acton, will meet the same hours on Monday and Wednesday nights. Classes start the week of June 28.

Accounting I is a basic study of the principles of accounting theory and practice, nature of assets and equity, income measurement and statement preparation. It should be of interest to students seeking a business degree, persons anticipating, or currently involved in, the operation of a business of their own, and persons engaged in, or seeking, book-keeping employment.

Accounting II is a continuation of Accounting I and further develops the study of accounting principles as they apply to assets and quit equities. In addition, analytical use of accounting data will be stressed.

In-person registration for these and other Summer Session courses will be held Thursday, June 24, at the Stone Ridge campus.

KINGSTON — With all the attention devoted to preservatives in food these days, we asked our panel to produce a critique on two products that build their advertising campaigns on the fact that they don't use preservatives. Products pure as the driven snow are Breyer's Ice Cream and Nature Valley Granola.

Breyer's... what can you say about Breyer's? said Gloria Casciaro. It's delicious and rich and creamy. I bought the Peach, and it was just like homemade."

Gloria said she'd buy it again...on occasion...probably when it's on sale. She purchased her Breyer's at the Governor Clinton Market at $1.99 for a half gallon.

The Granola has had shelf space at the Kasciaros for many years. The whole family loves it for cereal in the morning or a snack anytime.

"I use it in muffins, it's really fantastic. Gloria picked up her family's favorite, fruit and nut for $1.09 at the Governor Clinton Market.

Dorothy Lynch had already made up her mind about Breyer's Ice Cream; she's been eating it for 30 years, and her mother always used it. In fact, when she went to purchase it at Rosendale Food Market and found it priced at $1.29 for the half gallon, she bought ten in all for the freezer. The printed price on the carton was $1.99. Impressed with the savings of 70 cents per half gallon, Dorothy spoke to the manager asking how often she could hope to find Breyer's on sale.

"Eight times a year," came the instant reply. So ice cream lovers of the Hudson Valley can now time their Breyer purchases to coincide with the sales that occur approximately every six weeks. Just another service of the sharp shoppers of the consumer panel.

The Granola didn't fare as well in the Lynch household. They found it much too sweet. "We're used to the regular granola. It's a shame. They have a good product, otherwise. I wish they'd allow me to sweeten it to my taste." The granola was purchased at the Rosendale Food Center as well, fruit and nut, 99 cents for the pound.

Bernadette Morris picked up Breyer's Chocolate and Butter Almond at Shoprite in New Paltz for $1.86 for one half gallon. The Morris youngsters and Mr. Morris loved it, preferring the butter almond over the chocolate. Bernadette disliked the texture. She found it icy, not as smooth as she would have liked.

At that price, I'll stick to my usual brand" was the verdict in the Morris household.

The Nature Valley Granola she chose was Cinnamon and Raisin.

I liked the flavor, but after munching and crunching my way through a bowlful, I felt I could haat 85. The man of the house really enjoys this type cereal, but her son said, "It's like that dehydrated food — you add liquid and it puffs all up." He gave the same thumbs down to both flavors.

The Breyer's Ice Cream really put the Reynolds' household in a quandary. Ice Cream is their favorite food. How could they possibly say it didn't taste good? They felt, however, that it just isn't as creamy as other ice creams. It is lighter tasting, much more like ice cream made at home. Although they know many folks who prefer this 'home-made' consistency, the Reynolds' didn't.

They sampled several flavors to give it a fair trial. The butter almond was salty; the chocolate almonds so heavily chocolate that Wendy and her husband experienced a reaction to the caffeine; the mint chip (a favorite flavor) tasted like sweetened Milk of Magnesia!

On the other hand, the fruit flavors brought raves. The strawberry was full of chunks of real strawberries.

To Wendy's dismay, there were gaping air pockets in three of the four boxes she

THE BROTHERS OF YE BRUSHE Committee, Raymond LeFever and Norman Tierney, have been stumping for stubble before an assortment of male organizations, encouraging all men of the Town of Rosendale to join the town's Bicentennial celebration sporting a full beard, mustach, mutton chops, or any shape facial foliage they prefer. Each organization that participates will receive a charter designed and drawn up by Robert Hicks of Bloomington. Prizes will be awarded for the funniest, ugliest and handsomest. Badges with Brothers of Ye Brushe upon them will be sold for 25 cents; shaving permits will cost one dollar. The festivities started on May 1 and will continue till June 12 and 13, when Rosendale will celebrate in earnest. The Committee requests that the ladies wear long colonial dresses or skirts now through June 13. Proceeds from the celebration will go to the Town of Rosendale Library Building Fund. Above, Norman Tierney, Ass't Chairman, BOYB, looks on as Chairman Raymond LeFever presents the first chapter of BOYB to Bicentennial Committee Chairman James J. ## PART XIV

CHICKEN: THE CRISP BROWN SAUTE
POULET SAUTE A BRUN, CROUSTILLANT; crisp brown sauteed chicken: hot or cold

This simple and straightforward chicken saute with its combination of browning and baking is the French answer to American fried chicken—it's crisp and beautifully brown on the outside, while the flesh is moist and tender inside. Accompany it with grilled or stuffed tomatoes and a fresh vegetable like broccoli or spinach—home French fries would go beautifully too. Or try eggplant dishes or garlicky potatoes with herbs and a salad of raw vegetables. Serve a not too heavy red wine like Beaujolais, Cotes du Rhone, Bordeaux Superieur, Gamay, or Zinfandel. (When you want to take cold chicken on a picnic, by the way, the crisp brown saute is the recipe to use.)

For 4 people
FOR THE CHICKEN
2½ lbs. ready-cut frying chicken (a selection of parts, or all of one kind)
About 1 cup milk in a bowl
Salt and pepper
About ½ cup flour
Butter and olive oil or cooking oil, or oil only (enough for browning the chicken, for basting it in the oven, and, if you wish, 2 to 3 tablespoons of butter to enrich the sauce)

FOR A BROWN DEGLAZING SAUCE

1 Tb minced shallots or green onions
¼ cup dry white wine or dry white French Vermouth
1 cup chicken stock or bouillon
The optional 2 to 3 tablespoons enrichment butter
Equipment: A large piece of wax paper; a heavy iron frying pan with short iron handle to brown and bake the chicken in, or a frying pan to brown the chicken and a shallow roasting pan for baking; tongs; a wooden spoon and fork for turning the chicken without piercing its flesh. BROWNING THE CHICKEN: 8 to 10 minutes, and may be done ahead. Just before you brown the chicken, dip each piece in the milk, shake off excess, and arrange chicken on wax paper.

Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Shake the flour over the chicken, and turn it about to coat completely. Pat in the flour with your hands, then shake each piece to remove excess flour. Immediately set frying pan over moderately high heat, adding 2 tablespoons butter and 1 of oil (or oil only), or enough to film bottom of pan by almost ¼ inch. When butter foams up and foam then almost subsides (or oil is very hot but not smoking), arrange as many chicken pieces in the pan as will fit easily without crowding, skin side down. Brown several minutes on each side, adding a little more oil if needed; as one piece is done remove it and add another. At end of browning, pour out the fat. Either return all chicken to pan, if it is ovenproof, or transfer the chicken to a shallow roasting pan. Preheat oven to 375 degrees in time for next step.

*Chicken may be browned in advance; if done several hours or a day in advance, let cool, then cover and refrigerate.

FINAL BAKING OF THE CHICKEN: 20 to 30 minutes, oven at 375 degrees. If you have a mixture of dark and light meat (wings and breasts); it will be added later, since it takes less time to cook. Melt 2 tablespoons of butter and 1 of oil (or use oil only), and baste the chicken in the pan with droplets, reserving rest for later basting. If skillet has cooled off or roasting pan is heavy, heat on top of stove until chicken is sizzling, then set in upper-middle level of preheated oven. In 5 minutes, or when chicken has begun to sizzle in the oven, baste quickly again. (Use accumulated fat in roasting pan when butter and oil are used up.) In 4 to 5 minutes, turn the chicken, add the white meat, and baste again.

*At this point, you may set chicken aside uncovered, at room temperature, and continue later; it will take 15 minutes or more to finish since it will have cooked off.

In 5 minutes, turn and baste the chicken, repeat in 5 minutes, and check on doneness. Juices beginning to emerge in the pan are a sure sign that the time is near. Drumsticks and thighs should feel tender when pressed. Pierce the meat with a fork: the juices should run clear yellow with no rosy traces. Check carefully, since while underdone chicken is inedible, overdone chicken with dried out, juiceless flesh is a shame. BROWN DEGLAZING SAUCE, AND SERVING. When done, arrange the chicken on a hot serving platter and keep warm in hot turned-off oven with its door ajar. Pour excess fat out of pan, add the minced shallots or onions, and stir for 1 minute over moderate heat on top of the stove. Add the wine and stock, scraping up into it all coagulated roasting juices, and boil down rapidly until liquid is slightly syrupy. Taste for seasoning. Just before serving, remove from heat and add optional enrichment butter, swishing pan to melt butter into the sauce; pour sauce into a warm bowl—you will have just enough for a small spoonful of concentrated essence to surround each serving. Decorate chicken platter with sprigs of parsley or watercress, or whatever vegetables you wish, and serve as soon as possible.

OTHER SAUCES, FOLLOWING THE SYSTEM

DEGLAZING SAUCE WITH CREAM. After removing excess fat from pan, add a tablespoon of minced shallot or scallion and saute a moment, then stir in ¼ cup wine or Vermouth and ¼ cup stock and boil down rapidly. When syrupy, stir in 1 cup of heavy cream or creme fraiche, and boil a moment or two until lightly thickened. Off heat, swirl in 2 to 3 tablespoons fresh butter, if you wish, and a spoonful of fresh minced herbs (chives, parsley, tarragon, or parsley only).

MUSTARD SAUCE. Make the preceding sauce with cream as described, but blend 2 tablespoons of strong Dijon-type prepared mustard in a small bowl with ¼ cup of the cream. Stir it into the pan along with the rest of the cream, and continue as directed. Mustard gives a subtle bite to the sauce, as well as a light thickening.

FRESH TOMATO FONDUE. This makes a pretty as well as delectable accompaniment, particularly in tomato season. Peel, seed, and dice several tomatoes, to give you 2 cups of pulp. After removing excess fat from the pan, and sauteing 1 to 2 tablespoons of minced shallow or scallion for a moment, stir in ¼ cup each of white wine or Vermouth and chicken stock. Boil down rapidly until syrupy, then stir in the tomato, a clove of pureed garlic if you wish, and a teaspoon of fresh tarragon or basil, or a big pinch of dried tarragon, thyme, or oregano. Saute, stirring and folding, for 2 to 3 minutes, to cook the tomatoes; taste for seasoning, fold in a spoonful or two of fresh parsley, and turn into a warm bowl. You will have about 2 spoonfuls to accompany each serving.

CHICKEN PARMIGIANO (CRISP BROWN SAUTE OF CHICKEN WITH PARMESAN CHEESE). This is not an Italian recipe. I just happen to like the name, and it doesn't need formal directions at all. Follow the main recipe for the Crisp Brown Saute. When the chicken is almost done, and has 5 minutes or so to go, arrange it skin side up in its pan. Paint top sides with a thin coating of strong Dijon-type prepared

HELPING HAND

Do you have some time to spare? Perhaps you'd like to brush up on some skills. Interested in trying out a new field? Maybe you'd just like to do something for someone who needs you.

You can help. Throughout our area, there are many non-profit organizations which need volunteer workers in many capacities. They have need for people with an hour a week, a few hours a month; for people who have free mornings, afternoons or evening time.

Butter and olive oil or cooking oil, or oil only (enough for browning the chicken, for basting it in the oven, and, if you wish, 2 to 3 tablespoons of butter to enrich the sauce)

FOR A BROWN DEGLAZING SAUCE

1 Tb minced shallots or green onions
¼ cup dry white wine or dry white French Vermouth
1 cup chicken stock or bouillon

The optional 2 to 3 tablespoons enrichment butter
Equipment: A large piece of wax paper; a heavy iron frying pan with short iron handle to brown and bake the chicken in, or a frying pan to brown the chicken and a shallow roasting pan for baking; tongs or a wooden spoon and fork for turning the chicken without piercing its flesh. BROWNING THE CHICKEN: 8 to 10 minutes, and may be done head. Just before you brown the chicken, dip each piece in the milk, shake off excess, and arrange chicken on wax paper.

Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Shake the flour over the chicken, and turn it about to coat completely. Pat in the flour with your hands, then shake each piece to remove excess flour. Immediately set frying pan over moderately high heat, adding 2 tablespoons butter and 1 of oil (or oil only), or enough to film bottom of pan by almost ¼ inch. When butter foams up and foam then almost subsides (or oil is very hot but not smoking), arrange as many chicken pieces in the pan as will fit easily without crowding, skin side down. Brown several minutes on each side, adding a little more oil if needed; as one piece is done remove it and add another. At end of browning, pour out the fat. Either return all chicken to pan, if it is ovenproof, or transfer the chicken to a shallow roasting pan. Preheat oven to 375 degrees in time for next step.

*Chicken may be browned in advance; if done several hours or a day in advance, let cool, then cover and refrigerate.

FINAL BAKING OF THE CHICKEN: 20 to 30 minutes, oven at 375 degrees. If you have a mixture of dark and light meat (wings and breasts); it will be added later, since it takes less time to cook. Melt 2 tablespoons of butter and 1 of oil (or use oil only), and baste the chicken in the pan with droplets, reserving rest for later basting. If skillet has cooled off or roasting pan is heavy, heat on top of stove until chicken is sizzling, then set in upper-middle level of preheated oven. In 5 minutes, or when chicken has begun to sizzle in the oven, baste quickly again. (Use accumulated fat in roasting pan when butter and oil are used up.) In 4 to 5 minutes, turn the chicken, add the white meat, and baste again.

*At this point, you may set chicken aside uncovered, at room temperature, and continue later; it will take 15 minutes or more to finish since it will have cooked off.

In 5 minutes, turn and baste the chicken. repeat in 5 minutes, and check on doneness. Juices beginning to emerge in the pan are a sure sign that the time is near. Drumsticks and thighs should feel tender when pressed. Pierce the meat with a fork: the juices should run clear yellow with no rosy traces. Check carefully, since while underdone chicken is inedible, overdone chicken with dried out, juiceless flesh is a shame.

BROWN DEGLAZING SAUCE, AND SERVING. When done, arrange the chicken on a hot serving platter and keep warm in hot turned-off oven with its door ajar. Pour excess fat out of pan, add the minced shallots or onions, and stir for 1 minute over moderate heat on top of the stove. Add the wine and stock, scraping up into it all coagulated roasting juices, and boil down rapidly until liquid is slightly syrupy. Taste for seasoning. Just before serving, remove from heat and add optional enrichment butter, swishing pan to melt butter into the sauce; pour sauce into a warm bowl—you will have just enough for a small spoonful of concentrated essence to surround each serving. Decorate chicken platter with sprigs of parsley or watercress, or whatever vegetables you wish, and serve as soon as possible.

OTHER SAUCES, FOLLOWING THE SYSTEM
DEGLAZING SAUCE WITH CREAM. After removing excess fat from pan, add a tablespoon of minced shallot or scallion and saute a moment, then stir in ¼ cup wine or Vermouth and ¼ cup stock and boil down rapidly. When syrupy, stir in 1 cup of heavy cream or creme fraiche, and boil a moment or two until lightly thickened. Off heat, swish in 2 to 3 tablespoons fresh butter, if you wish, and a spoonful of fresh minced herbs (chives, parsley, tarragon, or parsley only).

MUSTARD SAUCE. Make the preceding sauce with cream as described, but blend 2 tablespoons of strong Dijon-type prepared mustard in a small bowl with ¼ cup of the cream. Stir it into the pan along with the rest of the cream, and continue as directed. Mustard gives a subtle bite to the sauce, as well as a light thickening.

FRESH TOMATO FONDUE. This makes a pretty as well as delectable accompaniment, particularly in tomato season. Peel, seed, and dice several tomatoes, to give you 2 cups of pulp. After removing excess fat from the pan, and sauteing 1 to 2 tablespoons of minced shallot or scallion for a moment, stir in ¼ cup each of white wine or Vermouth and chicken stock. Boil down rapidly until syrupy, then stir in the tomato, a clove of pureed garlic if you wish, and a teaspoon of fresh tarragon or basil, or a big pinch of dried tarragon, thyme, or oregano. Saute, stirring and folding, for 2 to 3 minutes, to cook the tomatoes; taste for seasoning, fold in a spoonful or two of fresh parsley, and turn into a warm bowl. You will have about 2 spoonfuls to accompany each serving.

CHICKEN PARMIGIANO (CRISP BROWN SAUTE OF CHICKEN WITH PARMESAN CHEESE). This is not an Italian recipe. I just happen to like the name, and it doesn't need formal directions at all. Follow the main recipe for the Crisp Brown Saute. When the chicken is almost done, and has 5 minutes or so to go, arrange it skin side up in its pan. Paint top sides with a thin coating of strong Dijon-type prepared mustard, spread on a fairly thick coating of freshly grated Parmesan cheese—¼ inch or so—and baste with the juices of the pan. Finish the cooking and serve with the plain brown deglazing sauce outlined in the recipe.

A Garden in the Shade

If you have a shady yard and want a garden, you will have a problem if you use plants that are not adapted to shade.

There are many degrees of shade, varying from the kind you find in a dense pine forest to the light shade that is characteristic of a sparsely wooded area.

In the temperate zones flowers that thrive in full shade are not numerous. Many will endure in partial shade but most prefer full sunlight. Spring-blooming wildflowers that carpet woodland floors might seem to be an exception, but these complete their cycles before or during the time foliage is developing on the trees.

Where there are comparatively few trees and they begin to branch high off the ground, as in the plan, you have an ideal environment for rhododendrons and azaleas — ideal, that is, if you also have good drainage and an acid soil — or can easily provide one. Both are absolute requirements for successfully growing these broadleaf evergreens.

Rhododendrons and most azaleas will stand considerable shade. Even light shade is beneficial in preserving the intensity of color in the blooms so flowers retain their brilliance for a longer period of time. Deciduous azaleas do best when they receive full sun for at least half of the day. For this reason I have placed in the plan the Koster's Brilliant azaleas where they will receive adequate sunlight.

With care in selecting varieties for your rhododendron-azalea garden, you can obtain desirable sequence of bloom extending over several months.

Of the plants shown in the plan the first to bloom is the Korean Azalea. In late March or early April this azalea enlivens the sombre landscape with its pale purple flowers.

Next, in early May, comes the light rosy pink flowers of Spring Glory. Around May 25 flowering buds of Desiree, a white flowering azalea, unfold.

Shortly thereafter "Tony" rhododendron is covered with cherry-red flowers. Also late in May the deciduous azalea Koster's Brilliant is adorned with brilliant copper-colored blossoms.

Early in June the fuchsia-purple flowers of the Roseum Elegans rhododendrons break forth into bloom, and finally, late in June, the tall-growing Rosebay rhododendron presents its rose colored flowers.

Indoor Gardening

Indoor gardeners who feature succulents in their plant collections may have a dozen or more species and varieties of sedums, most of them upright-growers with plump, glaucous foliage arranged in neat rosettes.

One of the loveliest, however, is Burro tail (Sedum morganianum) which develops long, heavy, tassel-like branches of closely overlapping, yellowish-green leaves with a pale grayish-blue bloom. An ideal plant for a hanging planter in a sunny window, a well-grown Burro tail seems to shimmer as the light strikes its softly-hued foliage. Even small plants are attractive and may be kept on a glass windowsill until they're large enough to be incorporated into a hanging basket.

Care for this sedum is simple. Provide a moderately warm place, preferably where night temperatures will be slightly cooler, water only when the soil begins to feel quite dry, and give the plant the sunniest exposure available. Do be cautious about watering, too much moisture can cause leaf spotting, and (even worse) rotting of the roots or stems. If the plant doesn't receive enough sun, its leaves will be too widely spaced and too poorly colored to be attractive.

Propagate Burro tail by inserting individual leaves shallowly in sandy soil, or by just laying them upon the soil in the parent-plant's pot. New plants may also be started from tip cuttings, of course, but since half the charm of the cause vacation time is coming up soon for many of you, and the moral of the story is: make sure your plant-sitter knows enough to do a good job.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q Most of the time I love your column, and it's the first thing I read in our Sunday paper. Usually, you give good, practical advice which I've found to be very useful, but once in a while you sure goof. Your advice on how to make a Christmas cactus bloom certainly isn't the way I get mine to flower, and I've had my plant for over 30 years, with lots of flowers every winter. How do you account for that?

A Well, first of all, I'd say you're a knowledgeable, experienced gardener with an exceptionally robust plant, and you certainly should keep on with your way of doing things instead of changing to follow my advice.

Have you ever heard the saying about there being three ways to do things? My way, your way and the right way. In these columns, I try to give advice that will be the best, under most circumstances, for the greatest number of my readers. When a reader is successful using other methods, as you obviously are, then my advice is to keep right on doing what you're doing and never mind that we don't agree.

Q I have a maidenhair fern that would be gorgeous if it didn't have a slug hidden away in it somewhere. I've tried slug bait and stale beer but the pest is still getting fatter by the day, eating the tender new fronds. What can you suggest?

A Although slugs (and snails) like moist places, they don't like being drowned. Set your plant in a container full of water, so that only the very tips of the fronds are exposed. Then draw up a chair and wait. Pretty soon you'll see the slug struggling to get up into the foliage still above water, and you can pluck it off.

Q I started some hibiscus cuttings last fall with no trouble, this spring, every single one rotted instead of rooting. Why?

Mr. Meltzer

Good View May Be Bad News

Very often I receive letters from readers who live in high-rise apartments who have a tendency to brag about their "good view."

The following letter illustrates that this can be a short-lived advantage.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Two years ago my last daughter was married, and it became senseless to maintain our family home.

My wife and I decided to sell our house and buy a condominium apartment in a new high-rise building. When we purchased this apartment unit, there was a wide variety of apartments from which to choose.

Generally, the price varied depending on whether it was a front or back exposure, and the height within the building. We decided to go first class and chose an apartment on one of the upper floors facing the best direction.

We have had a tremendous amount of enjoyment from this apartment, and are especially proud of entertaining in the evening when the view of the surrounding city is spectacular.

Last week we were informed that the same developer who built our building is planning to build another one on the vacant lot in front of our building. Not only will this eliminate our view, but will cut out a substantial amount of our morning sunlight — and even block the flow of cool air that we experience on our balcony.

I am prepared to spend whatever amount of money is necessary. Please tell me how I can stop this violation of my rights. — GOOD VIEW.

As long as the developer is not violating any zoning ordinance in constructing the new business, then you have no rights.

There is no guarantee of light, air or a good view in real estate. In selecting a condominium apartment under similar circumstances you should always try to anticipate future construction to prevent this sort of thing from happening.

Buying an apartment facing an open lot is a vulnerable situation. You are generally better off if you face a public street.

If you are ready to spend money to remedy this situation, the best solution is to sell your apartment and buy a unit in a new building.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Recently I had a new formica countertop installed in my kitchen. The workmen left some excess cement on my kitchen cabinets. They are unwilling to come back to clean it off, and plain soap does not do it.

What can I use? — STUCK UP.

A laminated plastic countertop is usually installed with contact cement. The most effective way to remove this is with lacquer thinner. It should come off easily and not affect your existing cabinets.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: For the past 40 years there has been a public road behind my house that is never used. My neighbor informs me that it was constructed during the depression as a WPA project.

This year the commissioners decided to abandon the road. Who owns the land now? — DEAD END.

If the road has been officially abandoned, then the land reverts to the adjoining property owners. The property up to the center line is yours. Property on the other side of the center line belongs to your neighbor across the street.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I rented my apartment two years ago. I was required to give the agent a deposit equivalent to one month's rent. My lease is up in a month, and I have given notice to vacate.

I told the real estate agent that he should use my deposit for the last month. This seems fair to me. It doesn't seem fair to him. He sent me a nasty letter.

Why should I have to give him an additional month's rent? — NO DEPOSIT, NO RETURN.

The one month deposit that you have left with the agent is a security payment, the return of which is contingent upon you vacating the apartment in the condition in which you found it.

Naturally, if you use that as your last month's rental, your agent has no security. This is the basis for his dissatisfaction.

If you wish to play by the book, then you should pay the last month's rent. If the landlord is equally fair, you will get your deposit back if there is no damage.

Want a finer lawn? Then read this!

Warren research facilities, established twenty years ago have under observation over 1,000 strains and species of grasses. Some of these grasses have been patented and are available to the public in various parts of the United States and Europe.

About ten years ago one of these new grasses

BenSun (A-34)

was introduced throughout the country. Its performance has proven to be outstanding for these reasons:

- Rated first in shade tolerance (up to 65%) yet grows vigorously in full sunlight
- Rated first in wear tolerance by a university doing turfgrass research (Of eighteen top bluegrasses tested, for golf course use, BenSun (A-34) was the only grass to receive an excellent rating)
- Quick to recover when injured and is used extensively on athletic fields and golf courses
- Does well in most soils, and is highly drought resistant
- Thrives in hot or cold climates, at high or low altitudes
- Requires less fertilizer to keep it healthy
- Can be mowed down to 1/2 inch when planted in sunlight
- One pound of seed will plant 2,000 sq. ft. of new lawn area at a cost of only 1/2¢ per square foot
- BenSun (A-34) Lawngrass Seed carries this guarantee: "If you are not satisfied with the results obtained from this seed, return the empty box with proof of purchase within 6 months to Warren's Turf Nursery, Inc. You will be supplied with more seed or your money will be refunded, your choice."

Insecticide

Pest management in fruit is easier when you depend on Imidan insecticide. Imidan controls major destructive insects through the season. Use Imidan on apples for green and rosy aphids, leaf rollers, curculio, codling moth and apple maggot.

And use Imidan for other fruits, too. You get excellent control of Oriental fruit moth, curculio, cherry fruit fly, pear psylla and grape berry moth. And you suppress tarnished plant bug.

Imidan also helps you get the finest fruit finish with no russetting problem, even on Red and Golden Delicious. Get a better fruit crop with fine finish. Always follow label directions carefully. See your Stauffer supplier for Imidan.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. Most of the time I love your column, and it's the first thing I read in our Sunday paper. Usually, you give good, practical advice which I've found to be very useful, but once in a while you sure goof. Your advice on how to make a Christmas cactus bloom certainly isn't the way I get mine to flower, and I've had my plant for over 30 years, with lots of flowers every winter. How do you account for that?

A. Well, first of all, I'd say you're a knowledgeable, experienced gardener with an exceptionally robust plant, and you certainly should keep on with your way of doing things instead of changing to follow my advice.

Have you ever heard the saying about there being three ways to do things? My way, your way and the right way. In these columns, I try to give advice that will be the best, under most circumstances, for the greatest number of my readers. When a reader is successful using other methods, as you obviously are, then my advice is to keep right on doing what you're doing and never mind that we don't agree.

Q. I have a maidenhair fern that would be gorgeous if it didn't have a slug hidden away in it somewhere. I've tried slug bait and stale beer but the pest is still getting fatter by the day, eating the tender new fronds. What can you suggest?

A. Although slugs (and snails) like moist places, they don't like being drowned. Set your plant in a container full of water, so that only the very tips of the fronds are exposed. Then draw up a chair and wait. Pretty soon you'll see the slug struggling to get up into the foliage still above water, and you can pluck it off.

Q. I started some hibiscus cuttings last fall with no trouble; this spring, every single one rotted instead of rooting. Why?

A. Fall cuttings should be made from fairly mature growth; early spring cuttings should be taken from newer growth.

Mr. Meltzer

Good View May Be Bad News

Very often I receive letters from readers who live in high-rise apartments who have a tendency to brag about their "good view."

The following letter illustrates that this can be a short-lived advantage.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Two years ago my last daughter was married, and it became senseless to maintain our family home.

My wife and I decided to sell our house and buy a condominium apartment in a new high-rise building. When we purchased this apartment unit, there was a wide variety of apartments from which to choose.

Generally, the price varied depending on whether it was a front or back exposure, and the height within the building. We decided to go first class and chose an apartment on one of the upper floors facing the best direction.

We have had a tremendous amount of enjoyment from this apartment, and are especially proud of entertaining in the evening when the view of the surrounding city is spectacular.

Last week we were informed that the same developer who built our building is planning to build another one on the vacant lot in front of our building. Not only will this eliminate our view, but will cut out a substantial amount of our morning sunlight — and even block the flow of cool air that we experience on our balcony.

I am prepared to spend whatever amount of money is necessary. Please tell me how I can stop this violation of my rights. — GOOD VIEW.

As long as the developer is not violating any zoning ordinance in constructing the new business, then you have no rights.

There is no guarantee of light, air or a good view in real estate. In selecting a condominium apartment under similar circumstances you should always try to anticipate future construction to prevent this sort of thing from happening.

Buying an apartment facing an open lot is a vulnerable situation. You are generally better off if you face a public street.

If you are ready to spend money to remedy this situation, the best solution is to sell your apartment and buy a unit in a new building.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Recently I had a new formica countertop installed in my kitchen. The workmen left some excess cement on my kitchen cabinets. They are unwilling to come back to clean it off, and plain soap does not do it.

What can I use? — STUCK UP.

A laminated plastic countertop is usually installed with contact cement. The most effective way to remove this is with lacquer thinner. It should come off easily and not affect your existing cabinets.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: For the past 40 years there has been a public road behind my house that is never used. My neighbor informs me that it was constructed during the depression as a WPA project.

This year the commissioners decided to abandon the road. Who owns the land now? — DEAD END.

If the road has been officially abandoned, then the land reverts to the adjoining property owners. The property up to the center-line is yours. Property on the other side of the center-line belongs to your neighbor across the street.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I rented my apartment two years ago. I was required to give the agent a deposit equivalent to one month's rent. My lease is up in a month, and I have given notice to vacate.

I told the real estate agent that he should use my deposit for the last month. This seems fair to me. It doesn't to him. He sent me a nasty letter.

Why should I have to give him an additional month's rent? — NO DEPOSIT, NO RETURN.

The one month deposit that you have left with the agent is a security payment, the return of which is contingent upon you vacating the apartment in the condition in which you found it.

Naturally, if you use that as your last month's rental, your agent has no security. This is the basis for his dissatisfaction.

If you wish to play by the book, then you should pay the last month's rent. If the landlord is equally fair, you will get your deposit back if there is no damage.

Want a finer lawn? Then read this!

Warren's research facilities, established twenty years ago, have under observation over 1,000 strains and species of grasses. Some of these grasses have been patented and are available to the public in various parts of the United States and Europe.

About ten years ago one of these new grasses...

BenSun (A-34)

KENTUCKY BLUEGRASS

... was introduced throughout the country. Its performance has proven to be outstanding for these reasons:

- Rated first in shade tolerance (up to 65%) yet grows vigorously in full sunlight.
- Rated first in wear tolerance by a university doing turfgrass research. (Of eighteen top bluegrasses tested, for golf course use, BenSun (A-34) was the only grass to receive an excellent rating.)
- Quick to recover when injured and is used extensively on athletic fields and golf courses.
- Does well in most soils, and is highly drought resistant.
- Thrives in hot or cold climates, at high or low altitudes.
- Requires less fertilizer to keep it healthy.
- Can be mowed down to 1/2 inch when planted in sunlight.
- One pound of seed will plant 2,000 sq. ft. of new lawn area at a cost of only 1/3¢ per square foot.
- BenSun (A-34) Lawngrass Seed carries this guarantee: "If you are not satisfied with the results obtained from this seed, return the empty box with proof of purchase within 6 months to Warren's Turf Nursery, Inc. You will be supplied with more seed or your money will be refunded, your choice."

Insecticide

Pest management in fruit is easier when you depend on Imidan insecticide. Imidan controls major destructive insects through the season. Use Imidan on apples for green and rosy aphids, leaf rollers, curculio, codling moth and apple maggot.

And use Imidan for other fruits, too. You get excellent control of Oriental fruit moth, curculio, cherry fruit fly, pear psylla and grape berry moth. And you suppress tarnished plant bug.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

On February 20, 1776, David Hartly, a member of Parliament sympathetic to the Americans, wrote to Benjamin Franklin: "The King and his administration has effectively stopped all channels of communications between this country and its colonies. I have dreaded this happening as it is a fatal and final step leading to total separation." The World Almanac relates.

Father Sisk (l), Father and Mrs. Shellenberger

Named Rector Emeritus

KINGSTON—The Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger has been named rector emeritus of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Announcement was made in a surprise ceremony last Sunday at the church. At that time he received a prolonged standing ovation from the entire congregation.

Father Shellenberger, widely known as Padre, served as rector of St. John's for nearly 30 years. He retired in 1972, but remains actively involved in church and community affairs.

Father and Mrs. Shellenberger were given a copy of the Vestry resolution of election by the current rector, the Rev. Mark S. Sisk.

During his long tenure, Father Shellenberger became and remains a well known community figure, serving as chaplain of many local organizations. In its unanimously passed resolution, the Vestry noted this breadth of service when it cited him for "a generation of dedicated service to parish and community during one of our land's most tumultuous times."

Cults and Christianity

RHINEBECK—A special series of meetings is underway at the First Baptist Church of Rhinebeck with Professor James Bjornstad examining two cults in the light of the Scriptures.

Today at the 11 a.m. service, he will discuss Being God's Witnesses in This Age and at 6:30 p.m. the teachings of the Unification Church will be examined. The evening topic is The Bible versus The Divine Principle—Moonism.

The Rev. John Koppenaal, host pastor, extends an invitation to the public to attend.

Programs Friday and Saturday dealt with The Theology of Jehovah's Witnesses and God, Jesus and the Watchtower.

Professor Bjornstad is the founder and executive director of the Institute of Contemporary Christianity, with headquarters in Oakland, N.J. The Institute is a research organization designed to the current world situation and provide answers to the analyze modern issues and problems of the day from a Biblical perspective.

In addition, he is an assistant professor of philosophy and theology at Northeastern Bible College, Essex Falls, N.J., and is an active elected member of his district's high school's board of education.

He has spent 12 years in the area of research and is a recognized scholar in the area of current religious movements, trends and issues. He has lectured extensively and has authored numerous articles for national publications.

Sabbath Issue Goes to Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "My religion won't allow me to work on Saturdays."

That remark has generated a spate of federal lawsuits since 1972, when Congress obliged employers to make "reasonable accommodations" to their employees' religious needs, without "undue hardship" to the business.

The Supreme Court may decide whether the 1972 law is an unconstitutional breach of the wall between church and state, or it might establish some guidelines to help lower court judges determine what "undue hardship" means.

The court has accepted a test case initiated by Paul Cummins, a foreman at the Berea, Ky., plant of the Parker Seal Co., who was discharged after he had refused to work Saturdays for more than a year.

Cummins had joined the World Wide Church of God, a sect which believes God frowns on Saturday work.

The church's lawyer, Ralph Helge of Pasadena, Calif., said its 100,000 members believe in the Old Testament story of creation, in which the seventh day is a day of rest.

Even though Christian practice has shifted the seventh day to Sunday, the first day of the week, the World Wide Church of God regards Saturday as the true Sabbath, he said.

Members are forbidden to attend sports events or engage in other amusements on that day. It is a day for prayer, Bible study and doing good. Failure to observe the Sabbath results in expulsion from the church.

"We are not interested in just having names on a roll," Helge said.

The pastor general is Herbert W. Armstrong of Pasadena, father of Garner Ted Armstrong, the radio-television preacher.

Another case with an added twist was begun by a World Wide Church of God member, Larry G. Harrison of Kansas City. He sued Trans World Airlines and the machinists union, which said the law "creates an unhealthy and divisive conflict in the nation's work force."

Another appeal was brought by McCann L. Reid, a Seventh-day Adventist who said he was denied a job on the copy desk of the Memphis, Tenn., Press-Scimitar in 1967 because he insisted on having Saturdays free. The paper publishes six days a week and maintains a reduced staff on Saturdays.

Organ Recital Today

J. Charles Brand, noted blind organist, will present a recital today 4 p.m. at Holy Name of Jesus Church, 11 Fitch Street, Wilbur. Selections will include Bach, Buxtehude, J. Bonnet and Vierne. Refreshments will be served after the recital. The public may attend.

Evangelism Week Starts

Thursday at 7:30.

Each morning clergymen and laymen from other participating churches in the Hudson Valley will meet at Trinity church for Bible study led by the Rev. Sterling Johnson followed by a discussion and fellowship luncheon.

Guest speaker for the services will be Nels Pederson, an evangelist and Bible Conference teacher for the Lutheran Evangelistic Movement of Minneapolis, Minn.

He has been doing evangelistic work for more than 25 years, traveling throughout the United States and Canada and has a wide experience in evangelism and personal counseling.

Pederson began his evangelistic work with the LEM in 1954, having devoted six years to similar work on an independent basis prior to his call to the LEM.

The public may attend all parts of the program. The host pastor is the Rev. Alvin F. Messersmith.

Film in Olivebridge

OLIVEBRIDGE—Discipline in the Home, a new family film, will be shown at the Olivebridge United Methodist Church today at 7 p.m. A hymn sing will be included on the program with the film.

Parents and children of the community may attend to view the film which shows how parents may see the children in terms of not only their problems but in the potential of what they may become.

Dr. Howard Hendricks, a noted authority on family relations shows that the primary concern of parents should not be "What will my child think of me now?" but, "What will my child think of me 20 years from now?"

Discipline in the Home is a new release from Gospel Films Inc. of Muskegon, Mich.

170 Years of Service

Christ's Lutheran Church, Woodstock, celebrating its 170th Anniversary took the occasion to pay tribute to three active members whose combined record of faithful worship and service totals more than 170 years. Special recognition was given Miss Florence Peper who has for 48 years prepared the sacramental vessels for celebration of Holy Communion. With her was Percy Crowell, oldest member of the church who was baptized there in 1889. Taking part in the recognition were the Rev. Walter Kortrey, pastor and Erwin Holumzer (r) who read a tribute. The third "four score servant" is Victor Lasher.

Action on Adoption Bill

KINGSTON—The Kingston Area Council of Churches has started action to alter current "antiquated and unwieldy laws" for adoption.

The council's community relations committee recently submitted a report detailing the adoption process as it exists now. Among other problems it was noted that adoption services are not mandated for each county and that counties are reimbursed only for placing children from within their own boundaries.

At the present time there is a bill before the New York State Assembly that mandates adoption services in every district for every state child, provides reimbursement of all services related to adoption and provides sharing of reimbursement between agencies on the same child. Therefore, a child from Oneida County, for example, could be adopted in Ulster County and Ulster County would be reimbursed for placing that child, reimbursement that is not possible now.

A letter has been drafted communicating the council's concern to the department of Social Services and requesting information as to the present status of adoption services in Ulster County.

The council approved the sending of this letter to Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer and sharing the letter with other church councils in the State of New York.

Resettlement Director

POUGHKEEPSIE—David S. Vandewater, Glenham, has been named director of the Mid-Hudson Indochinese Resettlement Center, it was announced recently by Dr. M. Lawrence Snow, chairman of the Dutchess Interfaith Vietnamese Resettlement Task Force.

The Dutchess Interfaith Council applied for and received a grant from Church World Service, the relief arm of the National Council of Churches, for the purpose of establishing the resettlement center. Church World Service facilitated the resettlement of more than 18,000 refugees from Indochina in 1975.

The new center will serve the needs of the 300 Vietnamese and other Indochinese refugees in the Mid-Hudson region in the areas of employment, educational needs, counseling, advocacy and referral services including health care, cultural events, and special needs of children and youth.

Three part-time employees, one bilingual, will staff the center. There will be an advisory committee of 12 members chaired by Dr. Snow, senior pastor of Community United Methodist Church of Poughkeepsie.

A Bicentennial Walk

SAUGERTIES—The Saugerties Area Council of Churches installed officers and made plans for its Bicentennial celebration at the final meeting of the season last week.

Officers assuming posts for the coming year are the Rev. Ray Paterik, president; the Rev. Richard Purnell, first vice president; the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly, second vice president; Kenneth Blundell, treasurer and Mrs. Glenford Myers, secretary.

Details of the church walking tour to be conducted Sunday, July 4, were announced by Isabel DeCelle. The tour will start at St. Mary of the Snow Church with a slide presentation of the churches to be visited and will conclude at the First Baptist Church, Partition Street. At each stop a short history of the house of worship will be presented. Hours will be 12:15 to 2 p.m.

In collaboration with the National Bicentennial Committee, it is planned that at 2 p.m. on July 4 all church bells will be rung to commemorate the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

During presentation of reports it was revealed that George Thornton has declined reimbursement for use of his building on Partition Street by The Well thrift shop because of its community service.

Ministers of Eucharist

POUGHKEEPSIE—Three Sisters at St. Francis Hospital were mandated as Extraordinary Ministers of the Nettie Gaylord, manager of The Well, announced that clothing for infants and small children is needed in addition to household articles, appliances and toys. The food bank can use more canned vegetables and fruits. Donations may be left at The Well Thursdays between 12 noon and 3 p.m.

Eucharist last week during noon Mass at Our Lady of Angels Chapel at the hospital. They are Sisters Marie Collette, Jean Canora and Lorraine Marie.

The Most Rev. Joseph M. Pernicone, Bishop, has given these Sisters permission to distribute Holy Communion to patients at St. Francis Hospital. They will be assisting hospital chaplain, the Rev. Peter Rudden, when the need arises.

To Honor Pastor

ACCORD—The Rochester Reformed Church, Accord, will host a fellowship hour after church service this morning honoring the Rev. Joyce Stedje.

The Rev. Mrs. Stedje is leaving the community after being minister of the church for two and a half years.

East Kingston Celebration

Principals at the annual communion breakfast of the St. Liberati-St. John Society were (seated) Joseph Clausi, president, and Frank Berardi, oldest member; John Machione, guest speaker and Frank Castiglione, chairman. The society was organized at the turn of the century and still is active in the East Kingston area.

Action on Adoption Bill

KINGSTON—The Kingston Area Council of Churches has started action to alter current "antiquated and unwieldy laws" for adoption.

The council's community relations committee recently submitted a report detailing the adoption process as it exists now. Among other problems it was noted that adoption services are not mandated for each county and that counties are reimbursed only for placing children from within their own boundaries.

At the present time there is a bill before the New York State Assembly that mandates adoption services in every district for every state child, provides reimbursement of all services related to adoption and provides sharing of reimbursement between agencies on the same child. Therefore, a child from Oneida County, for example, could be adopted in Ulster County and Ulster County would be reimbursed for placing that child, reimbursement that is not possible now.

A letter has been drafted communicating the council's concern to the department of Social Services and requesting information as to the present status of adoption services in Ulster County.

The council approved the sending of this letter to Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer and sharing the letter with other church councils in the State of New York.

Resettlement Director

POUGHKEEPSIE—David S. Vandewater, Glenham, has been named director of the Mid-Hudson Indochinese Resettlement Center, it was announced recently by Dr. M. Lawrence Snow, chairman of the Dutchess Interfaith Vietnamese Resettlement Task Force.

The Dutchess Interfaith Council applied for and received a grant from Church World Service, the relief arm of the National Council of Churches, for the purpose of establishing the resettlement center. Church World Service facilitated the resettlement of more than 18,000 refugees from Indochina in 1975.

The new center will serve the needs of the 300 Vietnamese and other Indochinese refugees in the Mid-Hudson region in the areas of employment, educational needs, counseling, advocacy and referral services including health care, cultural events, and special needs of children and youth.

Three part-time employees, one bilingual, will staff the center. There will be an advisory committee of 12 members chaired by Dr. Snow, senior pastor of Community United Methodist Church of Poughkeepsie.

A Bicentennial Walk

SAUGERTIES—The Saugerties Area Council of Churches installed officers and made plans for its Bicentennial celebration at the final meeting of the season last week.

Officers assuming posts for the coming year are the Rev. Roy Paterik, president; the Rev. Richard Purnell, first vice president; the Rev. Edward L. Farrelly, second vice president; Kenneth Blundell, treasurer and Mrs. Glenford Myers, secretary.

Details of the church walking tour to be conducted Sunday, July 4, were announced by Isabel DeCelle. The tour will start at St. Mary of the Snow Church with a slide presentation of the churches to be visited and will conclude at the First Baptist Church, Partition Street. At each stop, a short history of the house of worship will be presented. Hours will be 12:15 to 2 p.m.

In collaboration with the National Bicentennial Committee, it is planned that at 2 p.m. on July 4 all church bells will be rung to commemorate the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

During presentation of reports it was revealed that George Thornton has declined reimbursement for use of his building on Partition Street by The Well thrift shop because of its community service.

Ministers of Eucharist

POUGHKEEPSIE—Three Sisters at St. Francis Hospital were mandated as Extraordinary Ministers of the Nettie Gaylord, manager of The Well, announced that clothing for infants and small children is needed in addition to household articles, appliances and toys. The food bank can use more canned vegetables and fruits. Donations may be left at The Well Thursdays between 12 noon and 3 p.m.

Eucharist last week during noon Mass at Our Lady of Angels Chapel at the hospital. They are Sisters Marie Collette, Jean Canora and Lorraine Marie.

The Most Rev. Joseph M. Pernicone, Bishop, has given these Sisters permission to distribute Holy Communion to patients at St. Francis Hospital. They will be assisting hospital chaplain, the Rev. Peter Rudden, when the need arises.

To Honor Pastor

ACCORD—The Rochester Reformed Church, Accord, will host a fellowship hour after church service this morning honoring the Rev. Joyce Stedje.

The Rev. Mrs. Stedje is leaving the community after being minister of the church for two and a half years.

East Kingston Celebration

Principals at the annual communion breakfast of the St. Liberati-St. John Society were (seated) Joseph Clausi, president, and Frank Berardi, oldest member; John Machione, guest speaker and Frank Castiglione, chairman. The society was organized at the turn of the century and still is active in the East Kingston area.

Linda Lovelace Hiding in S. A.

BY ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q. Will Sally Quinn marry her live-in boy friend Ben Bradlee, the Washington Post executive? - H.R., Joliet, Ill. A. She'd sure like to. In the meantime she's being the perfect mate, a veritable geisha, catering to Ben's every household whim. For instance, he doesn't like late hours so they're tucked in every night by ten. Bet you didn't know Sally was an old-fashioned girl. Q. Did Omar Sharif say he didn't like American girls and would no longer make movies with them? - I.W., Cheyenne, Wyo. A. Not quite. Omar's latest film, "Ace Up My Sleeve," co-stars Karen Black but that doesn't stop the dashing Egyptian from criticizing our women. His latest diatribe claims U.S. females are so domineering they have castrated their men. This leaves the women frustrated, of course, which explains why their fantasies are running more and more to dreams of violent encounters with older, tougher types like Telly Savalas and Charles Bronson. Better stick to your bridge playing, Omar. Q. Are all porno film stars now subject to arrest because of that Federal court case in Tennessee? - L.C., Dallas, Tex. A. It could be, if the verdict holds up on appeal. The jury in the U.S. Court in Memphis found that not only the producers and distributors of "Deep Throat" were guilty of interstate commerce in obscenity but the cast members as well. All could get five years and $5,000 fines. The film's star, Linda Lovelace, who did not appear, is said to be on the lam somewhere in South America. Just like another "Deep Throat." Q. How many women have been mentioned as replacement for Barbara Walters on the "Today" show? - K.L., Buffalo, N.Y. A. Plenty. But the list is too long to mention here. There is one interesting sidelight, however. TV host David Susskind was reportedly trying to get all the candidates together for his talk show. Some jokers point out that Susskind's studio isn't big enough to handle the crowd. We'll see. Q. What happened to that handsome actor named Gardner McKay? E.K., Bronxville, N.Y. A. McKay had one of those huge celebrity too-much-too-soon publicity buildups. When he didn't make it he simply dropped out of show business. McKay took up writing and has created a brand new career for himself. He sold two stories which will appear in Cosmopolitan magazine. In addition he's got a collection of short stories coming out in paperback. NO NAMES: A well-known health faddist who wrote a book on how to stay healthy is now taking her own advice. She's a member of one of the Los Angeles branches of Alcoholics Anonymous. Q. What does Doris Day's new husband do for a living? - R.R., Detroit, Mich. A. Barry Comden is a restaurant and catering man. Along the same lines, he and Doris are thinking about going into a joint venture. And guess what it is? Doris loves dogs and Barry loves Doris. You're right: a pet food company. What could be more appropriate? Q. Who is this woman the musicians call Lady Rock? - P.B., Bakersfield, Calif. A. That's Lady Patricia Pelham, daughter of the Duke of Newcastle who lives in Hollywood because she loves it and makes a living managing and promoting rock bands. Patricia, 27, is a smashing looker as her neighbors in the Hollywood hills may have noticed when she fled her house in the nude during the latest California earthquake. Was she frightened? Not a bit. Lady Rock loves earthquakes. "It's just like the whole world has turned into a cradle," she says.

Earl Mountbatten's Life Like an Epic Film Series

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Victoria fondled her newest grandson and, though no one could have known it that June 22, 1900, it was a historic moment. For the Empress of India was petting the infant who, 47 years later, would remove that resplendent title from the honors of the British crown.

Recently Earl Mountbatten of Burma went to a memorial service for his friend and wartime colleague, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Alamein. Though he is now 76 and grey he is still erect and distinguished and it is easy to see why he was considered one of the handsomest men of his time.

Good looks were only one of the many gifts a profligate fate bestowed on the son of Prince Victoria and a German nobleman, Prince Louis of Battenberg. From his birth at Frogmore House near Windsor Castle his life has unreeling like a series of film epics — except no author would dare to put down in fiction a career so astonishing in reality.

There was Mountbatten, the flamboyant confidant of the Prince of Wales, water-skiing in white tie and tails from one ship to another for a party. There was Mountbatten the war hero on the bridge of his destroyer Kelly as it went down guns blazing — and lived on in Noel Coward's film, "In Which We Serve," one of the morale boosters of the early days of World War II.

There was Mountbatten, the heartbroken teen-ager whose father was replaced as First Lord of the Admiralty in World War I because of his German origins (the family name was anglicized to Mountbatten) and who vowed to wipe out the affront — and rose to become First Sea Lord himself. There was Mountbatten, the leader of the Commandos, and then Supreme Commander in Southeast Asia, the longest front in the war.

There was Mountbatten the brilliant linguist and naval inventor — who as a hobby revolutionized British polo playing. And Mountbatten who was pursued by the great heiress, Edwina Ashley, across Europe and Asia to New Delhi where they became engaged in one of the enduring romances of the pre-war days. She died in 1960.

And there was Mountbatten, the last Viceroy of India, whose mission was to bring independence to India and Pakistan.

After his retirement as head of the Chiefs of Staff, Lord Mountbatten spent some time on a genealogy of his remarkable family — he is a descendant of Charlemagne the Great. Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth, is his nephew and there was another Mountbatten role there — as matchmaker.

When that was finished, he became interested in the United World Colleges, a chain of preuniversity colleges already established in Wales, Vancouver and Singapore, with five other locations under consideration. These will have multinational student bodies and are mainly financed by a combination of government and private donations.

He visited China in 1974, first member of the royal family to do so since 1949, and attended the coronation of the King of Nepal in 1975 with Prince Charles. Heir to the Throne, who said of him: "I admire him almost more than anybody I know."

Lord Mountbatten is concerned about the state of the world. "If the Third World War is fought with nuclear weapons," he has said, "the fourth will be fought with bows and arrows."

France's Bicentennial Gift: A Play About IK

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Sprawled on her back, the old blind woman kicked and screamed, struggling like an inverted turtle to turn over. Death was near. Around the aged African, people laughed. Colin M. Turnbull felt pity. He gave the old woman food, shelter and — perhaps most unusual for her — sympathy. But now, 10 years after first living with the Ik, a small tribe of hunters in northern Uganda, the 51-year-old social anthropologist and author isn't sure he'd do the same thing.

The incident he first perceived as grisly is now understandable, despite the emotional pangs.

And the woman herself questioned Turnbull's actions.

"She probably would have been happier dying while laughing at herself that afternoon rather than having it longed," said Turnbull, whose book about the Ik, "The Mountain People," was a best seller a few years ago.

"When I saw that woman on her back I couldn't resist helping her," he said. "But what good did I do? After giving her something to eat, I suggested she go and see her son."

But the old woman reminded Turnbull and his assistant that her son had already thrown his dying father out of his house because if he died inside he would have been required to hold a feast he could not afford for his neighbors.

"Then the woman cried," Turnbull said. "How did we help her by bringing her inside? We had made her remember when people did care for one another."

His study of the 1,000 members of the mountain tribe led to a play sponsored by the French government and produced in London by Peter Brook that will be given to the United States this fall as a Bicentennial gift.

Accompanied by lectures, the play will be performed at American universities.

Turnbull, now a professor at Virginia Commonwealth University, said his time with the Ik is part of a concern with African customs that has dominated his professional life.

He is a man with strong opinions about the validity of those customs, questioning the emphasis of white societies on technological development at the expense of personal relationships.

The Ik, Turnbull notes, are not typical of other African tribes, where traditions of family and dependence on elders are frequently much stronger than in Western countries.

Only half a century ago, the Ik was a tribe of proud hunters, individuals with normal emotions like other human beings.

But a life of bare subsistence — and the loss of those emotions — followed the imposition of colonial boundaries that prohibited hunters from venturing beyond certain geographical limits.

Rain hardly ever falls in the area, making the land almost impossible to farm.

Confronted with the limited natural resources and lacking the training, education or desire to abandon the tribe, the Ik learned to detach themselves from one another. A cliché perhaps, but only the strong survive.

Turnbull cites one particularly graphic scene from the play about the Ik in which a mother laughs at her 2-year-old son after he puts his hand in a fire, searing flesh.

"She was trying to teach the child not to care, not to trust anyone," he said. "Dependence is the one thing they can't afford."

By contrast with the Ik, other tribes encourage dependence.

"Other tribes teach their children from birth to be dependent," he said. "Mothers breast-feed their babies for three years, and it is not unusual for a father to hold his child up to his breast and tell him he may not be able to feed him the same way as his mother but that he can teach him how to hunt or other methods of getting food."

According to Turnbull, most African tribes have social systems in which the police are not armed, family ties are cohesive and crime is at a minimum.

In his newest book, "Man in Africa," Turnbull explores the ways Africans use nature as a guide for social customs involving such things as personal relationships, marriage and the family.

"Throughout Africa, social order is almost a given," he said. "We tend to expect disorder, we have come to expect it. With them it's the reverse, and that's incorporated into their religious beliefs. For them it's a very powerful force."

But Turnbull doesn't recommend the book.

"It was edited and rewritten so much I don't want anything to do with it at this point. They wanted to make it emotional, as my story about the Ik was, but I intended this one strictly for an academic market."

"They gave it the subtitle, 'From Cape to Cairo,' making it sound as if I were in a racing car zooming from one spot to another," he said.

Turnbull's experiences in primitive society wrought changes in his ability to deal with more technologically-oriented cultures.

And feeling he cannot revisit the Ik until he becomes more detached and objective, Turnbull has made the down-trodden of the United States one of his major concerns, saying the more he helps, the more he learns.

He teaches a course at the State Penitentiary and is working on two new books, one on Indian philosophy and the other that is to be an introduction to anthropology.

Turnbull lives in a rural black community outside Richmond, finding life in such surroundings more familiar than suburban American homes.

"When I first came over here I stayed with some friends in New Jersey, and I simply was not used to the type of hospitality they provided — clean sheets, a fresh shirt every day, fresh pajamas."

"Everybody called me by my first name and told me to help myself to whatever was in the refrigerator," he said. "I practically starved because it all seemed unreal and I was afraid to intrude, and life where I am now much more typical of what I have become used to. I don't know if it's living around blacks or just being in a rural environment," as an anthropologist, Turnbull says he benefits from studying the background of his prisoner-students, but he is also a severe critic of the nation's prison system.

He blames the large number of crimes committed by ex-convicts on a denial of opportunity for personal development. But as students, Turnbull finds the prisoners more stimulating, more mature and more interested in learning than many of the college students he teaches.

"I find them very exciting students anthropologically, though am not there for research," he said. "But in teaching you begin to learn about their lives, their communities. I'm getting great input from it."

While critical of some black African leaders, such as Uganda's Idi Amin, Turnbull argues Amin has assets as a leader.

He also believes much of the current political turmoil was predictable a decade ago and forecasts a short future for Ian Smith's white-minority rule in Rhodesia.

"They should have made changes 10 years ago, appointed blacks to cabinet positions," he said. "But now it's too late."

Turnbull regrets the fighting and bloodshed that have characterized political unrest in parts of Africa, but believes some whites "have behaved like such utter monsters" toward blacks that the unrest is to be expected. "Britain is very fond of calling America racist, yet I have never seen anything since living in Richmond that resembles the way whites treat blacks in Africa," he said.

As for Amin, Turnbull said while he does not approve of recent dictatorial acts by the Ugandan premier, he contends Amin restored peace and at least some freedom to a country previously plagued by roving robber bands and general disorder.

Amin gained notoriety through a dispute with Britain's Queen Elizabeth over a Briton who was sentenced to death for calling the Ugandan leader "a village tyrant."

But Turnbull said Amin has an enormous potency with his people and is far more clever than realized by most Western journalists.

"A good example was an international conference several years ago ... where Amin couldn't leave the country because he would have been de-throned," he said. "There would have been a coup, but he couldn't very well announce that to the world."

"So instead he wrote to the Queen and demanded that he be escorted in her private plane and given an entourage, and he made several other outrageous demands, not so they would be met but so they would not."

"This way Amin appears in his country as a strong leader capable of demanding that the Queen treat him as an equal. After she refused his request, he had an excuse for not leaving the country. That was a brilliant ploy, but few outsiders understood it."

Turnbull, who once taught at Hofstra University and worked in Harlem, offers understanding for critics who say he portrays Africa as if it can do no wrong.

I can see how they could get that impression ... he said, referring to his new book. "But I certainly did not mean to convey that message."

"In my writings I am not trying to over-value Africa," he said. "But there's certainly a great deal we can learn from their experiences."

But a life of bare subsistence — and the loss of those emotions — followed the imposition of colonial boundaries that prohibited hunters from venturing beyond certain geographical limits.

Rain hardly ever falls in the area, making the land almost impossible to farm.

Confronted with the limited natural resources and lacking the training, education or desire to abandon the tribe, the Ik learned to detach themselves from one another. A cliché perhaps, but only the strong survive.

Turnbull cites one particularly graphic scene from the play about the Ik in which a mother laughs at her 2-year-old son after he puts his hand in a fire, searing flesh.

"She was trying to teach the child not to care, not to trust anyone," he said. "Dependence is the one thing they can't afford."

By contrast with the Ik, other tribes encourage dependence.

"Other tribes teach their children from birth to be dependent," he said. "Mothers breast-feed their babies for three years, and it is not unusual for a father to hold his child up to his breast and tell him he may not be able to feed him the same way as his mother but that he can teach him how to hunt or other methods of getting food."

According to Turnbull, most African tribes have social systems in which the police are not armed, family ties are cohesive and crime is at a minimum.

In his newest book, "Man in Africa," Turnbull explores the ways Africans use nature as a guide for social customs involving such things as personal relationships, marriage and the family.

"Throughout Africa, social order is almost a given," he said. "We tend to expect disorder, we have come to expect it. With them it's the reverse, and that's incorporated into their religious beliefs. For them it's a very powerful force."

But Turnbull doesn't recommend the book.

"It was edited and rewritten so much I don't want anything to do with it at this point. They wanted to make it emotional, as my story about the Ik was, but I intended this one strictly for an academic market."

"They gave it the subtitle, 'From Cape to Cairo,' making it sound as if I were in a racing car zooming from one spot to another," he said.

Turnbull's experiences in primitive society wrought changes in his ability to deal with more technologically-oriented cultures.

And feeling he cannot revisit the Ik until he becomes more detached and objective, Turnbull has made the down-trodden of the United States one of his major concerns, saying the more he helps, the more he learns.

He teaches a course at the State Penitentiary and is working on two new books, one on Indian philosophy and the other that is to be an introduction to anthropology.

Turnbull lives in a rural black community outside Richmond, finding life in such surroundings more familiar than suburban American homes.

"When I first came over here I stayed with some friends in New Jersey, and I simply was not used to the type of hospitality they provided — clean sheets, a fresh shirt every day, fresh pajamas."

"Everybody called me by my first name and told me to help myself to whatever was in the refrigerator," he said. "I practically starved because it all seemed unreal and I was afraid to intrude, and life where I am now much more typical of what I have become used to. I don't know if it's living around blacks or just being in a rural environment," as an anthropologist, Turnbull says he benefits from studying the background of his prisoner-students, but he is also a severe critic of the nation's prison system.

He blames the large number of crimes committed by ex-convicts on a denial of opportunity for personal development, but as students, Turnbull finds the prisoners more stimulating, more mature and more interested in learning than many of the college students he teaches.

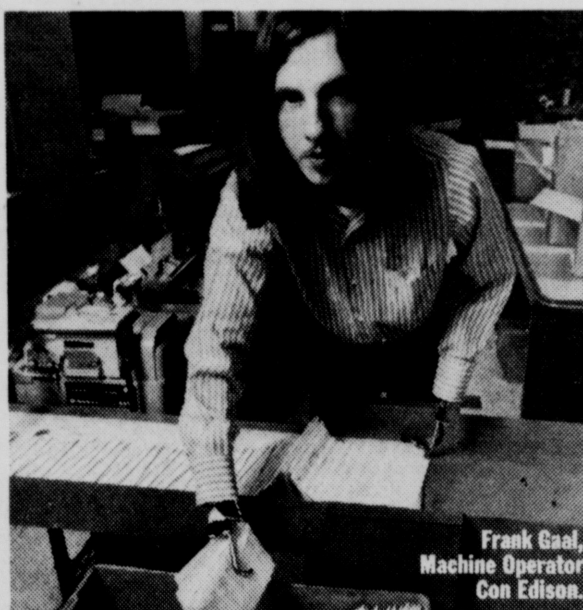

"I find them very exciting students anthropologically, though am not there for research," he said. "But in teaching you begin to learn about their lives, their communities. I'm getting great input from it."

While critical of some black African leaders, such as Uganda's Idi Amin, Turnbull argues Amin has assets as a leader.

He also believes much of the current political turmoil was predictable a decade ago and forecasts a short future for Ian Smith's white-minority rule in Rhodesia.

"They should have made changes 10 years ago, appointed blacks to cabinet positions," he said. "But now it's too late."

Turnbull regrets the fighting and bloodshed that have characterized political unrest in parts of Africa, but believes some whites "have behaved like such utter monsters" toward blacks that the unrest is to be expected. "Britain is very fond of calling America racist, yet I have never seen anything since living in Rich-

Frank Gaal, Machine Operator Con Edison.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Ft. Henry at Wheeling, W.V., was besieged on Sept. 11, 1782, by an overwhelming force of British-led Indians. Elizabeth Zane, sister of one of the settlement's founders, was inside the fort when the fighting began. As the defenders' gunpowder dwindled, she volunteered to bring more from the Zane cabin. The baffled Indians watched her leave without firing at her, but knew better when she returned with a large bundle. Bullets spattered at her, but she made it and the garrison fought on until the Indians gave up. The World Almanac recalls.

Mirth, Mayhem on Stage

SAUGERTIES—The Saugerties High School Drama Club will present Mirth and Mayhem, a fast moving three-act comedy that combines laughter and mystery, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the high school auditorium.

The play concerns 11 girls who enter a haunted house on a dare. Legend has it that someone will die. Who will it be? Is it Mike (John Pavlak) who planned a practical joke, or Liz (Debbie Fricke) who knows about the joke, or Andy

What do the gangsters Dirk and Marvin (Pete Disclafani and Paul Brown) have to do with it all? What happens to the actresses Lynn and Ann (Allison Finley and Eileen Bruno) who play the spirits of Martha McGraw and Alice Bilson?

The answer to what's what and who's who on Sinister Street will be revealed in performances starting 8 p.m. May 25 and 26. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the Drama Club or at the door.

There is also George (Doug Taylor), the actor playing Dracula; Maureen (Janet Poythress), a beautiful actress; and a prop girl named Janet (Bev Tong).

KINGSTON—Awards are blooming in the springtime for area students.

Elaine Knickmeyer, a Union College junior from West Hurley has been elected to two engineering societies on the Schenectady campus.

She was named to Eta Kappa Nu, the national honor society for electrical engineers and to Tau Beta Pi, a highly select fraternity of those who achieve outstanding records in engineering studies and have demonstrated excellence of character.

Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.H. Knickmeyer of Route 1, Box 117B, West Hurley, also is a member of the Union College Women's Club which performed at the annual conference of the Glee Intercollegiate Musical Council which met at Union earlier this month.

Leslie A. Kalish, a senior from Woodstock has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.

Kalish is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Kalish, 15 Juniper Lane, Woodstock and is a 1972 graduate of Ontario Central School.

Awards and scholarships have been accorded Ulster County students attending Orange County Community College at Middletown.

Thomas Kelly of Wallkill received a Bookstaver Scholarship and a citation for English.

Also receiving citations at the 17th annual all-college awards convocation were Joan Reed of Plattekill, nursing; Mary Mihm of Rosendale, Newman Club and Karen Carnes of Wallkill, nursing.

Charles F. Lang, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lang Sr. of 27 Dunneam Avenue, Kingston was named a member of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities at recent Honors Day Convocation at Hartwick College, Oneonta.

He is a senior, majoring in political science.

Catherine M. Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mills, RD1, Stone Ridge, was one of 14 Albany Medical College students honored for outstanding academic achievement at the annual Awards Day ceremony last week.

She was awarded one of two Daggett Trust Prizes and the Alden March Prize.

Kim Kaznowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Kaznowski, Old Flatbush Road, Kingston, has been pledged as a member of the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority for her senior year at the University of Rhode Island

Two Appointed To the Point

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Two area high school students have received appointments to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point according to announcement made recently by Congressman Matthew F. McHugh, D-27th Dist.

They are Daniel J. Mueller, 18, of Spring Glen and Eric L. Dixon, 17, of Grahamsville.

Daniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mueller of Mountaindale Road, is a member of the National Honor Society at Ellenville High School where is a member of the Class of 1976. He will graduate in the top 10 of his class in June.

While in high school he was a member of the varsity track, basketball and football squads; Ski Club, Athletic Association, Spanish Club, school band and served as sports editor of the school yearbook in his senior year. He was elected class president in his sophomore year.

Eric, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dixon of Thunder Hill, is president of the Honor Society at Tri-Valley Central School where he will graduate in June. He was class president during his freshman year and served as a student council representative during his sophomore and junior years.

An Eagle Scout and an active athlete, Eric is also a member of the school chorus. His sports include track, cross country, golf and baseball.

Congressman McHugh nominated the two on the basis of their high school record, extracurricular activities, College Board scores and personal interviews. Final selection was made by West Point.

Steely Dan In Art Rock

By Dave Marsh

STEELY DAN: "The Royal Scam" (ABC ABCD 931).

Steely Dan is the American equivalent of a European art-rock ensemble like Roxy Music, but without the fascination for synthesizers, classical antecedents or decadence that characterizes the Continental approach. Instead, songwriters Walter Becker and Donald Fagen have a penchant for eccentric guitar chords and voicings, Latin rhythm structures, post-Ellington keyboard styles and doom-laden portents in science fiction-style lyrics. Its

Me' has returned as a resourceful woman pop singer whose sensibility hinges on her nascent feminism. Gore now writes sophisticated (and occasionally cynical) romantic and social commentaries with the help of lyricist Ellen Weston. A couple of the numbers here—the marvelously energetic 'Immortality,' the soulful 'Can't Seem to Live Our Good Times Down' and the sardonic 'Paranoia' are reflective of an encouraging, but still developing, songwriting talent. 'Immortality,' is something more than that, fifth album changes none of the basics, but the excellent melodies that brought hit singles out of the first three is gone almost completely. Donald Fagen's voice has exhausted its resources, until it is close to becoming a major annoyance. And the once engaging iconography of the lyrics now seems only mad-dog abstruse, completely without a center, a feeling that is transmitted, at its most pretentious, to the basic Steely Dan sound itself.

Part of the problem may be the degree to which Steely Dan has stopped being a rock band, in favor of becoming a vehicle for Becker's and Fagen's music and lyrics. By now, Steely Dan lacks even its own drummer; session ace Rick Marotta and Bernard Purdie do all the honors here. Thus what seems like an adventurous and startlingly successful rock act has become one more singer-songwriter studio concept, not that much more interesting than the obscurantism of Eno or even Rupert Holmes. That's not to say that a few of the songs here aren't engaging. 'Haitian Divorce' and 'Don't Take Me Alive' certainly are but, rather, if Steely Dan has anything to say (and Fagen Becker seem to think they do), it ought to quit beating about the 16-track and say it.

LESLEY GORE: "Love Me By Name" (A&M SP-4564).

The girl who made 'It's My Party' and 'You Don't Own an ingenious if somewhat morbid comment on stardom with a memorable melody and a powerful arrangement.

Unfortunately, Gore is still working with Quincy Jones, the man who produced her teenage hits but now the master of light jazz busyness. Consequently, the songs are set in the most inappropriate pop settings since Aretha Franklin's 'Hey Now Hey (The Other Side of the Sky),' which Jones also produced. But where Franklin has the personality and power as a singer to bluster her way past such gaffes, Gore simply doesn't. 'Love Me By Name' could have been more than just promising. I think, if Jones and Gore didn't seem so constantly to go off on separate tangents. As it is, however, it is only a taste of what may or may not become another surprising comeback.

Selected for Science Plan

NEW PALTZ—Mary Nell Lent, a junior at New Paltz High School, has been selected by the National Science Foundation to participate in a student science training program in environmental sciences at Shippensburg State College, Shippensburg, Pa.

The program will be from June 27 through July 30. The major goals of the program are to provide an interdisciplinary approach to the environmental sciences and to provide experiences in research.

Students selected for this program must possess high ability and high motivation.

Mary Nell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Lent of New Paltz.

CYO Essay Winners

Winners of the Ulster County Catholic Youth Organization's Bicentennial Essay Contest receive medals and congratulations. Taking part in the presentation are Sister David, SCC; Mary Loughlin of Sacred Heart Parish, Esopus, first; Albert Spada, St. Mary's Parish, Kingston, third and Diane Steltz, St. Peter's Parish, Kingston, second. ## Summer Job Swim

KINGSTON—The Kingston YMCA is offering for the first time a condensed Senior Lifesaving course, June 1 through 11 for college students interested in summer jobs.

It is an intense course geared to people in good physical condition who could not take the course during the spring.

The program which follows the National YMCA Life-saving program offers the best possible aquatic training, especially for those interested.

Successful graduates of the course will receive their senior lifesaving, lifeguard, a separate national certification, and CPR Basic I certifications. The class includes lifesaving for pools, skin diving rescues, pool maintenance, emergency procedures, first aid, public relations and other areas.

Those interested in the course may sign up now at the YMCA, 507 Broadway, Kingston.

1907 Test A Toughie

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — Results of a recent survey conducted by the campus newspaper at West Chester State College shows some students at the school know little about Thomas Jefferson or the Civil War.

Using parts of an eight-grade graduation test taken in Kansas in 1907, reporters for the Quad, the campus newspaper, went to dormitories, dining halls and other buildings to question about 50 students.

"I really don't know anything about Thomas Jefferson," one student said.

"Let me think a minute," another responded. "He wrote about democracy..."

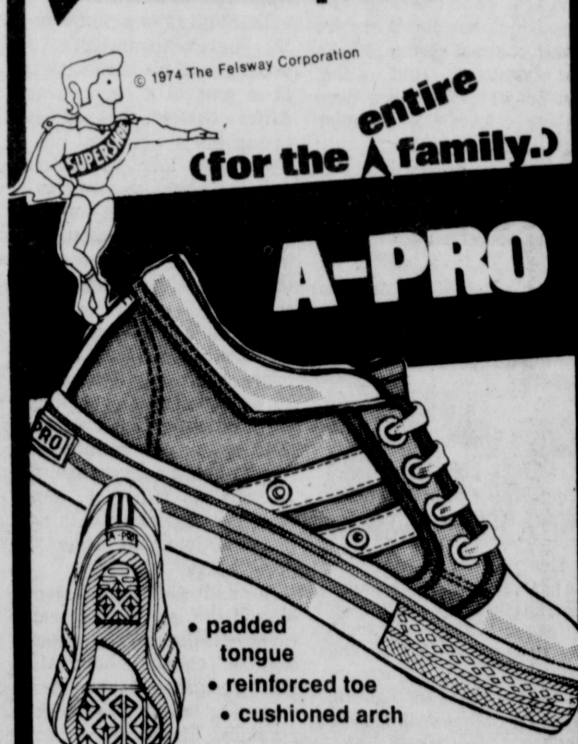

Some others surveyed knew just as little about the Civil War. "We didn't have any early U.S. history in high school," one student explained.

"It was kind of sad," newspaper editor Gregory Rohman said in an essay accompanying the article on the survey.

The survey also showed some students had trouble with spelling. Only 22 per cent of the female students questioned could spell "assassination" and just 28 per cent of the male students knew the correct spelling of "elucidation."

Gilbert Storms Ahead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Veteran Fred Marti, who saw Gibby Gilbert shoot a 6-under-par 66 to storm past him Saturday and take the third-round lead in the $200,000 Memphis Classic, said he wasn't laying back for a flashy finish.

"These guys who say they would like to be one or two strokes back are lying," said the 35-year-old Texan who, like so many times in the past, slipped Saturday. "If you're leading, the others got to come back after you."

"I played about like I did the other two days," said Marti, who had credited "new smarts" for his leading the first and second rounds. "What makes my 74 (Saturday) look so bad is all those 65s from the others."

Gilbert, seeking his second victory in eight years on the tour, birdied 2, 10, 11, 16 and 18 and eagled the 566-yard seventh hole on his way to a 15-under-par 201 after the third round. Marti, a popular but winless 13-year veteran, bogeyed five holes in a final round 74 to slip from 11-under Friday to 9-under and fourth place after 54 holes.

Two other hot third-round shooters, Gil Morgan and Forrest Fezler, passed Marti.

Morgan, a 29-year-old third-year pro from Wewoka, Okla., who was 70-69-139 and tied for fifth after two rounds, birdied 1, 2, 4, 6, 9, 12 and 16 enroute to a 65 and moved into second place, three shots back of Gilbert.

Fezler, a five-year tour veteran, fired a 67 for a 206 total and sole possession of third place.

"This is the best I've ever played in my whole life," said Gilbert, who hit every green. "I have a lot of confidence and I'm hoping I'll carry it with me tomorrow. I am not going to play safe. I'm going to try and make them catch me."

Morgan called his round "one of my best rounds in the last few weeks. I am really thrilled. Overall I struck the ball well on the front nine but got a little erratic on the back nine. You have to play well."

"I am pleased with my position but like every other tournament you have to play well the last day," said Morgan.

Defending champion Gene Littler was back at 5-under 211. Two-time Memphis winner Lee Trevino was two shots further back at 213.

Burfeindt, Blalock In Deadlock

JAMESBURG, N.J. (UPI) — Betty Burfeindt fired a 3-under par 68 amid swirling winds Saturday to move from second place and tie Jane Blalock for the 36-hole lead at 4-under par 138 in the $76,000 54-hole 76 LPGA Golf Classic before 11,509 at the Forsgate Country Club.

The cut-off was 154 strokes, with 60 players and ties qualifying for Sunday's final 18 hole, 90 first prize.

Burfeindt, third on this year's money list at $33,022, birdied four putts from four to eight feet and said, "I'm surprised to score this low," and added 68 to her previous day's one-undiction difficult and you had to think a little more once you chose," she said. "Often the wind would change direction from the time you began you swing until you finish with it."

On Friday's first round Burfeindt tied for second place with 70 with Sandra y Haynie had a horrendous session on the 10th hole, where she hit her second stroke into a deep trap — deep traps are common on the course — and she wasted four strokes getting out.

Haynie finished with a four-over 8 on the hole and it ruined her round. Her score of 76 put her at 146 and in a 10th place Patterson.

Blalock, who made many recovery shots from among trees, finished under par with a 70. She had led the field Friday with a two-stroke margin with a three-under 68. "I scrambled all day today," she said. "It was one of the most unusual rounds I've ever had. I was always on the wrong side of the mounds on the green I was in no traps. Maybe that's why I didn't score as well as yesterday," she laughed.

"The course was playing longer, perhaps two clubs longer than yesterday," she said. "I didn't drive well but I did hit excellent irons."

One other player remains under par for the round — Donna Caponi Young, who shot a 69, which with a first round 71 put her at two-under 140.

"This course will eat your lunch if you're not careful," Young said. "I'm on the ball good and always hitting it in the right places."

She said a putting lesson she had last week in California with Terry Barber of the men's tour had made "all time and changed putters, even though the putter had won her three tournaments last year and $60,000."

"I just had to make the change because it was mental. Nothing was wrong with the putter," she said.

Two other golfers stand at even par in a tie for fourth: Amy Alcott and Dot Germain, each at 71-71-142. Joanne Carner shot a two-under 69 and stands next at 143, followed by Susie Berning at 144 and Mary Mills at 145.

Burfeindt's three-under 68 was equalled by Sally Little, the 24-year-old from South Africa, who scored 31-37-68, which brought her up from an 83 Friday for a two day total of 161.

Bushman Sam Horton signals his team's spot

Pine Bush Captures UCAL Track Crown

NEW PALTZ — It all came down to the mile relay, the last event in the Uster County Athletic League track meet Saturday, and it was a team from Pine Bush High which won that race and with it the team championship in one of the closest UCAL finales ever.

The Bushmen scored 104 1/2 points to edge Red Hook which finished second with 99. Only one point separated those schools before the final race, so whichever team finished in front of the other in the mile relay, regardless of place, would win the title.

Calvin Gunther moved Pine Bush into the lead on the second leg of the relay, and Dave Kirby anchored the winners to a 3:39.5 finish. New Palitz slipped in front of Red Hook at the wire to grab second place.

A bit of the unexpected was needed to create the drama at the end. It came in the 880. Pine Bush had seemingly scored a 1-2 in the event with Sam Horton and Bob Foos hitting the wire in front of the field, but Horton was disqualified for running on the infield.

At that point, Bushman coach Andy Kavleski was seen banging his head against a pole. He had a reason to feel frustrated since his team had just blown a chance for a big lead, and since the 880 relay was coming up, an event in which the Bushmen weren't entered.

Kavleski's fears proved well founded. Red Hook, anchored by 100 yard dash winner Darryl Mosher, won the 880 relay in a league record 1:34.8, and the Raiders moved ahead of Pine Bush by seven points.

With two events remaining, Raider coach Jim Cauldwell said, "All we need is a place in the two mile, then it all comes down to the mile relay."

Pine Bush, with a stacked two mile team, won the race in 8:39.1. Horton redeemed himself by subduing Onteora's Dave Holsapple on the anchor leg, but the Raiders hung in with a fifth place to carry the outcome of the meet to the final event.

Two other league records were set during the competition. Double winner Mark Gravino of Red Hook shattered the year-old two mile mark of Onteora's Mark Woodward. Gravino's time was 9:44.5, 15 seconds faster than the record, and his winning 4:28.2 mile time was just nine-tenths of a second off the UCAL record.

The other new standard was achieved by Bushman Wayne Shurter who cleared 6-5 in the high jump. Shurter, the favorite in the event and the best jumper to hit the league in recent seasons, bettered by three inches a record held since 1971 by Marlboro's Jerry Stokes.

There were some surprise winners in other events. Red Hook's Mike Friery beat favorite Rich Wixon of Wallkill in the 330 intermediate hurdles; Myron Billups of Fallsburgh ran a 52 flat to take the 440 for the Comets; Marvin Gilmore, also of Fallsburgh, beat the long jump field with a leap of 21-8 1/4.

Expected winners included Onteora's Jody Rossitz who ran 15.8 in the 120 high, Wallkill's Dennis Lloyd who ran the 220 in 23.2, and Wallkill's Ken McKay who put the shot 54-2 1/2.

Ned Roebuck gave Pine Bush a mild upset win in the discus, and teammate Foos was awarded the 880 crown after Horton was eliminated from the field. Red Hook kept pace with wins from Rich Fritz in the triple jump and Bruce Rhodes in the pole vault.

Wallkill, the defending champ, placed third overall with 69 1/2 points. Onteora was next at 58 followed by Marlboro with 43 1/2, Fallsburgh 42, New Palitz 38, Ellenville 22, Rondout 21, Coleman 16, Liberty nine and Highland five.

TRACK SHORTS...Onteora came up short of its expectations, but the Indians did get a super split from Mike Woodward in the two mile relay...Gravino's mile effort just missed erasing second oldest UCAL mark. Wallkill's Jim Dolan set the standard in 1984...Only older UCAL mark also belongs to Wallkill. Ken Narvaez ran 2:01.4 880 in 1962...Pine Bush lacks depth only in sprints, thus no Bushman 880 relay team...

Quarrie Ties Record

MODESTO, Calif. (UPI) — Don Quarrie of Jamaica, showing he's still one of the world's best sprinters at age 25, tied the world standard of 9.9 seconds for 100 meters Saturday night while beating Reggie Jones and a crack field of collegians at the California Relays.

The 5-8 Quarrie, fourth on the world list a year ago when he won the AAU championship in 10.16, was aided by a legal wind of only 1.2 miles per hour, which was a blessing, because most of the meet was plagued by a stiff breeze.

Earlier in the day, Steve Williams won the 100 in 9.9 at the Freedom Games in Atlanta, as both he and Quarrie tied the world record first set eight years ago by Jim Hines and since equalled by Eddie Hart, Ray Robinson, Charlie Greene, Cuban Silvio Leonard and Harvey Glance.

Quarrie, as might be expected, is pointing for this year's Games at Montreal and has been in serious training all season. In Saturday night's race, he took the lead at the midway point and beat Jones by a stride.

Oscar Bonavena Killed In Nevada Shooting

MUSTANG, Nev. (UPI) — Oscar Bonavena, who patterned himself as a successor to Rocky Marciano for the world heavyweight championship but never got to fight for the title, was shot to death by a high-powered hunting rifle outside a brothel Saturday.

The 33-year-old Bonavena, ranked as the No. 7 challenger to Muhammad Ali by the World Boxing Council, was hit once in the chest with a bullet from a 30.06 caliber rifle and apparently died instantly, the sheriff's office said.

The shooting took place at the Mustang Ranch brothel, about 35 miles east of Reno.

Bonavena, 5-foot-11 and who fought at about 201 pounds, fought in more than 60 professional fights and was at one time the South American heavyweight champion. Born in Buenos Aires Sept. 25, 1942, the non-smoking, non-drinking Bonavena had fought and lost to Ali, who handed Bonavena his only knockout Dec. 7, 1970, Joe Frazier and Floyd Patterson and ranking heavyweight Ron Lyle.

Sheriff Robert Del Carlo said Bonavena was at a high-wire gate which surrounds the legal brothel in Storey County when he was shot from about 20 to 30 yards away. Willard Ross Brymer, 31, a security guard at the brothel, was booked for investigation of murder.

The sheriff said Brymer, of Lockwood, Nev., hid inside for more than an hour before surrendering to police. Del Carlo said Brymer entered the house after the shooting.

The boxer's death came one week after he complained to the sheriffs that his trailer home had been broken into and some personal effects, including his passport, were destroyed.

A deputy district attorney, Mills Lane, said Brymer faces charges in another incident for allegedly stopping passersby at gunpoint, forcing them to lie on the ground and kicking them. Lane said Brymer said Brymer has three prior convictions on marijuana and assault charges.

Bonavena had told a newsmen about a week ago he was being managed by Sally Conforte, wife of the owner of the brothel. He also said he was getting some fights lined up for a comeback, including a bout with Ken Norton. Norton was seeing the match as a tenuous for his September title fight with Ali.

Del Carlo said he could not determine whether Bonavena was trying to enter or leave the brothel. A person who wants to get to the establishment must push a buzzer and be admitted through the automatic gate to the compound, which was recently expanded and remodeled.

The Mustang Ranch, the name of the brothel, is owned by Joe Conforte, who brought the South American boxer to northern Nevada last year and promoted Bonavena's last fight in Reno. Bonavena listed the brothel as his mailing address.

Bonavena several months ago took out a marriage license to wed one of the girls in the house, but Sheriff Del Carlo said the wedding never took place. The sheriff said he had been told that Bonavena had at times caused problems at the house but his office was never notified.

The rifle used in the shooting was found inside the complex. The sheriff said the owner of the house, Conforte, was apparently asleep when the shooting took place about 6 a.m.

Bonavena's car was in the parking lot and he apparently was alone outside the gate when he was shot. The body was taken to Washoe Medical Center in Reno where an autopsy was scheduled to be performed Sunday.

"It will take us several days to piece this thing together," said the sheriff.

He said so far no motive has been established.

Bonavena began his career in 1964 and won his first seven bouts, the first six by knockouts in only 16 rounds, before falling for the first time 14 months later in a 10-rounder to Zora Foley.

Bonavena, though a southpaw, patterned himself after Marciano and was handled at the start of his career by trainer Charlie Goldman—who also handled Marciano.

He won 56 of his 66 fights during a 12-year career, including 43 by knockout. The only time he was knocked out was in his lone fight with Ali, who sent the Argentinian to the canvas in the final round of their scheduled 15-rounder. It was Ali's second fight after a 3 1/2 year layoff because of his refusal to accept induction into the armed services.

Bonavena fought Frazier twice, losing in 1966 and 1968, by decision. But the brawling Argentinian knocked Frazier down a total of three times, twice in the first fight and once in the second.

Among his victims were Billy Daniels, in a first round knockout; George Chuvalo, in a 10-round decision; Karl Mildener, in a 12-round decision; a rematch victory over Foley in 10 rounds; a 10-round decision over Leotis Martin and a 12-round decision over Larry Mad-dleton.

In his last fight, Bonavena took a 10-round victory on Nov. 1, 1975 over Raul Gorosito in Buenos Aires.

Three times in his career he registered six consecutive knockouts and his longest unbeaten string covered 11 fights from April 1965 through March 1966, when he lost on a disqualification in the eighth round to Jose Giorgetti. Bonavena decided Giorgetti 34 days later in a 12-rounder.

Bonavena's loss to Lyle, in March 1974, was the last time the Argentinian was defeated.

Ali Helps Out at Box Office

MUNICH (UPI) — Muhammad Ali said Saturday he had bought up $100,000 worth of tickets for his fight against Richard Dunn Monday night to distribute free to U.S. servicemen in West Germany "because they fight so hard for our freedom."

Ali said he would not have seen the money anyway because for the bout have been selling so badly the promoters have halved their original prices.

"I just pictured myself sitting in the barracks with no money and here is an American, champion of the world, and I couldn't see him," said Ali, whose refusal to join the U.S. army in 1967 on religious grounds provoked a Supreme Court ruling.

"I'm American, but I didn't go into the Army because of my religion and because I wasn't going to go into an illegal war. "But if America were in a just war, I would volunteer for the frontline. I'd do the shuffling and win the war," Ali said.

"Besides, what's $100,000 to me when I am making $1.5 million for just joking around. I want to give them the tickets because they fight so hard for our freedom."

With just over two days to go to the fight, set for 3.15 a.m. (0215 gmt) Tuesday morning, fewer than half of the 12,000 seats in the Olympic Hall had been bought and Ali faced the embarrassing prospect of fighting in front of a half empty arena.

Ali's camp is blaming the local organizers who until now had been asking $400 for a ringside seat eight rows back.

Related story on page 33

"I want people to come to see me but they should not have to pay more than $100—even for me," Ali said.

But Ali's $1.6 million purse has to come from somewhere and the organizers put the blame on Ali.

"He fought so badly against Jimmy Young that nobody here wants to come to see him," said Walter Settele, the local promoter, whose financial difficulties have caused him to withhold a quarter of a million dollars of Ali's purse.

Although Ali does not relish fighting in front of an endless stream of empty seats, Dunn has never done otherwise and will have other things on his mind than the missing fans.

Both fighters wound up their training Saturday in preparation for Sunday's 4 p.m. weigh-in.

As usual there is speculation about the weight Ali will carry, particularly following the heaviest of his career 230 pounds against Young. His trainer Angelo Dundee predicted he would tip the scales only about five pounds lighter this time, which will still be above his optimum fighting weight of 220.

Dunn was expected to weigh around 210 after deliberately trying to gain some weight since he has been here.

Local newspapers were treating the fight strictly as a "Bum of the Month" affair with most of the interest centered on predicting the knock-out round. The most optimistic forecast about the length of the fight has come from NBC television whose $1 million coast-to-coast live U.S. coverage has netted commercials through the ninth round.

Fighting on the same card will be Duane Bobick, the Bowls, Minn., heavyweight who will be returning to the scene of his 1972 Olympic humiliation by Cuba's Teofilo Stevenson who knocked him down three times in the second round.

Bobick, a pro for three years, since has amassed 35 straight wins, 30 by knock-out, without meeting any top class contenders.

Tuesday morning, he will be fighting a heavyweight on the way down, former British champion Bunny Sterling.

Gilbert Storms Ahead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Veteran Fred Marti, who saw Gibby Gilbert shoot a 6-under-par 66 to storm past him Saturday and take the third-round lead in the $200,000 Memphis Classic, said he wasn't laying back for a flashy finish.

"These guys who say they would like to be one or two strokes back are lying," said the 35-year-old Texan who, like so many times in the past, slipped Saturday. "If you're leading, the others got to come back after you."

"I played about like I did the other two days," said Marti, who had credited "new smarts" for his leading the first and second rounds. "What makes my 74 (Saturday) look so bad is all those 65s from the others."

Gilbert, seeking his second victory in eight years on the tour, birdied 2, 10, 11, 16 and 18 and eagled the 565-yard seventh hole on his way to a 15-under-par 201 after the third round. Marti, a popular but winless 13-year veteran, bogeyed five holes in a final round 74 to slip from 11-under Friday to 9-under and fourth place after 54 holes.

Two other hot third-round shooters, Gil Morgan and Forrest Fezler, passed Marti.

Morgan, a 29-year-old thirdyear pro from Wewoka, Okla., who was 70-69-139 and tied for fifth after two rounds, birdied 1, 2, 4, 6, 9, 12 and 16 enroute to a 65 and moved into second place, three shots back of Gilbert.

Fezler, a five-year tour veteran, fired a 67 for a 206 total and sole possession of third place.

"This is the best I've ever played in my whole life," said Gilbert, who hit every green. "I have a lot of confidence and I'm hoping I'll carry it with me tomorrow."

"I am not going to play safe. I'm going to try and make them catch me."

Morgan called his round "one of my best rounds in the last few weeks. I am really thrilled. Overall I struck the ball well on the front nine but got a little erratic on the back nine. You have to play well."

"I am pleased with my position but like every other tournament you have to play well the last day," said Morgan.

Burfeindt, Blalock In Deadlock

JAMESBURG, N.J. (UPI) — Betty Burfeindt fired a 3-under par 68 amid swirling winds Saturday to move from second place and tie the Jane Blalock for the 36-hole lead at 4-under par 138 in the $76,000 54-hole '76 LPGA Golf Classic before 11,509 at the Forsgate Country Club.

The cut-off was 154 strokes, with 60 players and ties qualifying for Sunday's final 18 hole, 900 first prize.

Burfeindt, third on this year's money list at $33,022, birdied four putts from four to eight feet and said, "I'm surprised to score this low," and added 68 to her previous day's one-undction difficult and you had to think a little more once you chose," she said. "Often the wind would change direction from the time you began you swing until you finish with it."

On Friday's first round Burfeindt tied for second place with 70 with Sandra Haynie had a horrendous session on the 10th hole, where she hit her second stroke into a deep trap — deep traps are common on the course — and she wasted four strokes getting out.

Haynie finished with a four-over 8 on the hole and it ruined her round. Her score of 76 put her at 146 and in a 10th Patterson.

Blalock, who made many recovery shots from among trees, finished under par with a 70. She had led the field Friday with a two-stroke margin with a three-under 68.

"I scrambled all day today," she said. "It was one of the most unusual rounds I've ever had. I was always on the wrong side of the mounds on the green I was in no traps. Maybe that's why I didn't score as well as yesterday," she laughed.

"The course was playing longer, perhaps two clubs longer than yesterday," she said. "I didn't drive well but I did hit excellent irons."

One other player remains under par for the shot — Donna Caponi Young, who shot a 69, which with a first round 71 put her at two-under 140.

"This course will eat your lunch if you're not careful," Young said, "ioning the ball good and always hitting it in the right places."

She said a putting lesson she had last week in California with Terry Barber of the men's tour had made "all tnce and changed putters, even though the putter had won her three tournaments last year and $60,000."

"I just had to make the change because it was mental. Nothing was wrong with the putter," she said.

Two other golfers stand at even par in a tie for fourth: Amy Alcott and Dot Germain, each at 71-71-142. Joanne Carner shot a two-under 69 and stands next at 143, followed by Susie Berning at 144 and Mary Mills at 145.

Burfeindt's three-under 68 was equalled by Sally Little, the 24-year-old from South Africa, who scored 31-37-68, which brought her up from an 83 Friday for a two day total of 151.

Bushman Sam Horton signals his team's spot

Pine Bush Captures UCAL Track Crown

NEW PALTZ — It all came down to the mile relay, the last event in the Ulster County Athletic League track meet Saturday, and it was a team from Pine Bush High which won that race and with it the team championship in one of the closest UCAL finales ever.

The Bushmen scored 104½ points to edge Red Hook which finished second with 99. Only one point separated those schools before the final race, so whichever team finished in front of the other in the mile relay, regardless of place, would win the title.

Calvin Gunther moved Pine Bush into the lead on the second leg of the relay, and Dave Kirby anchored the winners to a 3:39.5 finish. New Paltz slipped in front of Red Hook at the wire to grab second place.

A bit of the unexpected was needed to create the drama at the end. It came in the 880. Pine Bush had seemingly scored a 1-2 in the event with Sam Horton and Bob Foss hitting the wire in front of the field, but Horton was disqualified for running on the infield.

At that point, Bushman coach Andy Kavleski was seen banging his head against a pole. He had a reason to feel frustrated since his team had just blown a chance for a big lead, and since the 880 relay was coming up, an event in which the Bushmen weren't entered.

Kavleski's fears proved well founded. Red Hook, anchored by 100 yard dash winner Darryl Mosher, won the 880 relay in a league record 1:34.8, and the Raiders moved ahead of Pine Bush by seven points.

With two events remaining, Raider coach Jim Cauldwell said, "All we need is a place in the two mile, then it all comes down to the mile relay."

Pine Bush, with a stacked two mile team, won the race in 8:39.1. Horton redeemed himself by subduing Onteora's Dave Holsapple on the anchor leg, but the Raiders hung in with a fifth place to carry the outcome of the meet to the final event.

Two other league records were set during the competition. Double winner Mark Gravino of Red Hook shattered the year-old two mile mark of Onteora's Mark Woodward. Gravino's time was 9:44.5, 15 seconds faster than the record, and his winning 4:28.2 mile time was just nineteenth of a second off the UCAL record.

The other new standard was achieved by Bushman Wayne Shurter who cleared 6-5 in the high jump. Shurter, the favorite in the event and the best jumper to hit the league in recent seasons, bettered by three inches a record held since 1971 by Marlboro's Jerry Stokes.

There were some surprise winners in other events. Red Hook's Mike Friery beat favorite Rich Wixon of Walkkill in the 330 intermediate hurdles; Myron Billups of Fallsburgh ran a 52 flat to take the 440 for the Comets; Marvin Gilmore, also of Fallsburgh, beat the long jump field with a leap of 21-8¾.

Expected winners included Onteora's Jody Rossitz who ran 15.8 in the 120 highs, Walkkill's Dennis Lloyd who ran the 220 in 23.2, and Walkkill's Ken McKay who put the shot 54-2½.

Ned Roebuck gave Pine Bush a mild upset win in the discus, and teammate Foss was awarded the 880 crown after Horton was eliminated from the field. Red Hook kept pace with wins from Rich Fritz in the triple jump and Bruce Rhodes in the pole vault.

Walkkill, the defending champ, placed third overall with 69½ points. Onteora was next at 58 followed by Marlboro with 43½, Fallsburgh 42, New Paltz 38, Ellenville 22, Rondout 21, Coleman 16, Liberty nine and Highland five.

TRACK SHORTS...Onteora came up short of its expectations, but the Indians did get a super split from Mike Woodward in the two mile relay...Gravino's mile effort just missed erasing second oldest UCAL mark. Walkkill's Jim Dolan set the standard in 1964...Only older UCAL mark also belongs to Walkkill. Ken Narvaez ran 2:01.4 880 in 1962...Pine Bush lacks depth only in sprints, thus no Bushman 880 relay team...

Catfish, Yanks Beat Bosox, 1-0, In 11

NEW YORK (UPI) — Carlos May's single with two out in the 11th inning scored Willie Randolph from second base Saturday night and gave the New York Yankees a 1-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox behind the three-hit pitching of Catfish Hunter.

May's game-ending hit came after Randolph led off the 11th by coaxing a base on balls from loser Tom House, 1-2. Roy White then bunted Randolph into scoring position.

In gaining his fourth win in nine decisions, Hunter gave up only a third inning single to Rick Burleson, an eighth inning base hit to Jim Rice and a leadoff tenth inning double by Fred Lynn. He struck out five and walked three.

Red Sox starter Dick Pole was almost as brilliant, yielding only three hits into the ninth before being relieved by House.

Ken Singleton's first American League grand slam homer with two out in the ninth inning powered the Baltimore Orioles to an 8-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday night.

Singleton's grand slam, his second homer of the year, came after a single by Andres Mora and walks to Lee May and pinch hitter Tommy Harper. Jim Crawford gave up the homer, while Wayne Garland, 3-0, was the winner with 6 1-3 innings of relief.

Lyman Bostock drove in three runs and cracked a two-run triple to back up Dave Goltz's seven-hit Saturday to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 5-3 nationally-televised triumph over the Kansas City Royals.

With two outs in the sixth, Craig Kusick and Bobby Randall singled to set the stage for Bostock's tie-breaker off previously unbeaten Al Fitzmorris, 5-1. Larry Hiele then singled in Bostock to cap the three-run inning.

Bostock also singled home Danny Thompson, who had doubled, for the final Twins' run in the seventh.

It was only the fourth loss in the Royals' last 20 games. Goltz, 3-2, struck out three and walked two.

The Royals' scored a run in the second on Bob Stinson's single and added two more in the ninth on a triple by George Brett and John Mayberry's sacrifice fly.

In other action, Milwaukee edged Cleveland 6-5 and Chicago downed Oakland 7-2.

Darrell Porter singled home the go-ahead run in the sixth inning and Sixto Lezcano triggered a three-run second inning with his third homer of the season to spark the Milwaukee Brewers to a narrow win over the Cleveland Indians.

Jim Spencer broke a 2-2 deadlock in the sixth inning with his second homer of the season and Jesse Jefferson pitched seven strong innings as the Chicago White Sox extended their winning streak to five games with a win over Oakland.

The defeat was the sixth straight for the A's, their longest loss streak since August of 1970.

Southpaw Frank Tanana fired a six-hitter and struck out 10 batters Saturday night in pitching the California Angels to a 5-1 triumph over the Texas Rangers.

Andretti Qualifies

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Mario Andretti, one week too late to grab the pole, gained the satisfaction Saturday of posting the fastest qualifying speed for the Indianapolis "500" auto classic.

The curly-haired veteran, winner of the 1969 Speedway race, topped a dozen qualifiers on the next-to-last day of the trials and the two slowest machines in the tentative lineup were "bumped."

Janet Guthrie, with little hope remaining of becoming the first woman to drive in the million-dollar race this year, practiced most of the day. Her car was in and out of the pits all day long and her crew made numerous adjustments. Her best unofficial speed was 173.6 — good enough for women's closed course record, but not good enough to make the race yet.

A. J. Foyt, a three-time champion and a perennial favorite, announced Saturday night he will offer his backup car to Janet Guthrie to enhance her chances to make the next Sunday's 500-mile auto race.

When the trials ended late Saturday, her dark blue No. 27 Rolla Vollstedt was second in line to be qualified and she will get her chance Sunday.

With the tentative field of 33 starters achieved, Sunday's final day of qualifications will be devoted exclusively to elimination of the slowest machines.

Andretti, of Nazareth, Pa., passed up the first weekend of the qualifications to compete in the Belgium Grand Prix.

Saturday, he answered his own question — whether he will be able to race with pole-sitter Johnny Rutherford come May 30 — by cruising around the famed oval at an average speed of 189.404 miles per hour — half a mile faster than Rutherford's average.

"This car is beautiful," he said of his Roger Penske machine. "We'll really be able to get our teeth into it during the race."

It was the first time since 1960 that the pole car was not also the fastest in the lineup. That year, Jim Hurtubise, who is still racing, was the fastest qualifier while the late Eddie Sachs won the pole.

"We're going to have to watch him," kidded Rutherford, who had watched Andretti's 10-mile sprint. "We're very happy for him. He runs hard and he has always been a tough competitor."

The field now averages 183.406 m.p.h. — 1.6 miles slower than last year's lineup. However, the final average will be higher.

Mets Down Expos; Phillies Lose

MONTREAL (UPI) — Del Unser's two-run, bases-loaded single in the eighth inning Saturday night carried the New York Mets to a 4-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

The Mets rallied for all four of their runs in the eighth inning. Pinch-hitter Bruce Boesch laid off with a single, Wayne Garrett walked and, with one out, Felix Millan singled to load the bases. Expos relief pitcher Wayne Granger walked Ed Kranepool to tie the score, 1-1. Unser followed with his single to center field, scoring Garrett and Millan.

With the winning runs at the Mets went ahead, 3-1. Another single by Jerry Grote brought Kranepool home.

Jerry Kosman worked seven innings in raising his record to 5-1.

The only Montreal run came in the third inning when Gary Carter hit a sacrifice fly with the bases-loaded to score Don Stanhouse.

Reggie Smith slammed three home runs, accounting for five of the Mets' Saturday night, to give the Cardinals a 7-6 victory over Philadelphia, ending the Phillies' winning streak at six games.

Smith laced his third home run of the night with two out in the ninth to break a 6-6 tie and earn relief Al Hrabosky his first victory of the season. Tug McGraw, 2-3, was the loser.

St. Louis scored first on a solo home run by Hector Cruz in the second inning, but Ollie Brown's two-run single in the third gave the Phillies a 2-1 lead.

In the fifth inning, Smith hit his first homer of the game with two men aboard to regain the lead for the Cardinals, 4-2.

The Phillies came back with four runs in the bottom of the fifth with Dick Allen's two-run homer, his first of the season, highlighting the rally. After Lou Brock tripled home Keith Hernandez for a run in the sixth, Smith's solo homer in the seventh tied the game, 6-6. He then won the game in the ninth with his sixth home run of the season.

Mario Mendoza's one-out bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the bottom of the 16th inning scored Willie Stargell with the winning run Saturday and gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

In the only other day game, Atlanta downed San Francisco 3-2.

Jimmy Wynn's fourth homer of the season snapped a 1-1 third inning tie and helped Roger Moret to his first National League victory as the San Francisco Giants beat the Atlanta Braves.

Mendoza's fly to leftfield came after Stargell and Richie Zisk led off the inning with back-to-back singles off loser Paul Reuschel, 1-2. Bill Robinson then sacrificed and Duffy Dyer was walked intentionally to fill the bases.

Brown to Umps; You're Too Late

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A federal court injunction to work Saturday's game were informed by the Pittsburgh Pirates' management they were too late for their services to be utilized.

The umpiring crew, headed by Lee Weyer, was served the injunction 50 minutes before the start of the 2:15 game between Pittsburgh and the Chicago Cubs but did not inform the Pirate management it would return to work until nine minutes prior to game time, according to General Manager Joe L. Brown.

Brown said he told them he would not allow them to take the field so as not to "embarrass" an amateur league crew which was already in uniform and ready to work. He said he would have used the NL crew if they had agreed to work earlier.

A four-member amateur league crew handled the Pirates-Cubs game Friday in the absence of the regularly scheduled NL crew, which refused to enter the stadium in honoring the picket line of striking vendors and concessionaires, members of Teamsters Local 250.

No new talks were scheduled in the strike after the concession workers Friday night rejected 101-75 a new contract proposal from Araserv, Inc., the stadium concessionaire.

Two of the amateur league umpires who stood in Friday night returned to work Saturday. They were Joe Schratz, a recreation specialist at a veterans' hospital, and Al Cohen, a security guard at a suburban high school. They were joined Saturday by Clarence Adams, a high school English teacher, and Joe Puskaric, a pressman for a suburban newspaper.

Tech Kayos New Paltz, 14-3

NEW YORK CITY — Bob Marz had trouble finding the plate for the first couple of innings here Saturday, and two of the times he did find it, Larry Cornelia was ready.

Cornelia and New York Tech pounded Marz and New Paltz State, 14-3. The loss knocked the Hawks out of the ECAC Met District Tournament and ended their season at 13-11.

Marz was the losing pitcher, and Cornelia ended up with six RBIs.

The game started Friday and lasted one inning before rain called a halt to a 5-5 tie. The teams began from scratch Saturday, but the Hawks were missing starting pitcher John Roach who was hit on the ankle with a line drive in Friday's brief outing.

Marz drew the mound assignment, but neither he nor the Hawks were ready for their opponents. Marz issued nine walks before he was relieved midway through the fourth, and the winners had a 10-0 lead.

The damage wasn't all Marz' fault. New Paltz committed four errors in the game, three of them in the first inning when New York pushed seven runs across the plate.

One run was in and two were out when the New Paltz infield blew two ground balls. A couple of walks later Cornelia came up for the first time and drilled a bases loaded triple.

The winners got seven runs in the initial frame and added three more in the second when Cornelia came up again and homered with two of his mates aboard. Ralph Calderon came on in relief and quieted the time, according to General Manager Joe L. Brown.

It's Arlington in DCSL

WAPPINGER — Arlington High officially claimed its DCSL track meet championship Saturday, pacing the ten team field with 110 points to 47 by runnerup Ketcham.

Beacon took third with 30, next was John Jay with 28 followed by Poughkeepsie with 22, Roosevelt with 20, Saugerties with 13, Lourdes with nine, Kingston with eight and Spackenkill with one point.

The top local finisher was Sawyer Steve Fritz who was second in the 440. Charlie Bevier of Kingston took third in the mile, and Tiger Bob Easter was fifth in the triple jump.

In the girls competition, Arlington was again first with 72 points. The rest of the field showed John Jay with 34, Roosevelt with 21, Kingston and Millbrook with 18 points apiece, Pine Plains and Ketcham with 14 each, Poughkeepsie with 12, Spackenkill with 11, Saugerties with seven and Lourdes with three.

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,
UPI Sports Editor

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Tony Dorsett was finishing up his senior year at high school, and you know how high school seniors are, they're always borrowing their father's car and occasionally wrapping it around a pole somewhere.

Not Tony Dorsett, though. He was extra careful with his father's car and when he was finished using it, he drove it to the steel mill where his father works five miles from here so he could give him back the keys.

"I got to the gate," he says, "and the security guard picked up the telephone and called my dad. I almost didn't recognize him, he was covered with so much dirt and filth. I didn't say anything to him, but after handing him the keys, I shook my head and said to myself, 'never...never in my life would I work in the steel mills.'"

That was four years ago, and in all likelihood Tony Dorsett never will work in the mills. He has one more season left to play football at the University of Pittsburgh, this one coming up, and if it turns out to be anything at all like his last three, neither he nor his father ever will have to concern themselves about the mills again.

Right now, Dorsett stands third among the all-time major college rushers, but he shouldn't be standing there long.

If he doesn't get hurt and if all the calculations about him are correct, 21-year-old Tony Dorsett, who most of his friends call either "TD" or "The Hawk" should become the leading rusher in the history of major college football somewhere along the second half of October in the Panthers' sixth or seventh game.

For three straight years now, Dorsett, who played for Pitt as a freshman, has rushed for 1,000 yards or more.

Overall, he has accumulated 4,134 yards and the only two who ever did any better were last year's Heisman Trophy winner, Archie Griffin of Ohio State with 5,177, and Ed Marinaro of Cornell with 4,715.

Twice in the last three years, the compactly-built 5-11, 187-pound Dorsett outshined the Heisman Trophy winner and when they asked him how he felt about Griffin getting the trophy last year, he wasn't bashful at all. Dorsett said he thought he should have gotten it. A lot of others thought the same thing.

"I don't know if I've ever seen a better running back," says Penn State's Joe Paterno.

Pinned down as to whom he thinks is better, Griffin or Dorsett, Syracuse Coach Frank Maloney said, "I hate to make comparisons between the two, but if I had to make a choice between Griffin's power and Dorsett's speed, then I'd take Dorsett."

Any time he hears such warm endorsements, Dorsett feels extra good, not so much because everybody enjoys a little flattery now and then, but because he has promised himself to get his mother and father, Myrtle and Wesley, out of the projects they live in here.

Tony Dorsett never lets himself lose sight of that objective and he realizes the quickest possible way for him to achieve it is to have another great season and become the nation's No. 1 draft choice for the pros.

Any time someone talks to him about playing professional ball when he's through at Pitt, his eyes light up.

"It has always been my dream," he says, sitting now in the Panthers' athletic office after a half-hour drive from his home. "I've wanted to play pro ball ever since I was in midget ball. I hope I can make it. If I don't, I'll feel I've wasted all the time I've put into football and that's a long time. I started playing in the seventh grade."

Some question has been raised whether Dorsett is big enough for the pros.

"Only by the ones who aren't associated with professional ball," he puts in quickly. "I was talking with Larry Brown a couple of months ago. He never told me I couldn't make it in the pros. What about Terry Metcalf and Greg Pruitt? They don't even weigh as much as I do, and they made it. I think only those who aren't personally involved in professional football make a big thing over a running back's size. I'm not worried about that at all. I think I'm big enough."

Majoring in communications at Pittsburgh, Dorsett talks a lot about O.J. Simpson. He says if there's anybody he'd like to pattern himself after, it's O.J.

"He has so much grace and mobility," says Dorsett. "He's the best. I've never seen anybody run as smoothly as he does. Gale Sayers was the closest I ever saw."

Establishing the all-time rushing record and winning the Heisman Trophy mean a great deal to Dorsett.

"Both symbolize being No. 1," he says. "I'm a competitive athlete. Being No. 1 means something to me."

Dorsett is almost as big in Pittsburgh as Willie Stargell. He looks a little like Flip Wilson, the comedian, and is quite a celebrity already even without having played in the pros. He has four older brothers, all of whom worked in the mills, and another brother died some years ago.

Dorsett's father has been in the mills 30 years, but it was his mother who made sure Tony went to church regularly and kept him off the streets.

"I guess I was her baby boy and she was gonna keep me on the right track," says Tony Dorsett.

Galindez Retains Light-Heavy Title

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — Argentina's world light-heavyweight champion Victor Galindez retained his title Saturday, beating American challenger Richie Kates on a knock-out in the 15th round.

Galindez threw a vicious left hook to Kates' face and the challenger took the full count five seconds before the final bell would have sounded.

All three South African judges had Galindez well ahead on points before the fight ended.

Kates opened a deep cut over Galindez' right eye in the third round which almost stopped the fight. Galindez' fifth defense of his title and the third defense in Johannesburg.

The size of the purses for the two fighters was not revealed by the local promoters, Springbok Promotions. Boxing officials said however Galindez was expected to receive about $100,000 and Kates $15,000.

Duran Defending Crown Against Lou Bizzaro

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Lou Bizzaro's livelihood doesn't depend on a victory, but that doesn't make him any less intense.

The 29-year-old Erie native today challenges defending champion Roberto Duran of Panama in the World Boxing Association lightweight championship at the Erie County Field House.

Bizzaro, undefeated in 24 pro fights, will be the hometown favorite but odds are 6 to 1 that Duran, 24, will retain his crown.

"I don't need boxing but I want to be a champion," Bizzaro said. "The money means nothing...I want the title."

Bizzaro said he does not need the money because he and his brother, Johnny, own a used car dealership, a gas station, two apartment houses and two farms. Friends say Bizzaro earns in the six figures. He merely says, "I do fair."

Bizzaro will get a $10,000 guarantee for the 15-rounder. Duran, making the seventh defense of his crown, gets $100,000 plus expenses.

Suns Are't Awed, but They Respect Celtics

BOSTON (UPI) — Basketball's wonderkind Phoenix Suns aren't awed with the veteranstudded Boston Celtics, who seek their 13th NBA crown, but they have a healthy respect for their hosts in today's opening game of the NBA Championship Series.

"If we were going to lose our poise, it would have happened last Sunday on Golden State's court," Suns' Coach John MacLeod said Saturday of his squad which upset the defending champs last week in California.

"I don't think our players will be awed. They have a lot of respect for Boston. We all do. But our guys feel we have a good ball club. No doubt Boston is going to put a lot of pressure on us. We have to play a solid game in every area...more than just making good shots."

making good shots."

Suns' center Alvin Adams, the NBA Rookie of the Year who will be paired at against the Celtics' Dave Cowens, was particularly confident.

"I haven't been too awed by the big teams and their players. I'm not awed anymore, not once the tipoff begins," said Adams. "Dave and Adams are very similar. They're both outside centers. Dave's stronger. Adams is a better passer," said veteran Celtic John Havlicek, whose ability to start Sunday remained in question because of his ankle injury.

But the respect goes both ways, said Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn, who is not taking lightly the team which who eliminated Golden State in seven pressure-packed games to reach the NBA finals for the first time.

"I hold them in very high regard. They proved it. They eliminated every good ball club," said Heinsohn. "And this is nothing new to a lot of them."

Another key matchup will be at guard — Paul Westphal against Charlie Scott. Westphal was traded from Boston to Phoenix for Scott. Both turned in exceptional performances for their teams during the season and the playoffs.

The 3:30 p.m. (EDT) tipoff will be televised nationally on CBS, the local blackout having been lifted Saturday afternoon with only a few hundred obstructed view seats at Boston Garden left, a Celtics spokesman said.

Williams Equals Record

ATLANTA (UPI) — Speedster Steve Williams of the Florida Track Club tied one world record and came within one-tenth of a second of tying another Saturday while winning the 100 and 200-meter dashes in the Martin Luther King Freedom Games.

Williams was timed at 9.9 seconds in the 100 to tie the record he had matched four times before, nipping Harvey Gance of Auburn by one-tenth of a second. He then came back to win the 200 in 19.9 seconds with Gance, a freshman, again second by three-tenths.

Williams, running into a 2.2-mile headwind, had a slow start off the blocks and needed a last-second kick to pass Gance just before the wire in the starstudded 100-meter race.

"I didn't run a very good race, especially in the first half," said Williams. "I was too concerned with what the other runners were doing. That all changed just before the finish, when my entire perspective changed and I relaxed."

There were so many candidates for the 100-meter race, they had to run four heats to pick eight finalists. Williams won the first heat in 10 seconds flat and Gance matched that mark in the second.

Among the also-rans in the finals were high school star Houston McTeer and Ivory Crockett, both of whom—like Gance—have run the 100-yard dash in nine seconds flat.

Williams wasn't pressed in the 200-meter and in that race he got off to a good start and led by several yards most of the way.

World recordholder Dave Roberts of Gainesville, Fla., won the King pole vault with an 18-foot performance but failed in his try at breaking his own record of 18-6 1/2.

James Barrineau of the University of Georgia high jumped 7 feet 2 inches for a two-inch victory with a time of 13.5 seconds in the 110-meter high hurdles.

"I'm satisfied with the time," said Roberson. "I've been able to run that consistently for the past several weeks, and it should get lower before we go to the Olympic trials a few weeks from now."

Edwin Moses of Morehouse College said he beat his goal when he turned in a 48.8 in the 400-meter hurdles.

In addition to Coughlan's record-setting 1500 meters, Tom McLean, of Bucknell, won the 800 meters in 1:45.34 in a race which saw the first five finishers ahead of the previous meet mark set by Byron Dice, of NYU in 1969.

Mel Embree, of Harvard, set a high jump record with a 7-foot-3-inch leap. Ed Lennox,

Maryland Thinclads Win IC4A Championships

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Maryland, overpowering in the field events where they piled up 79 of their 94 points, won the 100th annual IC4A Track and Field Championships Saturday in a two-day meet which saw five meet records broken and three tied.

The winning Terrapins gathered 24 of their points with a 12-3 finish in the long jump, 12 points in the discus throw, 10 each in the javelin, shotput and decathlon, seven in the triple jump and six in the high jump.

Maryland finished 10 points ahead of second-place Penn and 20 points ahead of defending champion Seton Hall.

Villanova, led by doublewinner Eammon Coughlan, finished fourth with 52 points while Northeastern finished fifth with 43 and Navy sixth with 30.

Coughlan, who will be on the Irish team at the Olympics, set a meet record in the 1500 meters with a 3:40.60 clocking and tied a meet record with a 14:28.07 victory in the 5,000 meters.

"I'm satisfied with the time," said Roberson. "I've been able to run that consistently for the past several weeks, and it should get lower before we go to the Olympic trials a few weeks from now."

Edwin Moses of Morehouse College said he beat his goal when he turned in a 48.8 in the 400-meter hurdles.

In addition to Coughlan's record-setting 1500 meters, Tom McLean, of Bucknell, won the 800 meters in 1:45.34 in a race which saw the first five finishers ahead of the previous meet mark set by Byron Dice, of NYU in 1969.

Mel Embree, of Harvard, set a high jump record with a 7-foot-3-inch leap. Ed Lennox, of St. Joseph's in Philadelphia, compiled 52 feet-3 3/4 inches to win the triple jump and Jim Kirby, of Maryland, set a javelin record in Friday's events.

Villanova freshman Tim Dale tied the former 400 meters record of 45.5, set by Larry James, of Villanova in 1968 and then anchored the Villanova 1500-meter relay team to victory.

Maryland's John Davenport took the long jump with a leap of 25 feet, 8 inches. He was followed by teammates Dennis Ivory and Neville Sinclair.

Maryland's Tom Anderson took the shotput with a heave of 56 feet, 5 1/2 inches.

On March 29, 1776, Gen. Henry Clinton waited impatiently at Cape Fear, N.C., for the arrival of an overdue expedition of British Army reserves to relieve his weary troops. They did not arrive and Clinton had to withdraw.

Kingston Second

DCSL Tennis to Jay

NEW PALTZ — League champion Kingston High swept both doubles brackets at the DCSL's tennis tournament Saturday at the State University campus here, but it was John Jay, with a strong showing in singles, that edged the Tigers, 18-14 for the tournament crown.

The remainder of the teams which scored were well behind the leaders. Poughkeepsie was third with seven points followed by Arlington with five, Ketcham and Roosevelt, each with four, and Saugerties with one point.

KHS had to settle for the runnerup spot in first singles as second seed Craig Efron of Poughkeepsie turned back top rated Dan Ingalsbe in the finals, 10-7. John Jay's Mark Johnson gave the Patriots a boost in second singles with an 11-9 victory over Ketcham's Rob Furlani.

The third singles were pivotal in the tournament's eventual outcome. John Jay's John Leo lived up to his No. 1 seed and defeated Arlington's Brian Caswell in the finals, 10-1, that set it up.

Argulewicz had lost by a big score to Leo when the two met during the regular season, but the Tiger was better prepared the second time around. He led, 9-7 before Leo gained a 10-10 tie. The pair then went to a tiebreaker which Leo won, 5-3.

Kingston was seeded first in both doubles brackets, and both Tiger twosomes went away with victories. Dave Jordan and Jim Contino won first doubles, defeated John Jay's Randy Curtis and Ken Collins, 10-8 in the finals. In second doubles, Rick Smith and Matt Klein outlasted Jay's Bill Ciafella and Barry Levine, 11-9.

Ken Rumble picked up the Saugerties point by advancing to the semis in second singles. He beat Jim Marvin of Rhinebeck in the first round, 10-2, won by default over Poughkeepsie's Ann Filipowicz in the second round, then lost to Furlani, 10-6.

Furlani also wiped out Kingston's hope in second singles by crushing Kevin Boyd in the second round, 10-0.

Curtis Strange Repeats In North-South Golf

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Curtis Strange became the second golfer in more than a decade to win back-to-back victories in the North and South Men's Amateur Golf Championship Saturday, whipping Fred Ridley 6 and 5 in the 36-hole finals.

In winning the championship match at Pinehurst Country Club, Strange beat the man who defeated him for the U.S. Amateur title. Ridley won that match 2 and 1.

"I putted extremely well," said Strange, a Wake Forest University standout who won both the North and South and the NCAA individual title in 1975. "I hit the long irons well too."

"I was really pleased with the way I played," he said. "The pins were all tucked in the corners and the tees were all the way back. The course was set up extremely difficult."

Strange, of Virginia Beach, Va., clinched the win with a 15-foot putt for birdie on the 13th hole of the second round.

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,
UPI Sports Editor

ALBUQUERQUE, Pa. (UPI) — Tony Dorsett was finishing up his senior year at high school, and you know how high school seniors are, they're always borrowing their father's car and occasionally wrapping it around a pole somewhere.

Not Tony Dorsett, though. He was extra careful with his father's car and when he was finished using it, he drove it to the steel mill where his father works five miles from here so he could give him back the keys.

"I got to the gate," he says, "and the security guard picked up the telephone and called my dad. I almost didn't recognize him, he was covered with so much dirt and filth. I didn't say anything to him, but after handing him the keys, I shook my head and said to myself...never...never in my life would I work in the steel mills."

That was four years ago, and in all likelihood Tony Dorsett never will work in the mills. He has one more season left to play football at the University of Pittsburgh, this one coming up, and if it turns out to be anything at all like his last three, neither he nor his father ever will have to concern themselves about the mills again.

Right now, Dorsett stands third among the all-time major college rushers, but he shouldn't be standing there long.

If he doesn't get hurt and if all the calculations about him are correct, 21-year-old Tony Dorsett, who most of his friends call either "TD" or "The Hawk," should become the leading rusher in the history of major college football somewhere along the second half of October in the Panthers' sixth or seventh game.

For three straight years now, Dorsett, who played for Pitt as a freshman, has rushed for 1,000 yards or more.

Overall, he has accumulated 4,134 yards and the only two who ever did any better were last year's Heisman Trophy winner, Archie Griffin of Ohio State with 5,177, and Ed Marinaro of Cornell with 4,715.

Twice in the last three years, the compactly-built 5-11, 187-pound Dorsett outperformed the Heisman Trophy winner and when they asked him how he felt about Griffin getting the trophy last year, he wasn't bashful at all. Dorsett said he thought he should have gotten it. A lot of others thought the same thing.

"I don't know if I've ever seen a better running back," says Penn State's Joe Paterno.

Pinned down as to whom he thinks is better, Griffin or Dorsett, Syracuse Coach Frank Maloney said, "I hate to make comparisons between the two, but if I had to make a choice between Griffin's power and Dorsett's speed, then I'd take Dorsett."

Any time he hears such warm endorsements, Dorsett feels extra good, not so much because everybody enjoys a little flattery now and then, but because he has promised himself to get his mother and father, Myrtle and Wesley, out of the projects they live in here.

Tony Dorsett never lets himself lose sight of that objective and he realizes the quickest possible way for him to achieve it is to have another great season and become the nation's No. 1 draft choice for the pros.

Any time someone talks to him about playing professional ball when he's through at Pitt, his eyes light up.

"It has always been my dream," he says, sitting now in the Panthers' athletic office after a half-hour drive from his home. "I've wanted to play pro ball ever since I was in midget ball. I hope I can make it. If I don't, I'll feel I've wasted all the time I've put into football and that's a long time. I started playing in the seventh grade."

Some question has been raised whether Dorsett is big enough for the pros.

"Only by the ones who aren't associated with professional ball," he puts in quickly. "I was talking with Larry Brown a couple of months ago. He never told me I couldn't make it in the pros. What about Terry Metcalf and Greg Pruitt? They don't even weigh as much as I do, and they made it. I think only those who aren't personally involved in professional football make a big thing over a running back's size. I'm not worried about that at all. I think I'm big enough."

Majoring in communications at Pittsburgh, Dorsett talks a lot about O.J. Simpson. He says if there's anybody he'd like to pattern himself after, it's O.J.

"He has so much grace and mobility," says Dorsett. "He's the best. I've never seen anybody run as smoothly as he does. Gale Sayers was the closest I ever saw."

Establishing the all-time rushing record and winning the Heisman Trophy mean a great deal to Dorsett.

"Both symbolize being No. 1," he says. "I'm a competitive athlete. Being No. 1 means something to me."

Dorsett is almost as big in Pittsburgh as Willie Stargell. He looks a little like Flip Wilson, the comedian, and is quite a celebrity already even without having played in the pros. He has four older brothers, all of whom worked in the mills, and another brother died some years ago.

Dorsett's father has been in the mills 30 years, but it was his mother who made sure Tony went to church regularly and kept him off the streets.

"I guess I was her baby boy and she was gonna keep me on the right track," says Tony Dorsett.

Galindez Retains Light-Heavy Title

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — Argentina's world light heavyweight champion Victor Galindez retained his title Saturday, beating American challenger Richie Kates on a knockout in the 15th round.

Galindez threw a vicious left hook to Kates' face and the challenger took the full count five seconds before the final bell would have sounded.

All three South African judges had Galindez well ahead on points before the fight ended.

Kates opened a deep cut over Galindez' right eye in the third round which almost stopped the fight and soaked the two boxers, the referee and the ringside with blood.

Both fighters attacked fiercely throughout the fight, watched by about 40,000 spectators at Johannesburg's Rand stadium.

Saturday's fight was Galindez' fifth defense of his title and the third defense in Johannesburg.

The size of the purses for the two fighters was not revealed by the local promoters, Springbok Promotions. Boxing officials said however Galindez was expected to receive about $100,000 and Kates $15,000.

Duran Defending Crown Against Lou Bizzaro

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Lou Bizzaro's livelihood doesn't depend on a victory, but that doesn't make him any less intense. The 29-year-old Erie native today challenges defending champion Roberto Duran of Panama in the World Boxing Association lightweight championship at the Erie County Field House.

Bizzaro, undefeated in 24 pro fights, will be the hometown favorite but odds are 6 to 1 that Duran, 24, will retain his crown. "I don't need boxing but I want to be a champion," Bizzaro said. "The money means nothing...I want the title."

Bizzaro said he does not need the money because he and his brother, Johnny, own a used car dealership, a gas station, two apartment houses and two farms. Friends say Bizzaro earns in the six figures. He merely says, "I do fair."

Bizzaro will get a $10,000 guarantee for the 15-rounder. Duran, making the seventh defense of his crown, gets $100,000 plus expenses.

Suns Are't Awed, but They Respect Celtics

BOSTON (UPI) — Basketball's wonderkind Phoenix Suns aren't awed with the veteranstudded Boston Celtics, who seek their 13th NBA crown, but they have a healthy respect for their hosts in today's opening game of the NBA Championship Series.

"If we were going to lose our poise, it would have happened last Sunday on Golden State's court," Suns' Coach John MacLeod said Saturday of his squad which upset the defending champs last week in California.

"I don't think our players will be awed. They have a lot of respect for Boston. We all do. But our guys feel we have a good ball club. No doubt Boston is going to put a lot of pressure on us. We have to play a solid game in every area...more than just

Suns' center Alvin Adams, the NBA Rookie of the Year who will be paired at against the Celtics' Dave Cowens, was particularly confident.

"I haven't been too awed by the big teams and their players. I'm not awed anymore, not once the tipoff begins," said Adams. "Dave and Adams are very similar. They're both outside centers. Dave's stronger. Adams is a better passer," said veteran Celtic John Havlicek, whose ability to start Sunday remained in question because of his ankle injury.

But the respect goes both ways, said Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn, who is not taking lightly the team which who eliminated Golden State in seven pressure-packed games to reach the NBA finals for the first time.

"I hold them in very high regard. They proved it. They eliminated every good ball club," said Heinsohn. "And this is nothing new to a lot of them."

Another key matchup will be at guard — Paul Westphal against Charlie Scott. Westphal was traded from Boston to Phoenix for Scott. Both turned in exceptional performances for their teams during the season and the playoffs.

The 3:30 p.m. (EDT) tipoff will be televised nationally on CBS, the local blackout having been lifted Saturday afternoon with only a few hundred obstructed view seats at Boston Garden left, a Celtics spokesman said.

Williams Equals Record

ATLANTA (UPI) — Speedster Steve Williams of the Florida Track Club tied one world record and came within one-tenth of a second of tying another Saturday while winning the 100 and 200-meter dashes in the Martin Luther King Freedom Games.

Williams was timed at 9.9 seconds in the 100 to tie the record he had matched four times before, nipping Harvey Glance of Auburn by one-tenth of a second. He then came back to win the 200 in 19.9 seconds with Glance, a freshman, again second by three-tenths.

Williams, running into a 2.2-mile headwind, had a slow start off the blocks and needed a last-second kick to pass Glance just before the wire in the starstudded 100-meter race.

"I didn't run a very good race, especially in the first half," said Williams. "I was too concerned with what the other runners were doing. That all changed just before the finish, when my entire perspective changed and I relaxed."

There were so many candidates for the 100-meter race, they had to run four heats to pick eight finalists. Williams won the first heat in 10 seconds flat and Glance matched that mark in the second.

Among the also-rans in the finals were high school star Houston McTeer and Ivory Crockett, both of whom—like Glance—have run the 100-yard dash in nine seconds flat.

Williams wasn't pressed in the 200-meter and in that race he got off to a good start and led by several yards most of the way.

Onteora Zips Hugie Netmen

NEW PALTZ — New Paltz High's non-league tennis team became Onteora's third straight shutout victim Friday as the Indians topped their hosts, 6-0.

UCAL opponents Red Hook and Rondout both previously fell to OCS by 5-0 scores. Onteora currently leads the league with a 7-0 record with matches remaining against Ellenville, Coleman and Fallsburgh.

The sets in first and second singles went to the winners by 10-2 scores. Conrad Earnest handled Bob Durkin in the first match, then Dave Scherbarth defeated Scott Taylor.

The rest of the matches were closer but still fruitless for the Hugies. Bob Berkeley defeated Mike Moriello, 10-9, and Bill Harder downed Tony Saragnese, 10-8. In doubles, it was Ken Houldin and Harder over John Nyquist and T.N. Thompson, 10-8, and Pete Rose and Paul Gambill over Pete Leone and Saragnese, 10-6.

New Field

KINGSTON — Kingston Sport Club has switched its practice site to the Chambers School field. Practices take place Wednesdays at 5:30 p.m.

The King

Guy Lafleur of the Montreal Canadiens holds Seagram's Seven Crowns of Sports trophy Friday after it was presented to him as top player in hockey last year. Along with the trophy, Lafleur, who scored 56 goals and led the NHL with 125 points, received $10,000. (UPI)

OCS, NP Girls Win

BOICEVILLE — Cheryl Cifello, Joy Vallee and Carol Gilsinger led the Onteora High girls track team to an 89½-24½ victory over visiting Pine Bush Friday.

In another UCAL matchup, New Paltz defeated Fallsburgh, 69-25.

Cifello won the 440, the shot put and anchored the winning OCS mile relay team. Her 1:03.6 clocking in the 440 was a school record. She has set a new quarter mile mark every time she has run the event this year.

Vallee scored victories in the 100 meter hurdles and the 100 yard dash, and she helped the Indians to win in both the 440 and 880 relay races. Gilsinger was a winner in the 220 and ran splits in the 880 and mile relays.

Lisa Jacobs was a bright spot for Pine Bush with a double in the mile and two mile runs.

The win boosted OCS to 3-1 in the league and 4-1 overall.

New Paltz improved its record to 4-2 with its triumph over the Comets. Sue Blake and Barbara Buck were double winners for the Hugies, Blake in the long jump and high jump, and Buck in the 440 and 100 meter hurdles.

Red Hook Clinches Tie In UCAL Girls Softball

RED HOOK — Red Hook High's softball team clinched at least a tie for the Ulster County Athletic League championship Friday by pounding visiting Marlboro, 28-5 to record its eighth consecutive win without a defeat.

The Raiders have one game remaining against defending champion Walkkill. Pine Bush, with one loss to date, is the only other club left in the race.

Pat Kowalski cracked four hits and drove in four runs to pace Red Hook's latest success. Marge Shanley, Dee Kipp and Roseanne Picard also got in on the act with two RBI's apiece as Shanley doubled and Kipp and Picard each had a pair of hits.

Denise Sevigny held the Dukes to five hits and picked up the victory. Marie Taddeo gave up 16 safeties to the Raiders in taking the defeat.

Bo 'Doing Very Well'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Doctors at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital said Saturday Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler was "doing very well" following 6½ hours of open heart surgery on Thursday.

Schembechler, 47, was expected to remain in the surgical intensive care unit for several days. However, doctors said it was not immediately determined how long he would have to remain hospitalized.

"In operations of this type, the first three days are very critical," said Dr. Rudolph E. Reichert, head of cardiology at the hospital. "With this in mind he is doing very well."

A team of four surgeons performed four coronary bypasses on Schembechler to correct blockages in the heart's main arteries. The usual recovery period for such surgery is about four to six weeks.

"The coronary problem was essentially as anticipated," a hospital spokesman said, "and the deprived areas of the heart were given new supplies of blood by these procedures."

Kingston Reaches .500 Mark

SPACKENKILL — Rich Bell and Marco Tiano took care of the hitting, and Kevin Jordan took care of the pitching as Kingston High, after a 1-5 start this season, beat homestanding Spackenkill Friday, 4-1 to reach the .500 level after 14 DCSL contests. Jordan gave up a first inning run to the Spartans then went on to complete a three-hitter and lift his personal record to 3-1. Bell cracked three hits in four trips to lead the Tiger offense, and Tiano contributed the key blow in Kingston's three-run sixth inning.

The Tiger rally broke a 1-1 tie and gave Jordan a little breathing room for his last two innings. Walks to Tom Slatery and Paul Runge and Val Galm's single loaded the bases. Bell then supplied the tiebreaker with a hit that drove home pinchrunner Warren Cagnone.

Tiano drilled another hit off loser Eric Meyer to chase two more runs across the plate.

Jordan just had trouble with the first three batters he faced. He gave up a leadoff single to Carl Frederickson then made a bad throw on a pickoff attempt to allow Frederickson to advance to third.

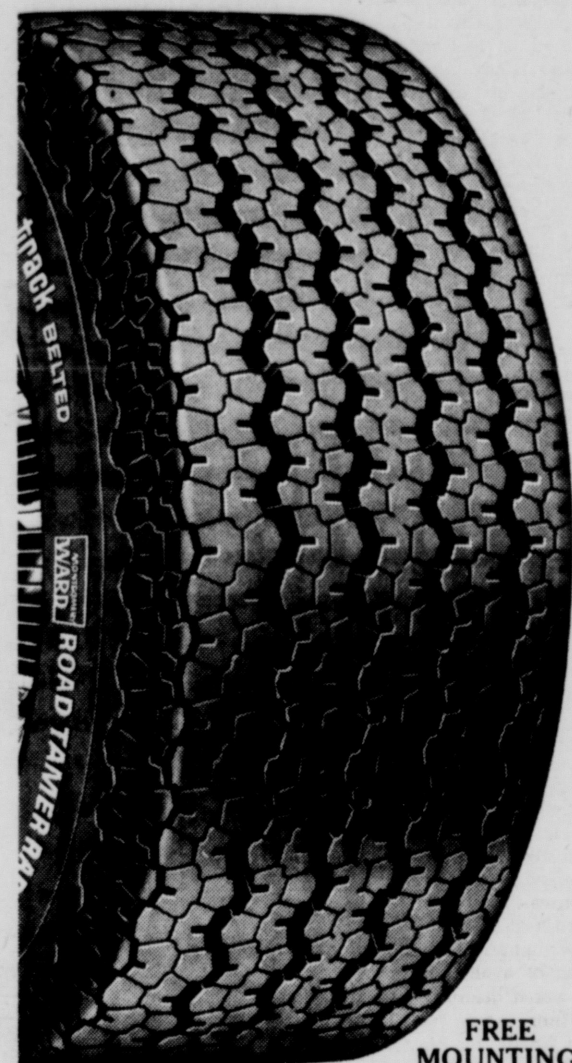

Jordan walked the next batter then gave up an RBI single to Jeff Neiman, but that was all for the Spartans. Two walks and Larry Williams' double was all the damage Spackenkill could do for the rest of the afternoon.

Kingston got that run right back in the second anyway. Bell was aboard with one of his hits and moved to second when the Spackenkill infield blew a play on John Grogan's grounder. Tiano then grounded out to short, but Bell kept running on the play and beat a throw to the plate.

Two Masters: Leonardo & Paddock

What does it take to attain a position of unquestioned superiority and leadership? It was Leonardo Da Vinci's capacity for original thought and perfection of execution that brought him widespread fame and recognition as a master.

One of the reasons why Paddock has become the most respected name in the swimming pool industry is because the men and women at Paddock are innovators, too. In 1936, Paddock was the first company to construct swimming pools using the Gunite method; pneumatically applying concrete over a steel framework. The result—unlimited structural adaptability.

Because of the versatility of the Gunite process, your Paddock Pool is custom designed and site-engineered for you. The exact size, shape and depth of your Paddock Pool is determined by the terrain of the swimming pool's location, your family's needs, and your own personal taste.

The beautifully planned, expertly composed and executed works of a master such as Da Vinci have much in common with swimming pools of Gunite, by Paddock. That commonality may be expressed in one word; excellence. In both cases, impeccable craftsmanship, dedication and innovation, have resulted in immediate popularity and continuing acceptance by the public.

If you are the kind of person who finds pleasure viewing the works of Da Vinci or any great artist or craftsman, then you're also, most assuredly, an individual who will appreciate the superb planning and workmanship that goes into the construction of every Paddock Pool. For all the details about Paddock Pools, call or write.

She Made It

Australia's Linda McGill takes a breath as she moves through water during her marathon swim around Hong Kong island, the toughest feat she's ever had, according to her manager. The 29-year-old Olympian completed the swim — a distance of about 30 miles — in 17 hours and six minutes. She later told newsmen her worst problem was a jelly fish. She also said she made part of the swim topless because her bra straps were irritating her. (UPI)

Coleman Retains Lead

KINGSTON — Coleman High had little trouble Friday maintaining its lead in the Ulster County Athletic League golf standings. The Statesmen whipped visiting Liberty, 177-195 to run their record to 9-1.

Elsewhere in the league, Ellenville remained in second place, improving to 8-2 with a 177-204 win over Pine Bush, and New Paltz gained a third place tie with idle Rondout at 7-3 with a 174-196 decision over Red Hook.

One other match was scheduled, but Fallsburgh never showed up to meet Onteora at Woodstock. The Fallsburgh team reportedly disbanded due to a "lack of interest." Fallsburgh officials were unavailable for comment.

Coleman showed consistency at Wiltwyck, Brian Smith, Howard Shamba and Jim Sumislaski all came home in 44, and Brian Crosswell was just one shot back. Liberty, now

6-4, was led by Mitch Bess' medalist 40. Steve Eisenberger added 48 as did Greg Rohrbach, and Rich Strauss carded 57.

Todd Krieg toured the Red Hook course in 38 to pace the Hugies. Rich Siegel had 40, John Schulte had 46 and Pete Horn had 50 to round out the winning total.

The Raiders got a 45 from Gerry Kane, a 46 from Rich Cole, a 51 from William Abela and a 54 from Bob Skelly as their record dipped to 2-8.

Steve Schluskel and Mayer Scher shared the honors for Ellenville, each carding 43. John Gillette shot 45, and Barry Wolf scored 46 for the Blue Devils.

For Pine Bush, Mark Swensen had 47, Greg Wasiluk had 50, Wayne Mosher had 52 and Dennis Fries had 55. The Bushmen stand at 2-9 on the season.

Sostak Put the Hook on Highland

HIGHLAND — Ed Sostak wasn't about to let Highland High make the UCL Division II baseball race a runaway.

"He'd pitched five innings against Marlboro the day before," said Sostak's coach, Harry Rapenske, "but he told me he'd been really pointing toward Highland. He lost to them in extra innings at our place."

Sostak got his revenge Friday, pitching Liberty to a 4-1 victory here. In the process he stopped the Big Blue's five-game winning streak and pulled Liberty to within a game of the Highlanders in the standings.

Rain continued to foul up the schedule, but in one other contest played Friday, Ellenville notched its third win of the year by turning back visiting Coleman, 5-0.

Highland battled the Redskins through five scoreless innings before the winners bunched four hits in the sixth to jump three runs ahead. The rally began to unfold when Brian Wicks drilled a Bob Bell pitch into left for a leadoff single.

Jeff Katz kept it going with another hit, this one into right.

Tom McDermott's sacrifice moved the runners over, then Tim Yaun drove in one with a fly to the outfield to snap Bell's shutout bid.

Bell went on to complete the game for Highland but not before he surrendered two more RBI singles in the sixth to Craig Simmons and Terry Boyd. Simmons picked up his second run batted in of the game in the top of the seventh to give Liberty a 4-0 lead.

Sostak, now 3-2 on the year, finished with eight strikeouts and one walk. He gave up five hits and lost his try for a shutout in the home seventh when Frank Ronkese knocked home Steve Giampontone with the Big Blue's lone run.

With five games left to play, Highland has a 7-4 record to second place Liberty's 6-6.

A win would have given Coleman a chance to move back into serious contention in Division II, but the Statesmen couldn't cash in on the opportunity and slipped to 4-6.

Tony Sanchez threw a four-hit shutout for Ellenville to give the Blue Devils their third win against nine defeats. Loser Mike Kearney lasted just two innings, was charged with six wild pitches and gave up all five runs before turning the job over to reliever Ron Diers.

A double by Darrell Nirenburg, a Coleman error and Kearney's first wild toss put Ellies on second and third in the home first. Kearney then threw two more wild pitches, both scored runs and the second walked Bob Del Gaizo. Ray Connor later singled home Del Gaizo with the third run.

The winners added two more in the second before Diers came on to pitch four innings of shutout ball. Coleman, though, never got to Sanchez who finished his performance with two walks and two strikeouts.

Raiders, PB Keep Pace

RED HOOK — Red Hook and Pine Bush High Schools continued their battle for first place in the Ulster County Athletic League's Division I baseball race Saturday with victories. The Bushmen remained a half game in front by edging New Paltz, 3-1. Red Hook, meanwhile, downed Onteora, 6-2.

Al Marone knocked in two runs and Barry Foote hurled the victory for Pine Bush. Mike Beck was the loser. Other details were not reported. Red Hook capitalized on seven Onteora errors to stay close to the top spot. Ray Keeler, with relief from Glen Coon, got the win. Bob Nissen was the hard-luck loser. Idle Rondout Valley is in third place in the Division, a game behind Pine Bush. The box:

Braves Tryouts

The Kingston Braves of the Hudson Valley Rookie League will hold practice and tryouts on Wednesday from 6 to 8 p.m. at Dietz Stadium.

At Boxing Show

The Names Come Alive

KINGSTON — They're names you've probably seen in print on and off for the last couple of years. But to most Kingston area boxing fans they've been just that...names.

That all changes this Saturday night (May 29) when the Floyd Patterson-coached Huguenot Boxing Club of New Paltz, featuring the likes of Brian Hurley, Al Bevier, Rich Shur, Jim Longo and others, participates in an amateur fight show at the Municipal Auditorium under the sponsorship of the Kingston Patrolman's Association.

The New Paltz-based club, which has sent its members to New York's Golden Gloves tournament and other leading competitions in the Northeast, will be facing a group of upstate amateurs in what should prove to be an action-filled 10-bout card.

Also in the ring that night will be two Kingston pugilists, one with no ring experience, the other with just several rounds behind him.

What 20-year-old Bill Costello and 27-year-old Pete Capriotti may lack in finesse, you can be sure they'll make up in desire. Each has been working out for weeks in anticipation of a chance to show their worth before the hometown fans.

The lineup for Patterson's club includes Longo at 135, Hurley at 160, Andy Schott at 125, Nils Forseth at 147, Rick Morse at 135, Rick Amundson at 160, Bevier at 160, Rorsey at 160, Jeff Schott at 135 and Shur at 130.

The most interesting bout of the evening should prove to be Hurley's battle with Louis Veyes of Watervliet, not only because of the local boy's notoriety, but because of his opponent's background. Veyes is considered one of the more rugged members of former pro Dave Zigliwicz' upstate team and was a winner of a Golden Gloves title in his class this year.

Tickets for Saturday's show are available at Spada's Sports Shop and at Police Headquarters. Ringside seats are $4. General admission is $3.

White Water Slalom Set

PHOENICIA — The annual White Water Slalom Races held on the rapids of the Esopus Creek near the Phoenicia railroad bridge are scheduled for June 5 and 6.

The Esopus Slalom, a test of precise boat handling through a series of natural and manmade hazards, is expected to draw more than 100 entrants from the U.S. and Canada. The Phoenicia Rotary Club and the Kayak and Canoe Club of New York City are co-sponsoring this year's expanded competition.

More than 5,000 spectators witness the event each year. The races will be narrated, and pamphlets containing information about the slalom will be available.

She Made It

Australia's Linda McGill takes a breath as she moves through water during her marathon swim around Hong Kong island, the toughest feat she's ever had, according to her manager. The 29-year-old Olympian completed the swim — a distance of about 30 miles — in 17 hours and six minutes. She later told newsmen her worst problem was a jelly fish. She also said she made part of the swim topless because her bra straps were irritating her. (UPI)

Coleman Retains Lead

KINGSTON — Coleman High had little trouble Friday maintaining its lead in the Ulster County Athletic League golf standings. The Statesmen whipped visiting Liberty, 177-195 to turn their record to 9-1.

Elsewhere in the league, Ellenville remained in second place, improving to 8-2 with a 177-204 win over Pine Bush, and New Paltz gained a third place tie with idle Rondout at 7-3 with a 174-196 decision over Red Hook.

One other match was scheduled, but Fallsburgh never showed up to meet Onteora at Woodstock. The Fallsburgh team reportedly disbanded due to a "lack of interest." Fallsburgh officials were unavailable for comment.

Coleman showed consistency at Wiltwyck. Brian Smith, Howard Shambo and Jim Sumislaski all came home in 44, and Brian Crosswell was just one shot back. Liberty, now

6-4, was led by Mitch Etess' medalist 40. Steve Eisenberger added 49 as did Greg Rohrbach, and Rich Strauss carded 57.

Todd Krieg toured the Red Hook course in 38 to pace the Hokies. Rich Siegel had 40, John Schulte had 46 and Pete Horn had 50 to round out the winning total.

The Raiders got a 45 from Gerry Kane, a 46 from Rich Cole, a 51 from William Abela and a 54 from Bob Skelly as their record dipped to 2-8.

Steve Schluskel and Mayer Scher shared the honors for Ellenville, each carding 43. John Gillette shot 45, and Barry Wolff scored 46 for the Blue Devils.

For Pine Bush, Mark Swensen had 47, Greg Wasiluk had 50, Wayne Moshier had 52 and Dennis Fries had 55. The Bushmen stand at 2-9 on the season.

HIGHLAND — Ed Sostak wasn't about to let Highland High make the UCAL Division II baseball race a runaway.

"He'd pitched five innings against Marlboro the day before," said Sostak's coach, Harry Rapenske, "but he told me he'd been really pointing toward Highland. He lost to them in extra innings at our place."

Sostak got his revenge Friday, pitching Liberty to a 4-1 victory here. In the process he stopped the Big Blue's five-game winning streak and pulled Liberty to within a game of the Highlanders in the standings.

Rain continued to foul up the schedule, but in one other contest played Friday, Ellenville notched its third win of the year by turning back visiting Coleman, 5-0.

Highland battled the Redskins through five scoreless innings before the winners bunched four hits in the sixth to jump three runs ahead. The rally began to unfold when Brian Wicks drilled a Bob Bell pitch into left for a leadoff single.

Jeff Katz kept it going with another hit, this one into right.

Tom McDermott's sacrifice moved the runners over, then Tim Yaun drove in one with a fly to the outfield to snap Bell's shutout bid.

Bell went on to complete the game for Highland but not before he surrendered two more RBI singles in the sixth to Craig Simmons and Terry Boyd. Simmons picked up his second run batted in of the game in the top of the seventh to give Liberty a 4-0 lead.

Sostak, now 3-2 on the year, finished with eight strikeouts and one walk. He gave up five hits and lost his try for a shutout in the home seventh when Frank Ronkese knocked home Steve Giamportone with the Big Blue's lone run.

With five games left to play, Highland has a 7-4 record to second place Liberty's 6-5.

A win would have give Coleman a chance to move back into serious contention in Division II, but the Statesmen couldn't cash in on the opportunity and slipped to 4-6.

Tony Sanchez threw a four-hit shutout for Ellenville to give the Blue Devils their third win against nine defeats. Loser Mike Kearney lasted just two innings, was charged with six wild pitches and gave up all five runs before turning the job over to reliever Ron Diers.

A double by Darrell Nirenburg, a Coleman error and Kearney's first wild toss put Ellies on second and third in the home first. Kearney then threw two more wild pitches, both scored runs and the second walked Bob Del Gaizo. Ray Connor later singled home Del Gaizo with the third run.

The winners added two more in the second before Diers came on to pitch four innings of shutout ball. Coleman,

Raiders, PB Keep Pace

RED HOOK — Red Hook and Pine Bush High Schools continued their battle for first place in the Ulster County Athletic League's Division I baseball race Saturday with victories. The Bushmen remained a half game in front by edging New Paltz, 3-1. Red Hook, meanwhile, downed Onteora, 6-2.

Al Marone knocked in two runs and Barry Foote hurled the victory for Pine Bush. Mike Beck was the loser. Other details were not reported. Red Hook capitalized on seven Onteora errors to stay close to the top spot. Ray Keeler, with relief from Glen Coon, got the win. Bob Nissen was the hard-luck loser. Idle Rondout Valley is in third place in the Division, a game behind Pine Bush. The box:

At Boxing Show

The Names Come Alive

KINGSTON — They're names you've probably seen in print on and off for the last couple of years. But to most Kingston area boxing fans they've been just that...names.

That all changes this Saturday night (May 29) when the Floyd Patterson-coached Hugenot Boxing Club of New Paltz, featuring the likes of Brian Hurley, Al Bevier, Rich Shur, Jim Longo and others, participates in an amateur fight show at the Municipal Auditorium under the sponsorship of the Kingston Patrolman's Association. The New Paltz-based club, which has sent its members to New York's Golden Gloves tournament and other leading competitions in the Northeast, will be facing a group of upstate amateurs in what should prove to be an action-filled 10-bout card.

Also in the ring that night will be two Kingston pugilists, one with no ring experience, the other with just several rounds behind him.

What 20-year-old Bill Costello and 27-year-old Pete Capriotti may lack in finesse, you can be sure they'll make up in desire. Each has been working out for weeks in anticipation of a chance to show their worth before the hometown fans.

The lineup for Patterson's club includes Longo at 135, Hurley at 160, Andy Schott at 125, Nils Forseth at 147, Rick Morse at 135, Rick Amundson at 160, Bevier at 160, Rorsey at 160, Jeff Schott at 135 and Shur at 130.

The most interesting bout of the evening should prove to be Hurley's battle with Louis Veyes of Watervliet, not only because of the local boy's notoriety, but because of his opponent's background. Veyes is considered one of the more rugged members of former pro Dave Zigliwicz' upstate team and was a winner of a Golden Gloves title in his class this year.

Tickets for Saturday's show are available at Spada's Sports Shop and at Police Headquarters. Ringside seats are $4. General admission is $3.

White Water Slalom Set

PHOENICIA — The annual White Water Slalom Races held on the rapids of the Esopus Creek near the Phoenicia railroad bridge are scheduled for June 5 and 6.

The Esopus Slalom, a test of precise boat handling through a series of natural and manmade hazards, is expected to draw more than 100 entrants from the U.S. and Canada. The Phoenicia Rotary Club and the Kayak and Canoe Club of New York City are co-sponsoring this year's expanded competition. More than 5,000 spectators witness the event each year. The races will be narrated, and pamphlets containing information about the slalom will be available.

MR Vet Advocates 'Permissive Medication'

MONTICELLO — "New York is behind the times. We should allow some permissive medication as they do in most other states. If we did we would have more fruitful racing," the person talking was Dr. Roy Sadovsky, 32, track veterinarian at Monticello Raceway for the past five years. As a former driver and son of a veteran trainer-driver he is especially sensitive to the problems of horsemen.

"I'm not saying the medication shouldn't be regulated," he continued. "But you have racing the entire year now. In the past horses used to race maybe 20 times a year. Now you have horses going to the gate 40 or more times."

"Come to the paddock area after a race sometime and you'll see what I mean. You have horses so sore they can barely walk. I'm up half the night in the barn area medicating them so they can race again the following week."

Dr. Sadovsky wants it made clear that he is in no way advocating the use of any drug that would hop a horse, make it run faster than its capabilities; or depress a horse and make it go slower. He is against the use of stimulants, amphetamines, tranquilizers and depressants.

"Look," he explained, "horses are athletes. wear and tear on their bodies is something most people can't imagine. I'm certain that at the end of his career Sandy Koufax had to use analgesics (pain relievers) in order to pitch, yet no one was saying he was being drugged."

What Dr. Sadovsky feels is wrong and shortsighted is the rule in New York State which forbids the use of medication of any kind on a horse 48 hours before a race. In California, Florida, Delaware, Maryland and elsewhere to stick to its 48 hour rule?

The answer is complex and has to do with the feeling of purists and legislators that once the doors would open a flood of illegal stimulants and depressants would easily be detected.

Whatever the case, it is against the law in New York to give a horse even a simple aspirin less than 48 hours before it goes to the post.

Roy Sadovsky, a tall, husky man who could pass for a med school undergraduate, is the son of a trainer-driver George Sadovsky. He grew up around Freehold Raceway in New Jersey and working as a groom for his father by the time he was 12.

By the time he was 19 he was driving horses and "winning my share." But he took a hard look at himself and decided he didn't have the ability to make it really big and set his sights on becoming a veterinarian. He is a graduate of the New York State Veterinary College at Cornell and in 1971 became track veterinarian at Monticello. He and his wife, Lynne, live in Monticello and have an 11-year-old named Aaron.

He not only treats race horses but also has a great deal of admiration for them.

"You're talking about an animal with a great deal of heart," he said. "No human athlete would put up with the kind of pain a horse does and still compete. And I think we should do something about it."

Art Flick to Guest At Trout Unlimited

KINGSTON — Art Flick, internationally known trout fisherman, fly-tyer and author, will be the guest at the Thursday night meeting of the Catskill Mountains Chapter of Trout Unlimited.

"A Day of Fishing with Art Flick," a fine slide presentation of Flick on the Schoharie Creek will be shown, and Flick will field questions from the audience. The meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Room of the Heritage Savings Bank, Wall Street, Kingston.

Flick, who resides in the heart of the Catskills in Westkill, is the author of the well known "Streamside Guide," a work he followed with the "New Streamside Guide," the bible of most fly fishermen across the country. Those unique volumes were drawn from his firsthand experiences on the little Westkill and the Schoharie.

Flick also edited the "Master Fly-Tying Guide," an outstanding book on all kinds of fly-tying. The book presents the work of nine master fly-tyers in Flick's way and includes valuable tips for both the amateur and professional.

For many years Flick has been personally involved in the restoration, conservation, rehabilitation and reclamation of our vital fresh water resources. He is a member of the American League of Anglers, Federation of Fly Fishermen and an honorary director of the Catskill Mountain Chapter of Trout Unlimited. He was also the proprietor of the now renowned Westkill Tavern, the gathering place of many well known Schoharie Creek fishermen and authors.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dunn Are Going After Ali's Championship

By STEVE WILSTEIN
UPI Sports Writer

(Editor's note: Steve Wilstein, UPI New York, spent considerable time with British heavy-weight Richard Dunn, his wife and manager when they visited New York in mid-April.)

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dunn are going after Muhammad Ali's heavyweight boxing championship Tuesday in Munich (Monday night in US) and the lady of the house states firmly, "He's in for a big shock, Mr. Ali."

Mr. Dunn is a handyman, steel erector and sergeant in the parachute regiment reserve. He is 6-foot-3 and 210 pounds and has tattooed arms and shoulders seem padded with concrete. His brother calls him "Bwana," the great white chief. He is fiercely in love with his wife Janet, the mother of his three children, his promoter and, according to his manager, "the driving force behind him."

Dunn's manager is a peppy 50-year veteran of the boxing game named George Biddles, who accompanied the Duns to a visit to New York in mid-April.

"If he wins this fight and coughs," "not only will England make him King, but the United States will make him President."

Before going to Munich to finish his training, Richard Dunn, his wife, father-in-law-trainer and George plotted the fall of Muhammad Ali for nearly two months at his home in Yorkshire, on the fringe of legendary Ilkley Moor.

"It's a family concern," said Biddles, who loves it that way. He's worked with his own wife in boxing since 1927 when she'd collect the money at the door and he'd be "the whip, the manager of the king," Janet says. "I've been watching boxing since I've been about eight years old. Richard and I met at a boxing show. He was boxing and won on points. He was still a bit of a comedian. He got pushed through the ropes and started swingin'."

"I was wild before I met Janet," said Dunn, 31. He met her 11 years ago and, after a one-year courtship, married her. "The first date I stopped drinking. I haven't drunk since."

"Janet's a really fantastic kid," Dunn continued. "She helped me. I was amateur boxing, playing rugby and parachuting all at the same time. I was doing every night. I came home one night, my nose all smashed in from playing rugby. She threw me boots on the fire and burned me boots."

"She said, 'that's it. Take three years. If you don't do nothing' in three years, give it up altogether. I said 'fair enough.' So I stuck to it for three years and I did alright. I tried it for three more years and I did even better. And the last three years, I've been out of this world."

Every morning at 4 a.m., Janet would "kick him out of bed," and Dunn vest and a hood and drive out to dewy and dark Ilkley Moor. Janet would go back to sleep.

"I do me running in the heather," Dunn said, "up to your knees in the heather. And the air is like wine. When you go up there," he pauses and draws a deep draught of air through his nostrils, "you go dizzy 'cause it's thatful place."

Dunn claims to be a new man since doing some serious soul-searching two years. That was just after he lost his last fight, to Jose Urtain of Spain in four rounds. Prior to that was an eighth-round knockout by Jimmy Young, the Philadelphia who lost a controversial unanimous decision to an out-of-shape Ali on April 30.

Dunn's pro record is 33-9 and he earned the title shot by knocking out Bernd August in the third round for the European heavyweight championship on April 6.

"I've more confidence in myself since I met George," Dunn said of his manager, who took him over only a year ago. "I've more determination. My style hasn't changed much but I'm fitter now, stronger, punching better."

"I have the best chance of any European in recent years to win the title because I am a southpaw as well. In 1966, Muhammad Ali fought Karl Mildener in Germany when Muhammad Ali was very young and very, very fit. At his peak, really good. And for 12 rounds he had a hell of a job with Karl Mildener, who was a southpaw and was 29-years old at the time. Well, I'm a southpaw and Ali is now 34 years old. He's not got the ambition that I've got."

Dunn has had six fights under George Biddles, won five by kayos and one on points, a 15-round unanimous decision for the British heavyweight championship. "He was making no progress before he came to me," said Biddles. "He was despairing, he was even thinking of giving it up. He's a bit on the shy side and he thought I wouldn't want to bother with him."

"But Janet said, 'you go down and ask.' He drove 220 miles just to spar in my gymnasium and the second visit he plucked up the courage to ask me if I'd take over his management. There's no question that his wife Janet was the driving force behind him," Biddles said he realized from the start Dunn's problem was "a psychological thing." "He's always been a good fighter," Biddles said, "but he's never believed in Richard Dunn to the extent he should have. I taught him self-belief. The poorest amateur knows how to stick out his hand. "The greatness of Muhammad Ali is built simply and solely on his absolute inborn self-assurance. It enables him to do the things he does."

Both Biddles and Dunn share a genuine respect and gratitude to Ali, who is helping them to a $200,000 payday. "He's done more for boxing and boxers than any other boxer who ever lived," Biddles said. "He's kept alive promotions, boxers, hangers on, seconds, trainers, he's really and truly been a messiah to boxing. Nobody loses, everybody goes home a winner with the champ. "There's no doubt when the fella can call himself the greatest for 20 years and then for 15 years go ahead and prove it, it's a remarkable performance. But in my opinion, the moment has got to come that he must deteriorate that little bit. In a hard battle the physical will eventually be noticeable. "I am sure that battle he had with Joe Frazier (last September) did not do him a great deal of good. It may have done the world of good to Richard Dunn. Richard is going in there firmly believing that he has a chance to win and he's going to win. He's not going in there to survive a few rounds. The certainty is that Ali will earn his money this time as he did against Frazier."

Dunn, a parachutist like Chuck Wepner, a laborer like Jimmy Young and a muscle man like Ron Lyle, promises not to be another Jean Pierre Coopman, who barely even showed passive resistance enroute to a five round kayo as Ali's "Bum of the Month," in February. "No way," Dunn says, emphatically. To which Janet adds, "I could have done better than Coopman meself."

New York Pro Teams Keep Shelling Out the Dough

NEW YORK (UPI) — Home is where the heart is unless you are a pro athlete. Then home is where the money is.

And, as usual, the big money is in New York.

Which explains why the ownerships of the New York-based professional franchises have been able to land some of the top names in the sporting world, generally without giving up as much as a player in return. The explanation spans one word — money.

New York is like no other city in the world in its deep concern for the entertainment dollar.

The NBA New York Knicks, for instance, who have a ticket range of $6 through $12, not only must buck the hockey Rangers and Islanders, basketball Nets, and football Giants and Jets for that one event a month the average sports fan will attend—but also Broadway, an estimated 300 movie theaters, various concerts and a number of other enticing entertainment packages not found in, say, a city the size of Cleveland.

That is why the Knicks—and all New York clubs—must provide the best possible team to keep their games entertaining and to stay alive in the playoff picture. The cash outflow of the Big Apple has made millionaires in the past 2½ years out of baseball's Jim "Catfish" Hunter, soccer's Pele and football's Larry Csonka, while giving Billie Jean King and a handful of nondescript hockey players—among others—comfortable six-figure incomes.

The Knicks, bounced in the qualifying round of the 1974-75 playoffs and desperately in need of a superstar to match Julius Erving down the road with the Nets, shook the pocketbook last summer and landed a "franchise" player in George McGinnis, co-MVP in the ABA along with Erving.

McGinnis did not come cheaply—signing for an estimated $2.4 million in a six-year deal—but the Knicks figured he would be worth it if he could provide them a more productive season and longer life in the playoffs when, incidentally, ticket prices take a jump.

There was only one problem: the Knicks signed him without bothering to check with the Philadelphia 76ers, who had drafted McGinnis in 1973 when his senior class at Indiana University graduated. The NBA nullified his contract and stripped the Knicks of a No. 1 draft choice for signing the ABA superstar.

Broken-hearted but $2.4 million heavier in the pocketbook, the Knicks tried unsuccessfully to buy Kareem Abdul-Jabbar from the Milwaukee Bucks for $1 million and an assembly of players; then tried to purchase the rights to retired superstar Wilt Chamberlain from the Los Angeles Lakers. Eventually the Knicks had to settle on four-time all star forward Spencer Haywood, who was pried loose from the Seattle SuperSonics for $1.3 million and a top draft pick.

The New York Yankees, another team suffering from malnutrition on the field, made free agent Hunter the richest baseball player alive on New Year's Eve of 1974 when they outbid a handful of financially well-to-do teams to provide the American League's reigning Cy Young Award winner a five-year, $3.75 million contract. Hunter went on to win 23 games for the Yanks last season.

The Yankees also landed baseball's other celebrated free agent, Andy Messersmith, with a four-year package calling for $1.4 million, but that deal fell through when the former Los Angeles Dodger pitcher charged the Yanks tried to alter the initial offer.

Messersmith claimed his agent, Herb Osmond, did not have power of attorney to accept the deal and the Yankees dropped their claim to the curly-haired right-hander, who signed a short time later with the Atlanta Braves.

The New York Mets, who finished 20 games under .500 in 1974, bought some insurance against such a finish in 1975 when they approached the financially-plagued San Francisco Giants and purchased slugger Dave Kingman for $160,000. The towering outfielder provided the Mets a team record 36 home runs last year.

The New York Cosmos made Pele the highest paid athlete in the world in the spring of 1975 with an estimated $4.5 million pact covering three years while the New York Sets increased King's tax bracket substantially in luring her away from the Philadelphia Freedoms with hopes of attaining a greater impact for team tennis on the entertainment dollar. She was signed to a contract reportedly worth $130,000 a year for four years.

The New York Giants, who have won just 10 games in the last three years, put their financial powers of persuasion to work in April and bought off their first "franchise" player, Csonka. The bruising fullback became a free agent when the World Football League folded and took advantage of it to sign a multi-year contract in excess of a million dollars with the Giants.

It was also an excellent public relations move by the club, which is trying to erase some of the anti-Giant sentiment caused by its moving from New York to New Jersey this fall.

The New York Rangers, another victim of a quick playoff exit in the 1974-75 season, lured two of the highest scoring young forwards in the World Hockey Association during that off-season, Wayne Dillon and Pat Hickey, in hopes of adding some much needed wheels up front.

Dillon, who scored 95 points with the Toronto Toros in 1974-75, inked his name to a contract calling for $1.4 million over seven years while his WHA teammate Hickey, who scored 35 goals and 69 points that same season, signed for $450,000 over three years. Both were ineffective for a large portion of last season.

The New York Islanders also undertook a long term financing of a player, assuming the final four years of the $1 million-pact Pat Price signed with the WHA Vancouver Blazers. Price, however, failed to make the team last year.

Brazil Is the Favorite In Bicentennial Cup Soccer

NEW YORK (UPI) — If experience alone won matches, then Team America would win the Bicentennial Soccer Cup for none of the three visiting national teams—Brazil, England and Italy—can match the assembled talent of the NASL All-Star selection.

But with experience comes age, and with age comes a slowing down of the reactions, and that is why Brazil probably will be favored to win the nineday tournament, today through May 31, ahead of Italy and England. The competition is the first involving international teams to be staged in the U.S. and was put together to help commemorate the Bicentennial.

Team America has the superstars, men who in their peak years were household names around the world and who enjoyed the same kind of fan worship as that reserved for today's baseball stars like Tom Seaver and Reggie Jackson and football's Joe Namath and O.J. Simpson.

Players like Pele, Bobby Moore, Geoff Hurst, Rodney Marsh, George Best, Giorgio Chinaglia, Bob McNab, Ramon Miffin and John Kowalik already have achieved nearly everything the game has to offer and are in the twilight of brilliant careers. But the prospect of one last fling in the international arena could get the adrenalin flowing again and for this reason Team America will be a factor in the tournament and could even win a game.

The visiting teams, winners of six of the 10 World Cup competitions contested since 1934, are in the process of rebuilding their squads for the 1978 world tournament in Argentina, qualifications for which start this year.

The May 23 game between England and Italy at Yankee Stadium in New York takes on added significance because they are drawn in the same World Cup qualifying group—Finland is the other team—and only one of them travels to Argentina.

The Bicentennial Cup series will be the American public's first real exposure to major league competitive soccer. Previous visiting national and club teams treated their stay in the U.S. as a holiday and their performance on the field suffered as a result.

It will be different this time and the fans in Washington, Los Angeles, New York, New Haven, Seattle and Philadelphia will witness soccer at its best. They will see the excitement and flare of Brazil, winger of the World Cup three times between 1958-70; the cool, tactical approach of the Italians, who lish, the 1966 winners, whose game is based on hardrunning and hard-tackling without any frills.

Brazil still has not found a successor to Pele—the New York Cosmos star will not play against his country—but coach Osvaldo Brandao has developed a fine understanding among his players and the team is unbeaten in its last seven games, scoring 20 goals and giving up only three.

Roberto Rivelino, the 30-year-old star of Fluminense who has made 84 international appearances, directs the Brazilian team from mid-field. Leao, the Palmeiras goalie, defender Marco Antonio of Vasco da Gama and midfielder Marinho of Botafogo are the other survivors from the 1974 World Cup side.

Italy, beaten 4-1 by Brazil in the 1970 World Cup final in Mexico City, has four 1974 Cup veterans on its team led by 33-year-old Giacinto Facchetti, the Internazionale defender who has played 84 international games; goalie Dino Zoff of Juventus, who played 1,000 minutes — 11 games — without giving up a goal to establish an international record; defender Mauro Bellugi of Bologna, and forward Franco Causio of Juventus.

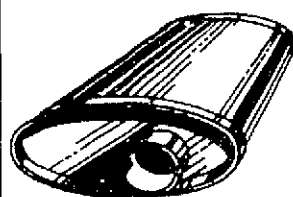

Last season Italy won four, tied three and lost one game. Italy scored six goals in its last two games, 3-2 and 3-1 victories over Greece and Portugal, respectively, which suggests coach Fulvio Bernardini has finally found the answer to converting Italy's usual mid-field superiority into goals.

England's failure to reach the 1974 World Cup final was the sensation of the qualifying rounds and coach Don Revie still is experimenting with his line-up, even though the team arrives with an impressive 7-3-2 record for the 1975-76 season which included a 2-0 win over West Germany, the '74 Cup winner, and a 25-8 goals column.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dunn Are Going After Ali's Championship

By STEVE WILSTEIN

(Editor's note: Steve Wilstein, UPI New York, spent considerable time with British heavy-weight Richard Dunn, his wife and manager when they visited New York in mid-April.)

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dunn are going after Muhammad Ali's heavyweight boxing championship Tuesday in Munich (Monday night in US) and the lady of the house states firmly, "He's in for a big shock, Mr. Ali."

"He's always been a good fighter," Biddles said, "but he's never believed in Richard Dunn to the extent he should have. I taught him self-belief. The poorest amateur knows how to stick out his hand. "The greatness of Muhammad Ali is built simply and solely on his absolute inborn self-assurance. It enables him to do the things he does."

Both Biddles and Dunn share a genuine respect and gratitude to Ali, who is helping them to a $200,000 payday. "He's done more for boxing and boxers than any other boxer who ever lived," Biddles said. "He's kept alive promotions, boxers, hangers on, seconds, trainers, he's really and truly been a messiah to boxing. Nobody loses, everybody goes home a winner with the champ. "There's no doubt when the fella can call himself the greatest for 20 years and then for 15 years go ahead and prove it, it's a remarkable performance. But in my opinion, the moment has got to come that he must deteriorate that little bit. In a hard battle the physical will eventually be noticeable. "I am sure that battle he had with Joe Frazier (last September) did not do him a great deal of good. It may have done the world of good to Richard Dunn. Richard is going in there firmly believing that he has a chance to win and he's going to win. He's not going in there to survive a few rounds. The certainty is that Ali will earn his money this time as he did against Frazier."

Dunn, a parachutist like Chuck Wepner, a laborer like Jimmy Young and a muscle man like Ron Lyle, promises not to be another Jean Pierre Coopman, who barely even showed passive resistance enroute to a five round kayo as Ali's "Bum of the Month," in February. "No way," Dunn says, emphatically. To which Janet adds, "I could have done better than Coopman meself."

New York Pro Teams Keep Shelling Out the Dough

NEW YORK (UPI) — Home is where the heart is unless you are a pro athlete. Then home is where the money is.

And, as usual, the big money is in New York. Which explains why the ownerships of the New York-based professional franchises have been able to land some of the top names in the sporting world, generally without giving up as much as a player in return. The explanation spans one word — money.

New York is like no other city in the world in its deep concern for the entertainment dollar.

The NBA New York Knicks, for instance, who have a ticket range of $6 through $12, not only must buck the hockey Rangers and Islanders, basketball Nets, and football Giants and Jets for that one event a month the average sports fan will attend—but also Broadway, an estimated 300 movie theaters, various concerts and a number of other enticing entertainment packages not found in, say, a city the size of Cleveland.

That is why the Knicks—and all New York clubs—must provide the best possible team to keep their games entertaining and to stay alive in the playoff picture. The cash outflow of the Big Apple has made millionaires in the past 2½ years out of baseball's Jim "Catfish" Hunter, soccer's Pele and football's Larry Csonka, while giving Billie Jean King and a handful of nondescript hockey players—among others—comfortable six-figure incomes.

The Knicks, bounced in the qualifying round of the 1974-75 playoffs and desperately in need of a superstar to match Julius Erving down the road with the Nets, shook the pocketbook last summer and landed a "franchise" player in George McGinnis, co-MVP in the ABA along with Erving.

McGinnis did not come cheaply—signing for an estimated $2.4 million in a six-year deal—but the Knicks figured he would be worth it if he could provide them a more productive season and longer life in the playoffs when, incidentally, ticket prices take a jump.

There was only one problem: the Knicks signed him without bothering to check with the Philadelphia 76ers, who had drafted McGinnis in 1973 when his senior class at Indiana University graduated. The NBA nullified his contract and stripped the Knicks of a No. 1 draft choice for signing the ABA superstar.

Broken-hearted but $2.4 million heavier in the pocketbook, the Knicks tried unsuccessfully to buy Kareem Abdul-Jabbar from the Milwaukee Bucks for $1 million and an assembly of players; then tried to purchase the rights to retired superstar Wilt Chamberlain from the Los Angeles Lakers. Eventually the Knicks had to settle on four-time all star forward Spencer Haywood, who was pried loose from the Seattle SuperSonics for $1.3 million and a top draft pick.

The New York Yankees, another team suffering from malnutrition on the field, made free agent Hunter the richest baseball player alive on New Year's Eve of 1974 when they outbid a handful of financially well-to-do teams to provide the American League's reigning Cy Young Award winner a five-year, $3.75 million contract. Hunter went on to win 23 games for the Yanks last season.

The Yankees also landed baseball's other celebrated free agent, Andy Messersmith, with a four-year package calling for $1.4 million, but that deal fell through when the former Los Angeles Dodger pitcher charged the Yanks tried to alter the initial offer.

Messersmith claimed his agent, Herb Osmond, did not have power of attorney to accept the deal and the Yankees dropped their claim to the curly-haired right-hander, who signed a short time later with the Atlanta Braves.

The New York Mets, who finished 20 games under .500 in 1974, bought some insurance against such a finish in 1975 when they approached the financially-plagued San Francisco Giants and purchased slugger Dave Kingman for $160,000. The towering outfielder provided the Mets a team record 36 home runs last year.

The New York Cosmos made Pele the highest paid athlete in the world in the spring of 1975 with an estimated $4.5 million pact covering three years while the New York Sets increased King's tax bracket substantially in luring her away from the Philadelphia Freedoms with hopes of attaining a greater impact for team tennis on the entertainment dollar. She was signed to a contract reportedly worth $130,000 a year for four years.

The New York Giants, who have won just 10 games in the last three years, put their financial powers of persuasion to work in April and bought off their first "franchise" player, Csonka. The bruising fullback became a free agent when the World Football League folded and took advantage of it to sign a multi-year contract in excess of a million dollars with the Giants.

It was also an excellent public relations move by the club, which is trying to erase some of the anti-Giant sentiment caused by its moving from New York to New Jersey this fall.

The New York Rangers, another victim of a quick playoff exit in the 1974-75 season, lured two of the highest scoring young forwards in the World Hockey Association during that off-season, Wayne Dillon and Pat Hickey, in hopes of adding some much needed wheels up front.

Dillon, who scored 95 points with the Toronto Toros in 1974-75, inked his name to a contract calling for $1.4 million over seven years while his WHA teammate Hickey, who scored 35 goals and 69 points that same season, signed for $450,000 over three years. Both were ineffective for a large portion of last season.

The New York Islanders also undertook a long term financing of a player, assuming the final four years of the $1 million-pact Pat Price signed with the WHA Vancouver Blazers. Price, however, failed to make the team last year.

Brazil Is the Favorite In Bicentennial Cup Soccer

NEW YORK (UPI) — If experience alone won matches, then Team America would win the Bicentennial Soccer Cup for none of the three visiting national teams—Brazil, England and Italy—can match the assembled talent of the NASL All-Star selection.

But with experience comes age, and with age comes a slowing down of the reactions, and that is why Brazil probably will be favored to win the nine-day tournament, today through May 31, ahead of Italy and England. The competition is the first involving international teams to be staged in the U.S. and was put together to help commemorate the Bicentennial.

Team America has the superstars, men who in their peak years were household names around the world and who enjoyed the same kind of fan worship as that reserved for today's baseball stars like Tom Seaver and Reggie Jackson and football's Joe Namath and O.J. Simpson.

Players like Pele, Bobby Moore, Geoff Hurst, Rodney Marsh, George Best, Giorgio Chinaglia, Bob McNab, Ramon Miffelin and John Kowalik already have achieved nearly everything the game has to offer and are in the twilight of brilliant careers. But the prospect of one last fling in the international arena could get the adrenalin flowing again and for this reason Team America will be a factor in the tournament and could even win a game.

The ability is there. It's a question of a team of superstars meshing together as a cohesive unit after a handful of scrimmages under coach Ken Furphy of the New York Cosmos.

The visiting teams, winners

of six of the 10 World Cup competitions contested since 1934, are in the process of rebuilding their squads for the 1978 world tournament in Argentina, qualifications for which start this year.

The May 28 game between England and Italy at Yankee Stadium in New York takes on added significance because they are drawn in the same World Cup qualifying group—Finland is the other team—and only one of them travels to Argentina.

The Bicentennial Cup series will be the American public's first real exposure to major league competitive soccer. Previous visiting national and club teams treated their stay in the U.S. as a holiday and their performance on the field suffered as a result.

It will be different this time and the fans in Washington, Los Angeles, New York, New Haven, Seattle and Philadelphia will witness soccer at its best. They will see the excitement and flare of Brazil, winner of the World Cup three times between 1958-70; the cool, tactical approach of the Italians, who lish, the 1966 winners, whose game is based on hardrunning and hard-tackling without any frills.

Brazil still has not found a successor to Pele—the New York Cosmos star will not play against his country—but coach Osvaldo Brandao has developed a fine understanding among his players and the team is unbeaten in its last seven games, scoring 20 goals and giving up only three.

Roberto Rivelino, the 30-year-old star of Fluminense who has made 84 international appearances, directs the Brazilian team from mid-field. Leao, the Palmeiras goalie, defender Marco Antonio of Vasco da Gama and midfielder Marinho of Botafogo are the other survivors from the 1974 World Cup side.

Italy, beaten 4-1 by Brazil in the 1970 World Cup final in Mexico City, has four 1974 Cup veterans on its team led by 33-year-old Giacinto Facchetti, the Internazionale defender who has played 84 international games; goalie Dino Zoff of Juventus, who played 1,000 minutes — 11 games — without giving up a goal to establish an international record; defender Mauro Bellugi of Bologna, and forward Franco Causio of Juventus.

Last season Italy won four, tied three and lost one game. Italy scored six goals in its last two games, 3-2 and 3-1 victories over Greece and Portugal, respectively, which suggests coach Fulvio Bernardini has finally found the answer to converting Italy's usual mid-field superiority into goals.

England's failure to reach the sensation of the qualifying rounds and coach Don Revie still is experimenting with his line-up, even though the team arrives with an impressive 7-3-2 record for the 1975-76 season which included a 2-0 win over West Germany, the '74 Cup winner, and a 2-5 goals column.

Beliveau Rates Habs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although it's been a week now since the hockey season ended, Jean Beliveau has been kept busy in the Montreal front office. Mostly, it seems, his time is devoted to remembering the past and trying to focus it on the present.

"So many people have been asking me to compare this edition of the Canadiens to the teams I played for," said Beliveau on the phone from Montreal. "I feel this is difficult to do because you have to start with the fact that hockey is a little different today than hockey was in the 50's.

"Hockey as a whole is a lot faster today and it is played by men who are much bigger. So many of them are six feet and 190 pounds. But I feel the Canadiens' '75-76 edition is certainly one of the best teams the Canadiens ever had."

Beliveau, a gentle giant of the ice during his distinguished career, played on 10 Stanley Cup championship teams with Montreal, including a stretch from 1956-60 when the Canadiens won a record five in a row. He still is associated with the Canadiens as vice president and director of corporate relations.

When the Canadiens completed a four-game sweep over the defending champion Philadelphia Flyers last Sunday, the Cup returned to Montreal for the first time in three years. Yet, even with the solitary championship, the Canadiens were so awesome during the regular campaign and the playoffs that it becomes almost impossible to avoid comparison with previous dynasties.

From 1956-60, when they won their five consecutive championships, the Canadiens had virtually an all-time all-star team with such performers as Beliveau, Maurice and Henri Richard, Bernie Geoffrion, Jacques Plante, Doug Harvey, Tom Johnson, Dickie Moore, Bert Olmstead and Butch Bouchard, whose son was on this year's team.

But the 1975-76 group set numerous records, losing only 11 of 80 regular season games and then storming through the playoffs with 12 victories in 13 outings.

As a member of the Montreal organization since 1950, Beliveau thus finds himself in the position of being the perfect source for anyone seeking to make comparisons.

"The big difference now is the mobility of the defensemen," said Beliveau, who is 44. "Most of them are much better skaters than the ones in the 50's. When I started, there were three very good offensively minded defensemen: Doug Harvey on our team, Tim Horton in Toronto and Red Kelly in Detroit. The others were mostly big guys and since they were not as good skaters as the three I mentioned, they had to stay back in their own end.

"Today, most of the defensemen are good skaters and we are fortunate to have on our team three great offensively minded defensemen in Guy Lapointe, Serge Savard and Larry Robinson. And don't forget we also had fellows named (Pierre) Bouchard and (Bill) Nyrop. Maybe they're not as mobile but they're very solid, strong defensemen."

Is the present Canadian defensive unit the best you've ever seen?

"I think so," Beliveau answered. "Because of the speed and size and their mobility. But maybe we had better scorers from '55-60 than the ones on the team right now and in net we had Jacques Plante, who I still think is the best goalie I've ever seen in hockey. Ken Dryden is coming up close behind him, but give him a little more time."

Obviously, time also is a factor in determining just how high a level the current group of Canadiens will rate in the history of hockey's most successful franchise, one that has won the Stanley Cup 19 times. But on the basis of one year, the 1975-76 edition has to compare with the best.

A. D. Ready For CFL

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — As the rushing king of the defunct World Football League, Anthony Davis suspects he'll be a man under a microscope when he reports to the Toronto Argonauts.

But, he adds quickly, he has been under pressure since that Saturday afternoon in December, 1972, when, as an unheralded sophomore, he broke the heart of Ara Parseghian and the back of Notre Dame with six touchdowns.

"I can't worry about what people expect," the former All-America from University of Southern California said. "Sure, there'll be outside pressure because of my contract and my publicity."

"But the people there will have to realize one man can't win football games. A football team wins football games. Look at O.J. Simpson. Look at what he's done and he's never been to the Super Bowl."

"I want the people to look at me as a team player. I have to let them know I'm a dedicated hard worker who only is concerned how the team does. If I can accomplish that this year, then I'll be happy."

As the premier name with the Southern California Sun last year, the 5-foot-9, 185-pound running back was the WFL's No. 1 rusher with 1,200 yards in 12 weeks when the WFL collapsed in a pool of red ink.

He was drafted by the New York Jets but chose instead to play with the Anaheim-based Sun, signing a multi-year, million dollar contract. When the WFL folded, he signed another multi-year, million dollar contract with Toronto of the Canadian Football League. The Jets traded his National Football League rights to Tampa Bay and his old USC coach, John McKay.

He is represented by Michael Trope, who also is the agent of 1972 Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers, now with the Canadian League's Montreal Alouettes.

"I'll play up there two years and then see where things stand," Davis said. "I might be in Canada for the rest of my career and I might wind up in the NFL."

"It's a shame but not so much for me. I'm young, practically a rookie and making a lot of money. It's a shame for the NFL."

"But right now I'm more concerned with helping Toronto to turn it around. Toronto won only five games last season and they haven't been to the Grey Cup since 1971 when they had Joe Theismann. They haven't had a Grey Cup championship in 24 years."

"That's the way I feel about football. If my team does well, I'll do well. If my team wins, I'm sure I'll be over 1,000 yards."

"I know a lot of people thought the WFL was a bush league but I'm glad I played in it. Football is football. If they hit harder in the NFL, I'd like to see it."

Davis, USC's all-time career rushing leader with 3,724 yards and the Trojans' No. 1 scorer with 52 touchdowns, has started a movie career. He plays a SWAT policeman in Universal's soon-to-be-released "Two-Minute Warning."

"I really enjoyed it," he remarked. "It's a lot of hard work, a lot harder than people realize. But nothing in life that's worthwhile is easy. I hope I get a chance to do more acting."

"I've always been interested in the motion picture business. I worked on 'Two-Minute Warning' for five weeks and I found that interest grow and grow."

Paltz Driving Course

NEW PALTZ—The New Paltz Central School District will hold another state-mandated three-hour Safe Driving Practices Course Tuesday, May 25, from 7 to 10 p.m. in Room 2 at the New Paltz Middle School, Main Street and Manheim Boulevard.

This is designed to meet the requirements of Section 501, New York State Vehicle and Traffic Law, under which no license shall be issued to a new driver unless proof of completion of this three-hour course is submitted.

A $5 registration fee will be charged for the course, and a learner's permit is required. Participants must register prior to the meeting date and may do so by contacting the New Paltz Central School District Office.

Report on Discrimination Could Hurt Oil Relations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A move to report on racial, religious and sex discrimination against Americans working in or excluded from foreign countries may complicate U.S. relations with oil-rich nations of the Mideast.

The idea is to stop American firms from practicing discrimination to get contracts. One diplomat calls it a "tragic collision of two constituencies," who understand each other's problems but cannot modify their own actions.

He is describing the diplomatic and economic dilemma created by "anti-discrimination" clauses in the security assistance legislation moving toward the floor of both houses.

The Senate expects to vote Tuesday on its new version of the bill vetoed by President Ford. The House version has not been scheduled for floor action.

The Senate version, which has the more restrictive language, obliges the President to report "any discrimination against United States citizens" in carrying out military training and construction contracts.

In practical terms, this only applies to the conservative religious states of the Arab world which happen to be oil rich Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. Fred Dutton, a Washington attorney who has represented the Saudis in some contract explorations, estimates close to $50 billion in construction contracts may be involved in the next 10 years.

One diplomat describes the Saudi governmental structure and the role of Islam in the affairs of state this way:

"In the ruling council, you have the American educated technocrats, like Sheikh (Ahmed Zaki) Yamani, who prefer to do business with the United States, and are eager for U.S. technology. But you also have the elders, like King Khalid, who have to respect the Koran, and the rules of a religious state."

Until now the result has been huge orders for American firms, but with discriminatory clauses either understood by both parties, or actually written into the contracts.

Wilbur G. Landrey, foreign editor of the St. Petersburg Times, who visited China in 1972, said he got word from two Japanese steel men of an explosion in the Taching fields that seriously affected China's oil production.

According to an unclassified Central Intelligence Agency survey issued in March, Chinese oil production was running at about 1.6 million barrels a day in January.

For comparison, U.S. production for the same month was about 8.2 million barrels a day and Soviet production was estimated at 9.8 million barrels a day.

Peking has not mentioned any oil dislocation and recently claimed that crude production was up 12.7 per cent for the first quarter of this year as compared to 1975—but gave no figures.

The CIA officially declined to comment on the explosion reports. But from other intelligence, government and business circles, it was learned something appears to have happened in the oil fields of northern China.

Sources in Washington claim an explosion occurred in the Taching fields sometime in March or April. One source specified April 5, the day that riots took place in Peking's Tiananmen Square during agitation in connection with the purge of Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao ping.

One source said a Soviet national in Hong Kong recently "leaked" a story that U.S. spy satellites which cross China, photographed the explosion. Another source said fires are still burning.

"All I'm sure of is that there was an explosion," one contact said. "I don't know whether it was sabotage or an accident. Information is difficult enough to come by in Peking let alone from the north."

In 1975 the Japanese arranged a trade of Chinese oil for Japanese steel but the arrangement stalled during negotiations in April.

The Japanese proposed to sell 1.5 to 2 million additional tons of steel by swapping it for Chinese coal and crude oil. This would have raised Japan's 1976 steel shipments to China to between 5.5 and 6 million tons.

Last autumn Yoshihiro Inayama, president of Japan Steel Corp., visited Peking and won agreement in principle for this arrangement from high Chinese officials. Inayama announced this to the press on his return to Japan Nov. 1.

Inayama originally proposed that China furnish coal rather than oil, but the Chinese were unwilling to this.

Success, Setbacks On the Labor Front

(By UPI)

A dispute over penalties for strikers accused of violence delayed a settlement of a 2½-month strike of Anheuser-Busch beer bottlers Saturday. New York city officials hoped for a weekend settlement to avert a municipal hospital strike.

Elsewhere on the nation's labor front — Principal negotiations in the walkout of United Rubber Workers' members against four major tire makers were recessed until June 1. The talks with the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. have been set up as the kingpin in an industry settlement.

Members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians planned to return to their jobs at NBC Monday after ratifying a "master agreement" in Friday night voting. Some provisions remained to be voted upon, and agreed terms provide for tops of $500 weekly for newsmen and technicians by April 1, 1979, new contract expiration date. They now average $360 and $375 respectively. Their strike began April 1.

One of five striking construction unions at Memphis Tenn., voted to accept a new contract and return to work Monday, but members of the carpenters union were holding out for more money, probably blocking an actual resumption of work on construction projects.

Hard rock miners represented by the United Steel Workers slated talks with Park City Ventures officials at Park City, Utah, in a wage dispute which led to a walkout April 30.

At Decatur, Ga., 10 men, two of them identified as members of the Laborers International Union, were arrested and charged with plotting to ambush a busload of DeKalb County workers going to their jobs despite a two-week old strike of other workers. The LIU has led the strike, and it has produced previous violence.

Anheuser-Busch strikers Friday voted down a company proposal, omitting amnesty for strikers accused of violence at the St. Louis plant. The company had proposed to dismiss two men and suspend six others.

After strikers at six plants voted it down the company offered a new proposal. The first was rejected by votes of bottlers locals at Merrimack, N.H., Jacksonville, Fla., Williamsburg, Va., Houston, Columbus, and Los Angeles with one at Tampa voting to accept. The St. Louis local rejected a similar proposal last week.

New York City's threatened municipal hospital strike was another byproduct of the strained financial bind of the city. Officials proposed to lay off 1,450 workers as the first step of a program designed to cut the payroll by 3,200 workers and to carry out other economies designed to save $159 million.

Report on Descrimination Could Hurt Oil Relations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A move to report on racial, religious and sex discrimination against Americans working in or excluded from foreign countries may complicate U.S. relations with oil-rich nations of the Mideast.

The idea is to stop American firms from practicing discrimination to get contracts. One diplomat calls it a "tragic collision of two constituencies," who understand each other's problems but cannot modify their own actions.

He is describing the diplomatic and economic dilemma created by "anti-discrimination" clauses in the security assistance legislation moving toward the floor of both houses.

The Senate expects to vote Tuesday on its new version of the bill vetoed by President Ford. The House version has not been scheduled for floor action.

The Senate version, which has the more restrictive language, obliges the President to report "any discrimination against United States citizens" in carrying out military training and construction contracts.

In practical terms, this only applies to the conservative religious states of the Arab world which happen to be oil rich: Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. Fred Dutton, a Washington attorney who has represented the Saudis in some contract explorations, estimates close to $50 billion in construction contracts may be involved in the next 10 years.

One diplomat describes the Saudi governmental structure and the role of Islam in the affairs of state this way:

"In the ruling council, you have the American-educated technocrats, like Sheikh (Ahmed Zaki) Yamani, who prefer to do business with the United States, and are eager for U.S. technology. But you also have the elders, like King Khalid, who have to respect the Koran, and the rules of a religious state."

Until now the result has been huge orders for American firms, but with discriminatory clauses either understood by both parties, or actually written into the contracts.

the 1.5 to 2 million tons of additional Japanese steel products was not disclosed. That was the subject for negotiations at the working level. These were in progress in early 1976 but were canceled abruptly by the Chinese side on April 4, the same day as the riots in Tienanmen square.

Western visitors have been taken to the Taching oil fields in the past on carefully guided tours of parts of the installation, which features camouflaged storage tanks, but there have been no reports of any recent travelers in the area.

The visitors reported that the fields were vast, running north to an area only some 300 miles from the Soviet border.

Betty at Bennington; Dedicates Arts Center

BENNINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — First Lady Betty Ford Saturday returned to Bennington College — where as dance student Elizabeth Bloomer of Grand Rapids, Mich., she studied 40 years ago — to dedicate a $6.2 million performing arts center.

"I always intended to come back, but never imagined I'd be here under these circumstances," Mrs. Ford told students from within her phalanx of Secret Service agents.

Mrs. Ford said it was the first visit to the college since she studied under Martha Graham and Bennington Dance program founder Martha Hill during the summers of 1936 and 1937.

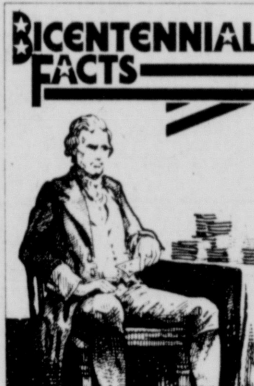

Mrs. Ford said Bennington was to her what Paris had been to author Ernest Hemingway: "A movable feast. I only wish I was starting out all over again."

Following the ceremonies, which did not touch on presidential politics, Mrs. Ford lunched with several students and attended a dance workshop of modern jazz. She did not participate.

Wearing a beige dress, gold earrings and matching gold dangle bracelets, the First Lady recalled spending entire days at the college barefoot and dressed in a dance leotard.

Miss Graham "ordered" students to pick up grass between their toes until their muscles were so sore or tired "they had to climb the stairs on their bottom," she recalled.

Benjamin Harrison, who signed the Declaration of Independence for Virginia, was an immensely wealthy planter active in all forms of politics that supported the Revolution. He was especially interested in the Committee of Secret Correspondence, which after the Revolution became the Department of State. Harrison was both the father and great-grandfather of U.S. presidents. The World Almanac reveals.

Success, Setbacks On the Labor Front

(By UPI)

A dispute over penalties for strikers accused of violence delayed a settlement of a 2½-month strike of Anheuser-Busch beer bottlers Saturday. New York city officials hoped for a weekend settlement to avert a municipal hospital strike.

Elsewhere on the nation's labor front:

—Principal negotiations in the walkout of United Rubber Workers' members against four major tire-makers were recessed until June 1. The talks with the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. have been set up as the kingpin in an industry settlement.

—Members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians planned to return to their jobs at NBC Monday after ratifying a "master agreement" in Friday night voting. Some provisions remained to be voted upon, and agreed terms provide for tops of $500 weekly for newswriters and technicians by April 1, 1979, new contract expiration date. They now average $360 and $375 respectively. Their strike began April 1.

—One of five striking construction unions at Memphis, Tenn., voted to accept a new contract and return to work Monday, but members of the carpenters union were holding out for more money, probably blocking an actual resumption of work on construction projects.

—Hard rock miners represented by the United Steel Workers slated talks with Park City Ventures officials at Park City, Utah, in a wage dispute which led to a walkout April 30.

—At Decatur, Ga., 10 men, two of them identified as members of the Laborers International Union, were arrested and charged with plotting to ambush a busload of DeKalb County workers going to their jobs despite a two-week-old strike of other workers. The LIU has led the strike, and it has produced previous violence.

Anheuser-Busch strikers Friday voted down a company proposal, omitting amnesty for strikers accused of violence at the St. Louis plant. The company had proposed to dismiss two men and suspend six others.

After strikers at six plants voted it down, the company offered a new proposal. The first was rejected by votes of bottlers locals at Merrimack, N.H., Jacksonville, Fla., Williamsburg, Va., Houston, Columbus, and Los Angeles, with one at Tampa voting to accept. The St. Louis local rejected a similar proposal last week.

New York City's threatened municipal hospital strike was another byproduct of the strained financial bind of the city. Officials proposed to lay off 1,450 workers as the first step of a program designed to cut the payroll by 3,200 workers and to carry out other economies designed to save $159 million.

"WHERE THE BEST MEET THEIR EQUAL"

Lawson Points to Onteora Accomplishments

BOICEVILLE — "I believe the present Board of Education has acted honorably and in a responsible manner this past year," said Onteora School Board President Donald A. Lawson. "I am confident the citizens of Onteora believe this and will show their support this Wednesday."

"We've worked hard to develop a budget that will meet the needs of the students and at the same time we have conserved our resources," he said.

Recently there has been a barrage of letters appearing in the press attacking the Onteora School Board. Lawson believes these letters "are of a political nature, directed to prevent the re-election of a current board member by attempting to discredit the entire school board."

"Despite our difficulties this year, the board solved short range problems and began to develop long range plans."

Lawson points to the board's many accomplishments to substantiate this statement. He lists two new federal grants, establishing district priorities, improving the operation and maintenance of district facilities, developing optional learning programs and working out a program for handicapped children, as achievements.

"I want to emphasize that this budget is a direct result of community input," he said.

The 1976-77 budget was revised after four public hearings. The school board added and deleted items to arrive at a figure totaling $7,903,860. The new budget will be submitted to the voters on Wednesday.

"I urge you, go to the polls

this Wednesday and support the budget, support the Onteora Board of Education," Lawson concluded.

Rosenstock Opposes Super Agency Idea

ELLENVILLE — Opposition to the creation of any super agency that would control land use and planning in the Catskills came last week from Republican candidate for the Assembly Maurice Rosenstock.

The Ellenville manufacturer said that "any form of planning must be controlled by local people working through their local governments and not be placed in the hands of some bureaucratic super regional agency dominated by Albany appointees."

He noted that Democratic

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-99th Dist., had introduced a super agency bill last year but it was defeated after long debate in which many upstate Democratic legislators, who respected the home rule principle, voted against the proposal.

Rosenstock said that the only difference between Hinchey's more recent bill is that it would provide for the regional agency to be staffed on the top by local people. But, Rosenstock said, "these people would be responsible to the governor and, in the long run, the interests of the

He favors planning "which balances the interests of homeowners, sportsmen, farmers and businessmen and protects the environment of the Catskills."

Rosenstock said that the recently appointed head of the state's Department of Environmental Conservation, Peter Berle, had advocated a regional agency for the Catskills.

But, Rosenstock said, "the specifics of how this agency would be run had not been spelled out in bill form."

Gilpatric: Ax Poised Over City

KINGSTON — Invoking the once futuristic specter of George Orwell's "1984," Ulster County Legislator James F. Gilpatric, D-City, says "Big Brother has spoken" eight years earlier than expected.

Adds Gilpatric, "And his ax is poised over the heads of the people of Kingston for the next six months." The city legislator explains that "Big Brother is sometimes known as the Republican members of the County Legislature."

His remarks could only pertain to the contemplated increase in the county sales tax, which he has already labeled as "the rape of Kingston." Enlarging on his discontent, he also took umbrage at recent statements made by Legislator Melvin Mones, R-City.

Said Gilpatric, "I am happy that Mones joined the Democratic legislators in recognizing this dastardly deed of his colleagues. It's too bad he couldn't persuade more of them to join the ranks of justice for all, not just some, of the citizens and taxpayers of Ulster County."

For Gilpatric, the issue is one of additional taxes for one particular segment of the county's population—the City of Kingston. "Whether the sales tax increase goes through or not," he says, "the Republicans passed a resolution that gives them the right to tax the people of Kingston beyond the norm of the rest of the county."

He pointed out that GOP members have the majority numbers to exercise that right and execute the sales tax increase by the end of the year.

Gilpatric also took issue with Mones for placing the blame on local Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey for the need for an increase. Hinchey, says Gilpatric, did not "entertain himself by initiating a political and semantic jousting contest" as Mones suggested in an attack.

It was to Republican Senator Richard Schermerhorn, notes Gilpatric, that messages for home rule relief legislation were sent earlier this year. Schermerhorn contacted Republican Assemblyman Emeel Betros and neither condescended to notify Hinchey.

"Who's playing games with the taxpayers?" asks Gilpatric. Providing his own answer, he insists it's not Hinchey, "who represents most of the county, and would have a much better chance of getting the bill through the Assembly than Betros."

Gilpatric lauded Hinchey and other Democrats for asking for proof of fiscal restraint before seeking sales tax authorization and pointed out that when those restraints were enacted, quick action was taken.

Mones' criticism of Hinchey's contact with his constituents "all over the county" could provide instructive help, suggests Gilpatric. "If Republican legislators followed his lead," he said, "the present fiscal crises could have been avoided."

Gilpatric says he knows it's "politically expedient" for his Republican colleagues to attack the present Democratic rule in Albany. That doesn't keep him from "being fed up" with such attacks, he says, since Governor Carey and State Legislature Democrats "have the monumental job of trying to rectify the wonderful world of New York State created by 16 years of Republican supremacy and leadership."

Betros Hat in Again

POUGHKEEPSIE — Incumbent Republican-Conservative Assemblyman Emeel Betros, R-99th Dist., has announced his candidacy for reelection in November.

In a letter to party committee members of the 99th District, Betros said he has enjoyed working for the people of the district and finds it a continuing challenge to try and solve many of the problems, "which face us all."

"I hope I can continue to serve my constituency and be part of an effort to achieve responsible solutions," he said.

Lawson Points to Onteora Accomplishments

BOICEVILLE — "I believe the present Board of Education has acted honorably and in a responsible manner this past year," said Onteora School Board President Donald A. Lawson. "I am confident the citizens of Onteora believe this and will show their support this Wednesday."

"We've worked hard to develop a budget that will meet the needs of the students and at the same time we have conserved our resources," he said.

Recently there has been a barrage of letters appearing in the press attacking the Onteora School Board. Lawson believes these letters "are of a political nature, directed to prevent the re-election of a current board member by attempting to discredit the entire school board."

Lawson points to the board's many accomplishments to substantiate this statement. He lists two new federal grants, establishing district priorities, improving the operation and maintenance of district facilities, developing optional learning programs and working out a program for handicapped children as achievements.

"I want to emphasize that this budget is a direct result of community input," he said.

The 1976-77 budget was revised after four public hearings. The school board added and deleted items to arrive at a figure totaling $7,903,860. The new budget will be submitted to the voters on Wednesday.

"I urge you, go to the polls

this Wednesday and support the budget, support the Onteora Board of Education," Lawson concluded.

Rosenstock Opposes Super Agency Idea

ELLENVILLE — Opposition to the creation of any super agency that would control land use and planning in the Catskills came last week from Republican candidate for the Assembly Maurice Rosenstock.

The Ellenville manufacturer said that "any form of planning must be controlled by local people working through their local governments and not be placed in the hands of some bureaucratic super regional agency dominated by Albany appointees."

He noted that Democratic

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-99th Dist., had introduced a super agency bill last year but it was defeated after long debate in which many upstate Democratic legislators, who respected the home rule principle, voted against the proposal.

Rosenstock said that the only difference between Hinchey's more recent bill is that it would provide for the regional agency to be staffed on the top by local people. But, Rosenstock said, "these people would be responsible to the governor and, in the long run, the interests of the

He favors planning "which balances the interests of homeowners, sportsmen, farmers and businessmen and protects the environment of the Catskills."

Rosenstock said that the recently appointed head of the state's Department of Environmental Conservation, Peter Berle, had advocated a regional agency for the Catskills.

But, Rosenstock said, "the specifics of how this agency would be run had not been spelled out in bill form."

Gilpatric: Ax Poised Over City

KINGSTON — Invoking the once futuristic specter of George Orwell's "1984," Ulster County Legislator James F. Gilpatric, D-City, says "Big Brother has spoken" eight years earlier than expected.

Adds Gilpatric, "And his ax is poised over the heads of the people of Kingston for the next six months." The city legislator explains that "Big Brother is sometimes known as the Republican members of the County Legislature."

rest of the county."

He pointed out that GOP members have the majority numbers to exercise that right and execute the sales tax increase by the end of the year.

Gilpatric also took issue with Mones for placing the blame on local Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey for the need for an increase. Hinchey, says Gilpatric, did not "entertain himself by initiating a political and semantic jousting contest" as Mones suggested in an attack.

It was to Republican Senator Richard Scherhorn, notes Gilpatric, that messages for home rule relief legislation were sent earlier this year. Scherhorn contacted Republican Assemblyman Emeel Betros and neither condescended to notify Hinchey.

"Who's playing games with the taxpayers?" asks Gilpatric. Providing his own answer, he insists it's not Hinchey, "who represents most of the county, and would have a much better chance of getting the bill through the Assembly than Betros."

The Ellenville manufacturer said that "any form of planning must be controlled by local people working through their local governments and not be placed in the hands of some bureaucratic super regional agency dominated by Albany appointees."

He noted that Democratic Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-99th Dist., had introduced a super agency bill last year but it was defeated after long debate in which many upstate Democratic legislators, who respected the home rule principle, voted against the proposal.

Rosenstock said that the recently appointed head of the state's Department of Environmental Conservation, Peter Berle, had advocated a regional agency for the Catskills.

But, Rosenstock said, "the specifics of how this agency would be run had not been spelled out in bill form."

Gilpatric also took issue with Mones for placing the blame on local Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey for the need for an increase. Hinchey, says Gilpatric, did not "entertain himself by initiating a political and semantic jousting contest" as Mones suggested in an attack.

It was to Republican Senator Richard Scherhorn, notes Gilpatric, that messages for home rule relief legislation were sent earlier this year. Scherhorn contacted Republican Assemblyman Emeel Betros and neither condescended to notify Hinchey.

"Who's playing games with the taxpayers?" asks Gilpatric. Providing his own answer, he insists it's not Hinchey, "who represents most of the county, and would have a much better chance of getting the bill through the Assembly than Betros."

Gilpatric lauded Hinchey and other Democrats for asking for proof of fiscal restraint before seeking sales tax authorization and pointed out that when those restraints were enacted, quick action was taken.

Mones' criticism of Hinchey's contact with his constituents "all over the county" could provide instructive help, suggests Gilpatric. "If Republican legislators followed his lead," he said, "the present fiscal crises could have been avoided."

Gilpatric says he knows it's "politically expedient" for his Republican colleagues to attack the present Democratic rule in Albany. That doesn't keep him from "being fed up" with such attacks, he says, since Governor Carey and State Legislature Democrats "have the monumental job of trying to rectify the wonderful world of New York State created by 16 years of Republican supremacy and leadership."

Betros Hat in Again

POUGHKEEPSIE — Incumbent Republican Conservative Assemblyman Emeel Betros, R-99th Dist., has announced his candidacy for reelection in November.

In a letter to party committee members of the 99th District, Betros said he has enjoyed working for the people of the district and finds it a continuing challenge to try and solve many of the problems, "which face us all."

"I hope I can continue to serve my constituency and be part of an effort to achieve responsible solutions," he said.

The Tall Ships

Look there...on the horizon...that speck of white. Can you make it out?" We watched as the speck grew larger, watched it rise over the corner of the sea and finally grow distinct.

"She's three masted, that's for sure. And her sails are bellied proudly before her. Wait, there's and yet some more. It's a blooming armada!"

The scene is not out of Newport's proud past when graceful vessels sailed with tide and wind to the colonial port with regularity. It is the imagined scene on a Rhode Island shore come this June 23rd when the "Tall Ships" complete the last leg of their race to Bicentennial America.

From Great Britain will come the Sir Winston Churchill, a top sail schooner of 150' 4". Graceful trisails distinguish her from the square riggers.

All 376 feet of Russia's 4-masted barque, the Krusenstern, displacing 5,000 tons, will sail with the fleet.

Norway's Christian Radich, a 238 ft. full rigged ship will carry today's Vikings.

Chile is sending the Esmeralda, a 4 masted barkentine of 371 feet.

The Dar Pomorza from Poland, a full rigged ship 331 feet in length will point her high bowsprit NorthWest as she leaves Bermuda.

Portugal's bark, the Sagres, 293' 8" with colorful crosses on her oblong sails, will lower her anchor in our nautical playground.

And Italians, of course, will make the voyage again in the Amerigo Vespucci, a full rigged ship, 331 feet in length.

The good ship Eagle will represent the United States, a bark of 295 feet.

The West German sloop, The Walross III left Cuxhaven in mid-April to join the regatta. She is typical of the classic ships that will accompany the Tall Ships.

This exciting event is the outgrowth of the semi-annual International Race organized by the Sail Training Association. Sail Training Ships of the world congregate in friendly competition.

In 1972, the Governor of Rhode Island invited the STA to be guests of Rhode Island and finish their 1976 race in Newport harbor. News of the event prompted governments to excitedly bid for inclusion in the Tall Ships ports o' call. The proud fleet will sail into New York harbor on July 2 and 3 for July 4th's Operation Sail.

More than 40 ships from 25 nations will hoist canvass to participate in our birthday party. Upwards of 200 sailing vessels in all when you include the ketches, sloops, yawls, and cutters accompanying the Tall Ships.

The crews are comprised of cadets and trainees between the ages of 16 and 26, who, by race requirements, make up at least half the ships' working compliment. 4,000 youngsters are expected, many of them young women.

In Newport, the scheduled arrival of the larger vessels is June 23 and 24. They will be under sail upon arrival, but not during their stay in Newport.

The largest ships will be anchored in the harbor until July 1st, when they weigh anchor for New York. They will not be under sail when they leave, due to the prevailing Southwesterly wind.

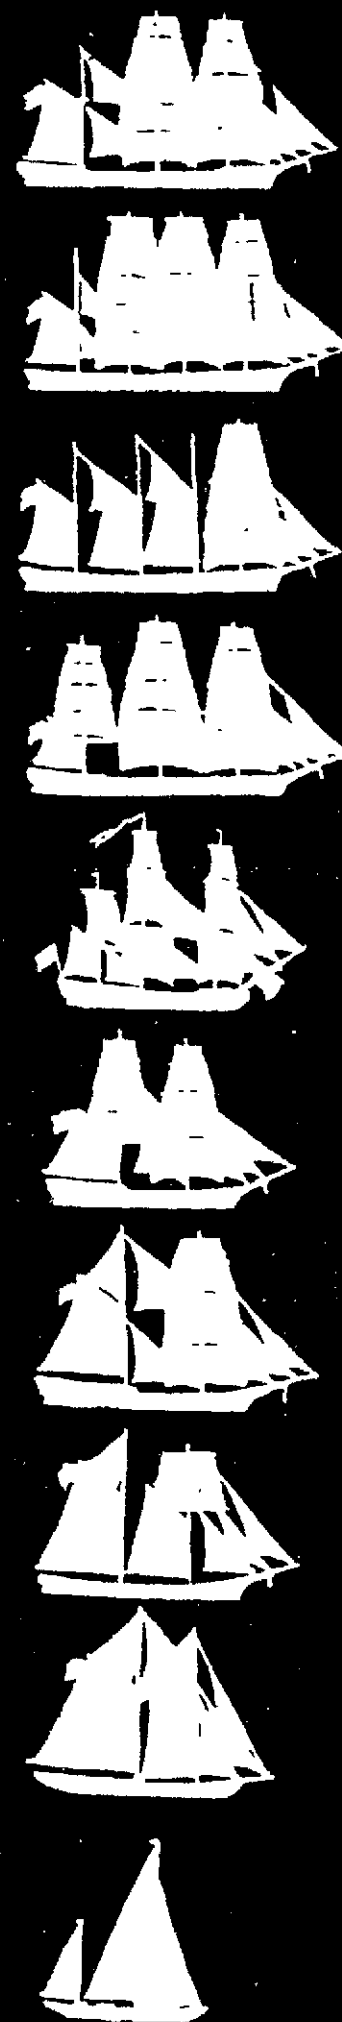

The Inshore Regatta will include rowing races, swimming races and soccer matches.

The smaller vessels will be alongside various piers around Newport's inner harbor. Medium-sized vessels will be moored between Goat Island and Newport.

It promises to be an unique opportunity for those who love the classic ships to view them all at once and experience the thrill of seeing them under sail.

We're going to try to be there, it's only a five-hour drive from here ... when a mighty armada sails on the United States.

What a way to celebrate a birthday!

A Talk with Dr. John MacKinnon

He has been a Chiropractor for 60 years . . . way back when his skill was looked on with suspicion — before Chiropractors proved their worth.

When you hear that a Kingston chiropractor was called to treat the wife of the president of the famed Leahy Clinic in Boston, Mass., the message rings loud and clear—Dr.

John L. MacKinnon, who recently celebrated 60 years in his profession, doesn't need any walking advertisements.

But he has them by the thousands with one standing out most vividly in the minds of many. Dr. MacKinnon likes to tell about it because he remembers well his early years here when people knew little of chiropractic and establishing a practice was "rough."

It seems a well-known politician, seen frequently in public, was so bent that his chin was level with his knees. In desperation, he sought out Dr. MacKinnon who made him no promises but went to work on the problem. Thirty-three visits later, the man was walking "straight as you and I."

Eighty-three and still practicing, the Canadian-born doctor is straight in carriage, captivating in conversation and contributes the same enthusiasm to his profession as he did when he began in 1916.

It was his mother's chronic headaches that put the then young farm boy on the road to becoming a chiropractor. Driven to despair by his wife's suffering, his father urged his mother to try a "new doctor" in town but she reneged because, "you've spent enough money for doctors for me to buy a farm... I'll suffer it out," she decided.

But, she didn't, the doctor discovered her pain was caused by pressure on the nerves and a cure was effected.

When young MacKinnon's father later urged him to become a physician, it was his mother who pleaded for him to go into chiropractic saying, "There are doctors everywhere, there are drug stores on every corner... try to help someone like me."

MacKinnon's education has been continuing. A graduate of Palmer School of Chiropractic, Davenport, Iowa, he has since studied and taken courses throughout the country, engaging in what he terms important reflex work under the tutelage of Dr. Richard VanRumpt in Santa Barbara, Calif. Such a course of action works 100 times better than x-ray, Dr. MacKinnon maintains, pointing out that a look at a person's heels can reveal a pain in the neck. "When the reflex says the pain is there, it is there," he declared.

When 129 of the doctor's friends turned out recently to honor him at a reception and dinner at The Colonnade, it was Donald Buckley, member of the famous Buckley family in Connecticut, who lovingly roasted him for his magic touch. "This guy's a healer. I get upset every time he even shakes hands with my enemies," he joshed.

Chiropractic concerns itself with manipulations and adjustments. It is a drugless treatment which Dr. MacKinnon has found to be of great value in treatment of a variety of afflictions from back aches, to pigeon toes to some forms of deafness. Allergies play a large part in Dr. MacKinnon's diagnoses because he believes they can be at the root of a great many of today's physical problems. He routinely looks for allergies having found that such things as milk, wheat chlorinated water and even a person's glass eye can be troublemakers.

Dismissing any thoughts of retirement, Dr. MacKinnon boasts that he "feels so good in the office" but admits to taking to his chair at home evenings after a day at the office. "It's the mental work that wears me out," he said, explaining that when he has his mind on the reflexes, "I don't even hear the phone ring... I'm that interested in my work."

Perhaps one of the doctor's toughest assignments was having to take chiropractic board examinations about 12 years ago, no mean accomplishment at the age of 70 when licensing of chiropractors became law for the first time here.

Passing the exams with flying colors, Dr. MacKinnon admits to their being "very difficult."

The roast will be well remembered, not only by the doctor but by the flock of friends who came to pay tribute including Frank Lawatch, vice president of DeLaval, Nash Dunham, Howard St. John, Dr. Thomas C. Pendell of Poughkeepsie, Buckley and MacKinnon's son, Robert A. MacKinnon, Kingston attorney. The event was arranged by MacKinnon's secretary Margaret Bell and Harry C. Kapreilian, who served as master of ceremonies.

ADRIENNE BARBEAU

Born June 11 in Sacramento, California, Adrienne Barbeau moved with her parents to San Jose and graduated from Delmar High School there. While still a pre-schooler, she was encouraged by her mother toward a musical education. She was taking ballet lessons at age three and vocal lessons a very few years later. By the time she was in high school, music and dancing were a way of life, and she never considered any other career. In San Jose, she was active in both high school and community theater. When San Jose Light Opera received a federal grant to tour the Pacific area to entertain U.S. servicemen, Adrienne went along, performing in Korea, Taiwan, Japan, Okinawa and other Pacific bases.

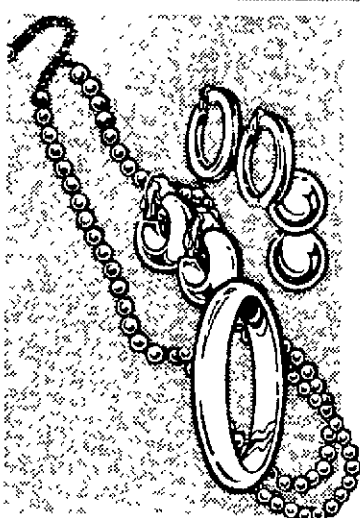

After returning from the tour, Miss Barbeau headed for New York City, where she studied drama with Warren Robertson. She received a great deal of training in musical stock, including 'West Side Story,' 'Carnival,' 'The King and I,' 'The Boyfriend,' and 'The Threepenny Opera.'

Adrienne made her Broadway debut in 1968 as the second daughter in 'Fiddler on the Roof.' In addition to her many musical roles, Miss Barbeau also appeared in dramatic roles in 'Rashomon' and 'John Brown's Body.' She is also a frequent guest on television talk shows. In 1972 Miss Barbeau's stage performance in 'Grease' won her a Tony Award nomination and a Theater World Award as 'most promising actress in a musical.'

Miss Barbeau's primary interest, other than her career, is in social service work. She has contributed much free time to the Women's Community Service Center in Los Angeles and also works with handicapped children. An accomplished dancer in jazz, discotheque and ballet, she continues both dancing and singing lessons. Miss Barbeau, single, presently lives in Hollywood, California.

They've pulled off a coup - bringing 'Slade' to Pt. Ewen -

Bunz and the Sonic Hog

hey describe themselves as 'high energy' and they're 'home grown'. Six young men, still on the trustworthy side of 30, have been building, rock by rock, a dynasty in Ulster County.

They call themselves the "Bunz Rock Show" and have entertained in clubs throughout the state.

But Bunz aspires higher than being just another rock group. They're moving into the entire picture, offering various services to other groups as well. The larger picture is represented by the corporate name of 'Sonic Hog Productions'.

Sonic Hog moves Bunz into very good company this coming Thursday. They're bringing the English group, "Slade" to Ulster County this coming Thursday night. Slade has been one of the top rock groups in England for the past five years, recording on Warner Bros. label.

For a ten-spot, you will gain entrance to the Tropical in Port Ewen, welcome to drink all you can hold, and listen to the sonic symphony of Slade and Bunz from 8 to 12 (show time, 9).

Trade journal articles speculate on why Slade has chosen to include club dates in its tour of concerts. It's suggested that more mature audiences prefer the comfort and more intimate atmosphere of a club gig. And certainly even rock audiences do continue to grow older. A source close to the group describes the objective as a chance to sense reaction to their music and their style. They're working on their presentation, introducing more humor, and a smaller audience is easier to read than a stadiumful.

Whatever wind propelled Slade to Port Ewen, it was a fair trade wind for Sonic Hog. Their stated aim: "To put on a Rock Show, using other writer's material, that will leave audiences in awe."

Their long-term goal: "To creat our own musical show and spread it to as many people as possible."

They'll be playing selections by The Who, Jethro Tull, The Rolling Stones, Z. Z. Top, Kiss, Deep Purple, Bad Co., Elton John, Led Zeppelin, and their own latest creation, just cut on Sonic Hog label, "I'm Dr. Rock & Roll" and "Raw Power".

Elaborate sound and lighting equipment enhance the group's performance.

Since we can't improve on Bunz' own capsule comments on themselves, we'll let them blow their own horns:

"Steve Atwood - age 25. Guitar, vocals, precision ear, electronical wizardry and tallness. Steve uses HiWatt amplifiers and a customized Gibson Les Paul Jr. with accessories. His virtuosity on the guitar amazes audiences everywhere.

"Billy Deitz - age 24. Drums, percussion, vocals, motivation, coughs, screaming and erratic behavior. Billy uses a double-set of clear Ludwig drums and accessories. The reason for the double-set is that he plays with the energy of two drummers.

"Rob Hull - age 22. Bass guitar, vocals, sex appeal, good humor and funny faces. Rob plays a Rickenbacker stereo bass guitar through an Acoustic amp with two speaker cabinets. The newest member of Bunz, his solid bass playing is a valuable asset to the band.

"Charlie Cirrone - age 28. Lead vocals, flute, frenetic sax solos, suggestive dancing and madness. Charlie plays a Gemeinhardt flute and a Beucher saxophone. Years of experience make him a master showman.

"George Mouse' Gippert - age 29. Sound control, business, roadwork, moral support and good sense.

"Harry Stahl - age 22. Lightshow and special effects, art work, roadwork, dependability and sarcasm."

Sonic Hog is off to an auspicious start. We wish them luck. May the Tropical, come Thursday, go hog-wild.

Meet Mrs. Jean's Greens

with apologies to Captain Kangaroo

Pinch 'em back...the Coleus and the Iresine. But don't pinch the fern or you'll massacre him.

So goes an average day in the life of Jeanne Murphy, an English teacher by profession, a greenhouse proprietor by choice.

Mrs. Murphy professed an interest in growing things from childhood when she was no bigger than some of her plants. But her hobby developed into a business two years ago when the youngest of her five children started kindergarten. Her husband, a carpenter by trade, built her a greenhouse in the back yard, and Jeanne's Greens was born.

Specializing in unusual plants at consistently inexpensive prices is Mrs. Murphy's concept of business. Without the overhead of a store, my prices can be kept to a minimum. Probably, one of the best selections of small plants to be found anywhere in this area are offered at Jeanne's from 35 up.

Among the many unusual species (and Jeanne claims to have some of the most unusual to be found in this locale) is the Callistemon or To-Bottle Bush Tree. The flower (in red only) looks just like its nickname; it resembles a bottle brush cleaner. The Bromeliads, called urn plants or living vases, are centered with a magnificent, long-lasting flower.

There are more than 2000 types in every color of the rainbow. The Flowering Cactus, another unusual plant, blooms only at maturity. While some cactus mature at the size of a dime, others grow to a height of 50 or 60 feet before maturing and blooming. And it's up to me to know the difference, she explained.

Several of Mrs. Murphy's clientele come to the greenhouse with exact notions of what they want, and they're persistent in getting it. One customer ordered a large Jade Tree. She was at the greenhouse at 9 a.m. to pick it up. I told her it wouldn't arrive until 4:30 in the afternoon. At 3:30, she was back again. She sat in the driveway until it came at 4:30. Then she triumphantly bore off with the biggest and best of the lot....one well worth waiting for.

Mrs. Murphy's kitchen is a beehive of activity. On Tuesday while she was tending her trade in the greenhouse, we sat sipping herb tea with her sons, Ed, 11, a sixth grade student at New Paltz Middle School, and 14-year-old Jim, an eighth grade student. In between showing off the 13-inch carp he had hooked the day before and his pet rock python, Alice, Ed was busy making pancakes for late morning breakfast. (Three other children, Mary Ellen, 10, Christopher, 8, and Kevin, 7, had already left for the Duzine School.) Two sick plants were recuperating on a kitchen shelf.

Mom doesn't like to put sick plants next to the healthy ones, the boys explained. But then after they get better, she usually keeps 'em herself.

Mrs. Murphy's interest in the care of her guys, extends to refusing a sale if she feels the buyer won't care for the shrub properly. Perhaps it's this obvious love for growing things and her knowledge of foliage history and background, that promotes the constant flow of satisfied patrons. However, Mrs. Murphy is quick to shift the credit for her flourishing business venture to relatives and friends. If it wasn't for my cousin Patty and her boyfriend John who stop in to see me and go right to work, it would be total disaster.

Even then, as a customer was pushing a check in her direction, she looked up apologetically: Money only confuses things.

Tom Downey, the Youngest Congressperson

Meet the Kid on Capitol Hill

Meet Polly Ticks! You'll be seeing a lot of her in The Mini Page. She'll tell you about elections and things of interest in Washington and the rest of the country.

When Tom Downey was growing up on Long Island in New York State, he played Little League baseball and had a paper route. His family was very interested in politics.

President Ford chats with Representative Downey, a Democrat. Gerald Ford is 62. Tom Downey, at 27, is the youngest person in Congress.

Some people call young Tom Downey of New York "The Kid on Capitol Hill" because, at the age of 27, he is the youngest member of the U. S. House of Representatives. He was only 25 when he won a surprising victory in 1974. His younger brother Jeffrey, 11, was one of his biggest campaigners.

Whenever Tom Downey makes a speech or speaks out at committee meetings, older congresspersons stop to listen, to check to see if "The Kid" really knows what he is talking about. Tom Downey tries to do his homework.

What does a congressperson do? The Mini Page asked him in a recent interview.

"I represent my district in Congress. As a congressman, I represent my country.

"I also serve as a 'go-between' for my constituents (people who live in his district) and the federal government. Many people want to know about military assignments, Social Security problems and veterans affairs.

"I live near my district, so I go home every weekend. I go to meetings. I make speeches. I have a mobile office that I move to shopping centers.

"When I am in Washington, I am in my office by 9 a.m. Between 10 a.m. and noon I go to committee meetings. The House is in session from noon until 5:30 p.m. or sometimes later. There are also committee meetings in the afternoons. Bells ring to alert us if there is a vote coming up so we can rush to the House and vote."

From 5:30 to 7:30, he goes to his office to read and answer his mail. At night, he might attend a reception given by someone from his home district. He spends a lot of time at home reading. He enjoys tennis, basketball and playing the cello.

Even though he is a bachelor, he says he doesn't have a steady girl friend. That will have to come later when he has more time. Right now he's busy being the youngest man on the Hill.

Remensnyder's Revolutionary Residence

The home of John and Katharine Remensnyder in Saugerties could tell a tale or two, could houses speak. The oldest part of the house was built by a Mr. Hayes in 1695. A large addition joined it prior to 1711 while John Persen called it home. In 1743, Myn-dert Mynderse expanded it again to the size it remained through the birth of the nation till today. During the Revolution, a man named Petrus lived there, a member of the Kingston Troop of Horse.
